Congress Kills Price Rollback Subsidy Plan

Some Legislators Believe CCC Bill May Deter Veto By President

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Congress yesterday finally approved and sent to the President a flat stop order on the Administration's price rollback and consumers' food subsidy program.

The next move was up to the President, who three times in two weeks has defended use of price subsidies as a key weapon in the battle of inflation.

Administration leaders speculated freely on a veto, but the President was expected to hesitate before killing a bill that carried with it an extension of the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Blame on Congress

Some thought the President might sign the CCC bill with an accompanying blast at Congress for inviting a spiral of inflation. Any ensuing rise in prices during the coming congressional recess might be laid at the door of Congress, and made the No. 1 Administration issue in a return struggle at the Capitol for subsidies this fall.

Termination of the price rollback program on meat, butter and coffee on August 1, and a prohibition on any new subsidy programs NOT specifically ordered by Congress, was approved in swift passage of a seemingly evasion-proof conference report.

Urges 10-Day "Stand-By"

The House adopted the report by a 160 to 32 division vote and two hours later the Senate sent the bill to the White House by a 60 to 13 majority. Both votes seemed more than sufficient to override the veto which subsidy opponents expected.

Representative Wolcott, (Republican) of Michigan, one of the chief authors of the antisubsidy rider, urged that Congress "stand by" for 10 days if need be for White House action.

But Administration leaders predicted there would be no waiting period, that the President would

Five Appropriation Bills Unpassed as Year Starts

Five major appropriation bills were left unenacted last night as the new fiscal year began at midnight.

Caught in the legislative jam, all of them passed by both houses but sent to conference, were:

1. The 143-million-dollar urgent deficiency bill providing, among other items, 89 millions of emergency funds for the President's use.
2. A 3-billion-dollar bill for 18 war agencies, such as OPA, OWI, BEW, etc.
3. Labor Department-Federal Security Agency bill, carrying one billion dollars.
4. Agriculture Department's 875-million-dollar measure.
5. Interior Department's bill providing 127 millions.

Congress completed action yesterday on the Commodity Credit Corporation bill, providing a billion dollars, but banning continuation of the price rollback and consumers' food subsidy program, and sent it to the White House for a possible veto.

Also sent to the President, for his certain approval, was the largest appropriation measure in history, granting 71.8 billion dollars for the War Department.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to provide care for approximately a million children of mothers engaged in essential industries.

Senate Votes 2936 Millions To 18 Agencies

Pares Funds of OWI's Domestic Branch, Restores OPA Budget

By the Associated Press

The Senate last night passed the omnibus appropriation bill carrying 2936 million dollars for 18 Government war agencies, after voting to revoke a House-decreed death sentence for the domestic operations branch of the Office of War Information. However, the Senate placed a $3,561,499 limit on the amount the branch may spend on its home-front activities during the new fiscal year.

The House had already quit for the night when the Senate passed the bill, so conference agreement on dofferences between the two chambers was impossible before the old fiscal year ended at midnight.

A $27,003,590 item for OWI's overseas operations branch, plus various administrative appropriations, brought the Information Office's total appropriation for the 1944 fiscal year to $35,037,593.

Before voting the $3,561,499 fund for OWI's domestic operations, the Senate rejected, 40 to 34, a move by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat) of Wyoming to grant $5,500,000 for the Office's home front work. The latter sum had been approved by the House Appropriations Committee, but on the floor of the House, the whole domestic fund had been wiped out.

The Senate daopted, without debate, an amendment stipulating that none of the money contained

Carmen Beach Martin was sentenced yesterday in District Court to serve 1 to 3 years in jail and pay a fine of $2500 for white slave activities in the operation of an elaborate "call house."

Meanwhile, the white slave trial of Eldon Powell, charged with bringing a Hollywood girl to Washington to engage in prostitution at the Hopkins Institute on Connecticut Avenue, went to the jury late yesterday. Unable to reach a verdict the jury went to their homes at 9.55 p. m. to resume deliberations today. (Both stories on Page 5.)

Congress Jam Snags 5 Big Money Bills

Scores of Agencies Technically Broke As Fiscal Year Ends

A congressional drive toward a recess this week-end snagged yesterday in a jam of appropriations bills, as five of the big money measures caught fast in conference deadlocks.

The worst money impasse in recent congressional history left scores of departments and bureaus technically without funds as the fiscal year started at midnight, and spelled payless pay days for the next few days for many a Government employe.

Freed from the log-jam and sent to the White House for signature was the all-time record high $71,810,000,000 Army appropri[ation] bill. But harried appropri[ation] committeemen failed to bu[ild] marines, Australia.

The House refused to yield 301 to 71. The Senate action was viva-voce. Tied up in the bill was the President's $89,000,000 emergency fund.

2. The three billion dollar war agency bill, rife with House and Senate differences over OPA, OWI, OCD and other war agency appropriations. The Senate passed the bill with OPA funds fully restored and OWI domestic operations given a limited renewal, but with five billion dollars chopped from the War Relocation Authority. The bill went immediately to a conference fight.

3. The 875 billion dollar Agriculture appropriation bill still tied up in conference by House refusal to continue funds for crop insurance.

4. The $1,086,000,000 Labor-Federal Security bill just entering a knock-down-and-drag-out conference fight over House insistence on liquidation of the National Youth Administration.

Wallace, Jones Fight Flares Anew

RFC Head Denies Wallace Statement Of Truce Pending Congress' Decision

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Vice President Wallace announced last night that the war between him and Secretary of Commerce Jones was over "for the time being."

Three hours later the war was on again, as Secretary Jones issued a stinging rebuke to the Vice President in terms that proved that the war had never ended.

Fighting was resumed after an extraordinary "peace conference" in the office of War Mobilizer Byrnes at the White House. Byrnes, chief referee for President Roosevelt, called the warring officials together after Wallace, head of the Board of Economic Warfare, Tuesday, accused Jones, as chief of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with obstructing the import of strategic war materials.

Friction Anew

Wallace arrived at the conference about 4 p. m., Jones about 4:15 p. m. Jones left about 6 p. m., Wallace about 6:20 p. m.

Wallace spoke officially at 7:30, Jones dissented before 10:30 p. m.; Wallace at 11 p. m. said he would stand by his first statement.

In his first statement, Wallace said that the present arrangements between the RFC and BEW would continue for the time being, but that Congress would be asked at the end of its summer recess to give the BEW full independence, and the money to handle the imports program. He declared that Jones did not object to the pro[gram]. He also said he had not to reflect on Jones' but reasserted that the delayed the war effort.

The Advance Begins—Points involved in the Allied drive on the Japanese are shown above. The circle incloses the Trobriand and Woodlark Islands

MacArthur Leads Drive On Solomons, New Guinea

Land Action Rages; 3 Islands Taken; Jap Base at Munda In Artillery Range

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Staff Writer

A great pincers movement designed to liquidate the Japanese in a vital area of the Southwest Pacific appeared in progress early today.

The outlines of the master strategic plan began to take shape as follows:

1. The headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that the Allies have occupied Trobriand and Woodlark Island off the southeastern tip of New Guinea, and have landed near Salamaua; Japanese stronghhold of the east coast of New Guinea. They are engaging Japanese forces near Salamaua and the whole action by land, naval and air force is under the personal direction of General MacArthur.

2. The Navy Department here disclosed that American forces have landed on Rendova Island in the enemy held central Solomons some 400 to 500 miles east of New Guinea.. The MacArthur communique announced extension of that action to the neighboring and larger New Georgia Island, where American forces have landed and come to grips with the enemy.

Appear Aimed at Rabaul

Though the objectives of the far-flung attacks were of course not stated, they appeared pointed toward Rabaul on New Britain, which lies northeast of Salamaua and is the center of the whole Japanese defense positions in the South and Southwest Pacific areas.

The aim would seem to be drive on Rabaul from the southwest and southeast. If the campaign, which seemed to be a fully prepared general offensive involving all Allied forces in this general area, succeeds, the Japanese defenses in a large section of the Pacific may be expected to collapse.

The enemy then undoubtedly would have to fall back on his great naval bastion of Truk, roughly a 1000 miles to the north. But Truk, too, would then be in danger, as well as the supply lines through the China Sea between Japan and the lands the Japanese have conquered in the Southwest Pacific.

All Arms in Action

"All elements of ground, naval and air forces are being employed in the closest synchronization," the communique said.

Fighting was in progress at Nassau Bay, a few miles from Salamaua, where American forces affected a landing shortly after midnight on the heels of concentrated bombing by attack planes and medium bombers.

The planes also carried out "strafing raids against enemy positions on the bay shore and along the Bitoi River," the communique said.

The operations took place during the last 48 hours.

They placed United Nations troops only 12 miles south of Salamaua, and on the Trobriand, Woodlark and New Georgia groups which are between the existing Allied bases and Rabaul, anchor point of Japan's offensive-defensive chains in the Southwest Pacific.

It was the first offensive operation since American occupation of

Allies Will Open Drive by Fall, Churchill Says

By the Associated Press

London, June 30.—In a buoyant and cheering speech, Prime Minister Churchill today forecast thrusts this summer in the Mediterranean "and elsewhere," triumphantly reported a toll of 30- odd U-boats in May alone, and warned the Germans of an air offensive of ever greater wrath and destruction.

"Very probably there will be heavy fighting in the Mediterranean and elsewhere before the leaves of autumn fall," Britain's war leader and master phrasemaker told a victory-minded assembly in London's blitz-blackened Guildhall.

Churchill concerned himself earnestly with Allied unity, declaring that upon British-American cooperation "depends more than upon any other factor the immediate future of the world," that "acting together we can help all nations safely into harbor and that if we

Churchill Slips Up On U. S. History

London, June 30 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill stubbed his toe over a point in American history in the last sentence of his speech today.

He ended with a reference "to what the American Constitution finely calls 'Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'"

The source was the Declaration of Independence, not the Constitution. One of Churchill's secretaries later termed the error "an oversight."

Martinique Seeks to Join United Nations

By the Associated Press

New York, June 30.—Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy French high commissioner of Martinique, has asked the United States Government to send an envoy "to fix the terms for a change of French authority" on the Caribbean island, the Martinique radio reported tonight in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

The broadcast declared Robert had taken the step "to avoid bloodshed" and had made his request to the United States "under the double condition of their renewing the guarantee to maintain French sovereignty in these islands, and of the nonintervention of American forces."

The broadcast, in the French language, presented Robert's statement as a "communique to the population."

There have been several recent reports of disorders in Martinique.

The text of the broadcast, which was marred by poor reception, follows:

"Communique to the population:

"In order to avoid bloodshed between the French and . . . the . . . I have asked the Government of the United States, under the double condition of their renewing the guarantee to maintain French sovereignty in these islands, and of the nonintervention of American forces, to send a plenipotentiary to fix the terms for a change of French authority.

. . . My duty to the people and the marshal . . .

"(Signed) Admiral Robert."

Island May Quit Vichy

Presumably Robert's allusion to a change of French authority meant that he was willing to permit the island to divorce itself from Vichy and associate itself with the French national committee of Generals Giraud and De Gaulle which has been set up in North Africa.

Diplomatic relations between the United States and the French island were severed on April 30 and it was announced that United States Navy was keeping a close watch over the island.

On April 16 Robert addressed a letter to Joseph E. Dynan, Associate Press correspondent at San Juan, Puerto Rico, in which he stated the terms under which his insular possession would join the Allies.

After the withdrawal of the American consul-general from the island's capital city of Fort-de-France, Robert wrote another letter

Civil Defense Cut

By the Associated Press

London, June 30.—Britain spent its sixth day without sighting an enemy plane today while Mustangs and Typhoons shot up 20 locomotives in sweeps over northern France to cap a record month of aerial warfare in which the R. A. F. alone dropped at least 13,500 tons of explosives on German targets.

American Flying Fortresses struck Le Mans, France, without loss at twilight Tuesday, and the R.A.F. damaged three of the six German ships encountered by night off Dunkerque at a cost of one plane amid an array of heartening indications of mounting Allied superiority.

Allied planes continued to attack the French coastal area tonight. A formatio nof fighters was seen returning to England's southeast coast at a height of 20,000 feet after a number of heavy explosions had been heard for some time across the strait.

While German propaganda outlets talked of a great "reprisal air force" under construction, the Axis' preoccupation with its defenses was underscored by a parliamentary announcement that Britain's civil defense establishment had been cut one-third in the last year, and that a further cut of 12½ per cent is under way.

Many of the Fortresses which flew to Le Mans, airplane engine and chemical center 130 miles southwest of Paris, returned with their dangerous bomb cargoes. This

CHAPTER V

One World

By Wendell L. Willkie

Describes Two Talks With Stalin

In Moscow I had two long talks with Josef Stalin. Much of what was said I am not at liberty to report.

But about the man himself there is no reason to be cautious. He is one of the significant men of this generation.

At his invitation I called on him one evening at 7:30. He apparently has most of his conferences at night. His office was a fair-sized room about 18 by 35 feet.

Stalin and Molotov were standing to welcome me at the far end of a long oak conference table.

They greeted me simply and we talked for some three hours—about the war, about what would come after, about Stalingrad and the front, about America's position, the relationship of Great Britain, the United States, and Russia, and about many other important and unimportant subjects.

State Dinner

A few days later I spent some five hours sitting next to Stalin, through the numerous courses of a state dinner which he gave for me; later while we all drank coffee at little tables in another room, and finally through a private showing of a motion picture of the siege and defense of Moscow.

Stalin, I should judge, is about 5 feet 4 or 5, and gives the appearance of slight stockiness. I was surprised to find how short he is; but his head, his mustache, and his eyes are big.

His face, in repose, is a hard face, and he looked tired in September—not sick, as is so often reported, but desperately tired. He had a right to be.

He talks quietly, readily, and at times with a simple, moving eloquence. When he described to me Russia's desperate situation as to fuel, transportation, military equipment, and manpower, he was genuinely dramatic.

Stalin told me again and again that his propaganda was deliberately designed to make his people hate the Nazis, but it was obvious that he himself had a certain bitter admiration for the efficiency by which Hitler had transplanted to Germany as much as 94 per cent of the working population from some of the conquered Russian territory.

Causes of War

When we talked of the causes of the war and the economic and political conditions that would face the world after it was over, his comprehension was broad, his detailed information exact, and the cold reality of his thinking apparent.

Stalin is a hard man, perhaps even a cruel man, but a very able one. He has few illusions.

His admiration for the effectiveness of American production methods would more than satisfy the National Association of Manufacturers.

On the personal side Stalin is a simple man, with no affectations or poses. He does not seek to impress by any artificial mannerisms. His sense of humor is a robust one, and he laughs readily at unsubtle jokes and repartee.

Once I was telling him of the Soviet school and libraries I had

Laundry Services Ordered Cut To Meet Shortage of Workers

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

To get Government aid to secure sufficient manpower to stay in business, laundries must put their services on a "rock-bottom, first-things-first basis," the War Manpower Commission and the War Production Board's Office of Civilian Requirments directed yesterday.

Maximum standards of service were established to enable laundries "to give adequate essential service to more persons than they are now doing with the labor force they have or are likely to get."

Laundries were instructed to cooperate in public appeals for consumers' economy in the use of laundry services—to ask housewives to do their washing at home wherever it does not interfere with "their productiveness in a war job," or to ask them to use less elaborate services.

Luxury laundry services such as hand ironing and finishing of garments, special starching, use of shirt boards, shirt envelopes, cellophane wrappings and tissue box linings were ordered eliminated. Men's shirts may be finished on request, but only one grade of starch may be used.

Adoption of the Government standards was not made mandatory, but it was made clear that nonconforming laundries would have a tough time holding on to their help.

Regional directors of the War Manpower Commission were authorized to designate as "locally needed" only such laundries as curtail their services in accordance with the regulations. A "locally needed" rating is required to secure workers through the United States Employment Service and to get protection against employe "raiding" by competing employers. No draft deferments will be pro-

Doctor Parachutes 40,200 Feet To Test Army's Oxygen Device

By William F. Frye
Associated Press Staff Writer

The colonel comes from Missouri and laboratory tests left him skeptical—he had to see it to believe it.

So Lieut. Col. William Randolph Lovelace 2d, surgeon and Air Forces expert on high altitude equipment, made a parachute jump from 40,200 feet—the highest on record in this country—to convince himself and everybody else that the emergency oxygen equipment furnished to Army airmen is all that laboratory tests indicate.

It was his first jump, and he said today at a press conference that it would be his last for a while, although his only injury was the freezing of his left hand. The jerk of his opening 'chute flipped off his heavy glove in a 50-below temperature.

Otherwise, Lovelace reported, he suffered no discomforts—the heavy regulation clothing, including oxygen mask, goggles and helmet, protected even his face from the cold.

Lovelace jumped from an Army bomber near Euphrata, Wash., last Thursday. The parachute opened automatically, and the shock "blacked out" the colonel. He regained consciousness at about 30,000 feet, and by the time he got down to 8000 feet was fully recovered. He landed in a wheatfield, and was picked up immediately and taken to the Euphrata airbase hospital for treatment of his frozen hand.

"It's going to be all right," he said.

It took him 23 minutes and 51 seconds to float down, he said, adding with a grin that this time "was almost exactly what laboratory calculations said it would be."

Photos Show Wide Damage In Dortmund

London, June 30 (AP).—Damage done to the German industrial city of Dortmund by the R. A. F.'s 2000-ton raid of May 23 was even greater than was first believed, although it was described then as probably the most damaged city in Germany, the Air Ministry news service announced today.

New photographs of important industrial areas showed that four more concerns of the huge Hoesch Steel Works were destroyed.

Two collieries also were found to have been heavily damaged and probably put out of production and 400 additional business houses either destroyed or damaged.

The announcement said a big synthetic oil plant was hit and "appears to be no longer working."

Meanwhile, Prof. Albert Speer, Nazi Minister of Munitions, was reported by the the German radio today to have acknowledged that German workers in some instances are manufacturing munitions in the open air and under "the most primitive conditions." This shortage of factory space is believed to have been caused by Allied bombing.

It is understood Wavell will retain his family name and become Lord Wavell.

Russian Guns Repulse Nazis; Kill Company

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), July 1.—Massed Soviet artillery fire wiped out a company of attacking infantrymen yesterday in the Leningrad sector, Moscow announced today, while the German radio suggested that the Black Sea-Caucasus front was stirring once more.

In the air the Red air force maintained a vigil over the long front, where 211 German divisions were reported concentrated despite Allied invasion threats in the west.

The midnight bulletin announced that 1000 German troops were killed in a Soviet air attack on Pskov near the Estonian border June 23, when a German military headquarters, munition and fuel dumps and 12 parked planes were destroyed.

Moscow dispatches tended to bear out German broadcasts that the Kuban area was on the verge of erupting again. They suggested that Russian airmen, by striking two nights in succession at Taman, on the Kerch Strait opposite the Crimea, were attacking Germans moving fresh troops into the Caucasus.

The German high command announced the torpedoing of a Russian gunboat and two ships aggregating 2000 tons off Novorossisk in the Black Sea, and the destruction of a patrol ship by air bombs in the same area.

Both Berlin and Moscow said no material battle changes had occurred on the Russian front, but Pravda challenged a report from London that 50 German divisions had been ordered from the Soviet front to strengthen Axis defenses elsewhere in anticipation of invasion.

"No German divisions have been shifted from the Russian front," said Pravda. The newspaper listed German strength in these categories: 211 divisions in Russia; 35 in France, Belgium and Holland, "and half of these divisions are of restricted battle capacity;" 10 divisions in the Balkans "also of limited battle capacity," and "not a single German division in Italy at the present time."

Rome to Be Raided 'If Helpful,' Says British Minister

By the Associated Press

London, June 30.—Invasion jitters spurred to even greater intensity by a new and heavy British volley on the nerve war front wracked the bomb-buffeted peoples of Europe tonight.

While Axis propaganda outlets beat a steady refrain on the time and place of the expected onslaught, Prime Minister Churchill assured the world that there would be heavy fighting in the Mediterranean and elsewhere before autumn.

And in the House of Commons Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, discussing the possible bombing of Rome, declared pointedly that it would be to the interest of humanity "if Mussolini was to realize the best thing he can do for his country is to accept the unconditional surrender terms offered him."

Axis Fixes on New Date

The Axis propagandists, already proven wrong on their June 22 invasion forecast, stuck stubbornly to their newest prediction that Saturday would see the beginning of the Allied attack, according to the Paris radio.

"The date of July 3 for invasion of Europe is considered in London to be irrevocable," said the ministry of information report on the broadcast. "Large formations of Canadian and American forces are massing in British ports. Indian, New Zealand and Australian forces are massed in North Africa."

Added to this were fresh reports carried in the Italian press that heavy naval concentrations were steaming eastward from Gibraltar. Virginio Gayda, a Fascist party editor-spokesman, wrote that already "war has come to Italy in its most brutal form."

Eden reiterated that in line with government policy the Italians could expect Rome to be bombed whenever the course of the war "should render such action convenient and helpful." He denied that any attempt had been made to persuade Mussolini to declare Rome an open city and spare it from raids.

Courageous guerillas inside beleaguered Europe continued to strike, a broadcast from Algiers said. A train was derailed and several German soldiers were killed by patriots near Marseille.

Reuters heard the same radio station report that as soon as the first Allied soldier set foot in France the underground army would rise so mightily that "the Germans will find that every street and house in France will then become a death trap."

Allies Clear Mediterranean Supply Route

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 30.—Striking from bases many hundreds of miles apart at targets separated by only 6 miles of water, British bombers from North Africa and Middle East commands have smashed heavily at the ferry connecting Sicily with the Italian mainland in an effort to destroy the island's communications and so substantially to isolate it in the event of invasion.

Announcements today from this headquarters and from Cairo told of great damage wrought in these twin raids, delivered Monday night at a cost of two Allied planes.

This continued hammering of the Messina Strait was accompanied by a statement, jointly issued by the United States and British Air Forces, that the Allies had now thrown "a complete air umbrella" over the Straits of Sicily, and that the whole stretch of the Mediterranean from Gibraltar to Suez thus was being opened to Allied shipping.

Alexandria, it was added, had now been brought "within little more than 3000 miles of England by comparison with the 12,000-mile route around the Cape by which our Middle East forces had formerly to be supplied."

In Monday night's two-sided attack on the Messina Strait, Wellington bombers from the Northwest Africa force poured a heavy weight of bombs on the ferry terminus and the railway yards at Messina itself, while heavy bombers from the Middle East blasted at similar rail and ferry installations at Reggio Calabria, 6 miles across the water on the Italian mainland.

divide all will toss and drift for a long time on dark and stormy seas."

His war analysis repeated the Allied demand for "unconditional surrender" of "the Nazi, Fascist and Japanese tyrannies," and again the Prime Minister promised that, should Japan still stand when Germany and Italy are toppled, "every airplane in the King's service that can be moved to the Pacific" will be sent there to fight "as many years as are needed to make the Japanese in their turn submit or bite the dust."

Of invasion, he spoke directly only of the heavy fighting to come.

Of the submarine war, he declared that in May the Nazis made a determined effort to halt the Allied convoy bridge from the United States to Britain, but that this vital battle "ended in the total defeat of the U-boat attack."

"More than 30 U-boats were certainly destroyed in May," and since mid-May "scarcely a single merchant ship has been sunk in the whole of the North Atlantic," Churchill announced.

Because of this "We have had in June the best month we have ever known" in the war, he said, and shipyards of the United States, Britain and Canada have produced between "7 and 10 times as much as our losses from enemy action in the month of June."

"Bad patches" might still lie ahead, and "we must redouble our efforts and ingenuity" against submarines, he cautioned but—since U-boat warfare is held out to the Germans as their last great hope—these successes are bringing the Nazis "a somewhat raw and bleak outlook."

As to the air, Churchill disclosed that the R. A. F. alone has dropped 52,500 tons of bombs upon Germany in the first half of 1943, or 35 times the weight dropped by the Nazis upon Britain in the same period.

"During the summer our main attack has been upon the mainspring of German war industry—in the Ruhr—but as the nights become longer and as the United States Air Force becomes more numerous, our strong arms will lengthen both by night and by day and there is no industrial or military target in Germany that will not receive as we deem necessary the utmost application of exterminating force," he declared.

Praises U. S. Air Force

Churchill praised the daylight blows by the United States Air Force as inflicting "grave injury on the sensitive nerve center" of German war production, and said the Allied attacks would follow German industry to small towns as big ones are "disposed of."

Russia "presently will contribute an additional quota to the total blitz," he added.

Of Mussolini—who was urged earlier today by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in a speech in Commons to "accept the unconditional surrender terms offered to him"—Churchill said he and his people are suffering from the war of nerves.

"So far they have only been subjected to preliminary and discursive bombardments, but they already are speculating feverishly where the blow will fall and what will be its weight," he remarked.

The Allies do not intend to "relieve that anxiety" for Mussolini or for Hitler, whose worries over Allied invasion plans "may perhaps have led to the remarkable long delay of the opening of the promised German offensive against Russia," Churchill added.

Their anxieties "will grow from week to week and from month to month," he continued. He warned peoples of Allied nations against over-confidence, stressing the enormous difficulties of amphibious warfare.

Cooperation Emphasized

Allied cooperation in war and in peace was emphasized by the Prime Minister.

He spoke of "the great Republic of the United States whose power arouses no fear and whose preeminence excites no jealousy in British bosoms," adding:

"Upon the association and intimate alignment of the policy of the United States and the British Commonwealth and Empire depends more than upon any other factor the immediate future of the world.

"If they walk or, if need be, march together in harmony and in accordance with the moral and political conceptions of which the English-speaking peoples have given birth and which are frequently referred to in the Atlantic Charter, all will be well. If they fall apart and wander astray from the lines of their destiny there will be no end or measure to the miseries and confusion which would mark modern civilization."

Churchill told of friendship for Russia, of great hopes for China's future and of a revival of the "true greatness of France," in declaring that the United States and Britain must act together to secure peace and safety.

Expressing pride in the empire, Churchill declared "we seek no profit, we want no territory or aggrandizement. We expect no reward and we will accept no compromise." The empire is united, he said, adding he was "not at all ashamed of the word empire."

The Prime Minister defined unconditional surrender to mean that the whole power of the Axis to resist "must be completely broken and that they must yield themselves absolutely to our justice and mercy. It also means that we must take all those far-sighted measures which are necessary to prevent the world from being again convulsed and wrecked and blackened by their calculated blows and ferocious aggression."

Churchill was roundly cheered both on his way to the Guildhall in a horse-drawn carriage, and when he entered the hall which had been fired by Nazi bombs in December, 1940.

WLB Orders Arbitration For Disputes

The War Labor Board yesterday directed employers and unions to provide for arbitration of unsettled grievances to prevent strikes.

The board hinted strongly that it would order such grievance machinery installed in cases coming before it, if the parties fail to adopt their own procedures through collective bargaining.

Board Chairman William H. Davis explained that the board noted a tendency for grievances to increase both in number and in "tension."

In the background of the action was the recent enactment of the Connally-Smith anti-strike law. Davis said that the section of the law authorizing strike votes after a 30-day waiting period was "a disturbing influence on the no-strike, no lockout agreement."

Public Member Frank P. Graham recalled that organized labor had reaffirmed its no-strike pledge after Congress passed the antistrike measure over the President's veto.

"The board feels a responsibility that the no-strike pledge not be taken advantage of by unsettled grievances," Graham said.

Public Member George W. Taylor emphasized that it was preferable for the parties to set up their own machinery rather than to have the board do it.

Taylor said that too many cases involving petty grievances have come to the board, indicating that collective bargaining has "broken down."

"To let the board do it every time," Davis said, "was a very human reaction, but it won't help to win the war."

The board issued a formal statement as "custodian of the no-strike agreement," declaring it a "major responsibility" of employers and unions to set up adequate grievance machinery.

The statement set down these requirements:

"1. That prompt initial attention be given to the grievance by those in the plant who have intimate knowledge of the dispute. The exact steps and procedures for such attention to grievances must be adapted to the needs of the plant and can best be worked out by the parties themselves.

"2. That the grievance procedure, whatever be its adaptation to the needs of the plant, should provide for the final and binding settlement of all grievances not otherwise resolved. For this purpose, provision should be made for the settlement of grievances by an arbitrator, impartial chairman, or umpire under terms and conditions agreed to by the parties."

U. S. Opens Drive In Pacific Area

Gen. MacArthur Leads Offensive On Solomons

Munda in Gun Range

The beachheads established on the New Georgia group are within artillery range of the Japanese air base at Munda.

Timed with the New Guinea action was a heavy raid by Allied Fortresses and Liberators on Rabaul, New Britain, approximately 500 miles northwest of Rendova and 300 miles above Trobriand.

The Japanese tried another raid on Darwin, resulting in aerial dog fights in which six of their bombers and two of their fighters were lost as against six intercepting Spitfires.

The raid was made at midday by 27 Japanese bombers escorted by 21 fighters.

Slight Casualties Admitted

The communique admitted some damage to ground installations and slight casualties.

Salamaua, near which new landings were reported, is in the Huon Gulf of New Guinea in an area toward which jungle fighters have been infiltrating from the south to a point within 12 miles of that base, at Mubo.

Salamaua and Lae, also on the Huon Gulf, are important Japanese air bases, the fall of which would put the Allies on the coast looking directly across Dampier Strait at enemy holdings on New Britain.

On New Britain's northern tip, the Vunakanau and Lakunai airdromes at Rabaul were pounded by nearly 23 tons of high explosives, fragmentation and incendiary bombs which burst in the dispersal area. One fire could be seen for 100 miles away.

One of the Allied raiders was lost as the Japanese threw up a heavy screen of antiaircraft fire and sent up night fighters.

The communique reported that the landings on islands near New Guinea and those of Rendova constituted "combined and coordinated operations" of forces of the southwest and South Pacific areas. It was the first of such a nature reported, bringing into action a plan arranged by General MacArthur and Admiral William Halsey whereby Halsey's South Pacific area would merge with MacArthur's Southwest in one command during joint operations.

The communique made this report:

"In combined and coordinated operations, forces of the Southwest Pacific and South Pacific areas have advanced and expanded their bases of deployment by occupying Nassau Bay on the north coast of New Guinea, the Trobriand and Woodlark Island group and are attacking the New Georgia group (in the Solomons).

"Occupation of the Trobriands and the Woodlark area was successfully accomplished without opposition and apparently unbeknown to the enemy. In the New Georgia group, our forces have successfully landed on New Georgia and Rendova Islands and are engaging the enemy's defenses. All elements, ground, naval and air, are being employed in the closest synchronization. Forces of the two areas are operating under their commanders, the entire movement being under direction of the commander in chief of the Southwest Pacific area."

In the big raid on Rabaul, which now has been pounded with approximately 200 tons of bombs since July 10, nearly 23 tons were dropped on Vunakanau and Lakunai airdromes. One resulting fire could be seen for 100 miles.

On the opposite end of New Britain, three 1000-ton Japanese cargo ships were caught in Dampier Strait by a single four-engined Allied bomber, which left one sinking. Another was so heavily damaged that she appeared to have been deserted.

The communique also reported, without specifying the time, that a medium United States cargo ship had been sunk and a smaller vessel damaged by torpedo attacks, presumably by Japanese submarines, off the east coast of Australia.

Strike Aids Foe

Ickes Urges Coal Miners To Return

Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes yesterday issued a back-to-work appeal to 130,000 coal miners still on strike amid indications that some of them planned to stay away from the mines until Tuesday after the Independence Day holiday Monday.

Core of the resistance to strike-ending orders from the United Mine Workers policy committee issued more than a week ago was in Pennsylvania where more than 100,000 miners stayed out. Throughout the country, the number idle declined 9000 yesterday.

Ickes called for the mining of coal regardless of what happens to the miners' wages in a nationally broadcast radio address.

"I favor the mining of coal whether there is or is not a contract between the coal mine owners and the miners . . . whether miners do or do not get a raise in wages . . . whether miners are paid for portal-to-portal time."

"Sabotages," Ickes Says

"The man who tonight or tomorrow or the next day does not carry his full share in this country's fight," Ickes said, "either does not understand the immediate crisis that we face, or he deliberately sabotages in that fight in the hope that our enemies win."

The appeal from the Government operator of the mines brought nearer possible action by the Government under the Connally-Smith anti-strike law, in the event it goes unheeded. Department of Justice officials have been determined to avoid taking any action under the new law that might impede the back-to-work movement by arousing resentment, but they acknowledge that stubborn continuance of the strike would force them to take legal action against leaders of locals which continue to stay out.

A number of union locals voted to end their 10-day walkout in Pennsylvania, Alabama, Virginia, and Arkansas, but U. M. W. officials warned that ending the walkout was taking time. Union leaders expressed the belief that dissidents would not yield before Tuesday in some sections. West Virginia, on the other hand, was expected to work through the traditional holiday—normally the miners' sole vavation period—a U. M. W. spokesman indicated.

Reassures Miners

Ickes speech was directed principally at the miners. He promised fair treatment—but no favors—either to the miners or the owners of the pits.

"I can assure the men who mine coal, and all others, that their Government does not sell the citizens of this country down the river at any time."

Pointing out that the country was on the "eve of the greatest military campaign of history," Ickes insisted:

"Every muscle, every sinew, every ounce of blood and guts that we have must be pledged to a single purpose—the complaints of no man or group of men can be placed above our military goal."

The steel industry reflected the continued increase in coal output by reopening 5 of 18 closed blast furnaces, although 3 others were shut down in Alabama, leaving the total idle at 16.

The United States Steel Corp. announced reopening of three stacks, with 11 of its 37 in Pittsburg still down. Operations of its big by-product coke plant at Clairton, near Pittsburgh, were stepped up from 70 to 80 per cent of capacity during the past 24 hours and may go to 90 per cent by tomorrow night, a spokesman said.

Republic Steel reopened a blast furnace at Gadsden, Ala., but five are now banked in that State. The Shenango Furnace Co. refired its closed furnace.

Procurement Leaks' End Sought

By the Associated Press

James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, said yesterday he had asked the Government's war procurement agencies to set up boards to review their programs, with a view to discarding portions no longer needed.

The objective, he explained, was to obtain a balance to assure that manpower, materials and money will be used for "things that are important."

He told a press conference this did not mean any reduction in the overall war programs, but that projects not urgently needed, in the light of developments, will be eliminated or reduced.

The review committess will be different in personnel, Byrnes said, from the framers of the program, adding that the reviews are intended to be a continuing operation.

Answering a question, the director said it would be unfortunate if establishment of the review committees should be interpreted as indicating he though the war would not be a long one.

Marylander Indicted In Attack on Warden

Baltimore, June 30 (AP).—The Federal grand jury indicted Herbert Adams, about 55, of Fishing Creek, Dorchester County, today on a charge of assaulting United States Deputy Game Warden John W. Creighton May 24. Creighton borrowed Adams' boat and tied it up in a different place than he originally got it, the jury was told.

WLB Affirms 3c an Hour Rubber Wage Raise

The War Labor Board yesterday affirmed its decision in the "Big Four" rubber cases, limiting the wage increase of 75,000 employes to 3 cents an hour.

The decision originally reached on May 22 resulted in a protest strike which tied up Akron plants for several days. A panel of the board had recommended 8 cents for the Akron workers under the Little Steel wage formula. The board applied the formula on an industry-wide basis and awarded 3 cents. The C. I. O. United Rubber Workers applied for a rehearing which the board granted.

Besides the Akron employes the decision aects United States Rubber Co. employes in California, Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Labor Members Dissent

The board's vote on reconsideration was 8 to 4 with labor members dissenting.

In an opinion for the majority, Vice Chairman George W. Taylor said that the industry-wide method of calculating the wage increase "is not only practical and equitable but the only approach which will provide for the stabilization of wages required under the national economic stabilization policy.

"In combining various branches of the industry for calculating the maladjustment allowance, the board followed a course which had already been found to be realistic and practical. The parties to the U. S. Rubber case had voluntarily agreed that the maladjustment allowance should be computed for eight plants combined as one unit. Those eight plants manufacture varied products typical of each branch of the rubber industry. The practicability of the industry-wide approach is, therefore, attested by the action of the parties in the U. S. Rubber case. . . .

"It may be assumed, however, that the Akron employes received a lesser wage increase under the industry-wide approach than they would have received had they been considered as a separate unit. They are, however, the relatively high paid employes. . . . If the Akron plants were considered as a separate unit, the process attained under such wage stabilization policies would be substantially nullified. The board cannot so unstabilize wage rates in an industry when its plain duty is to stabilize them.

"In approving a general wage increase of 3 cents per hour, as a correction for maladjustment and as a night shift payment for the rubber industry, the board does not thereby restrict itself to making no more than an adjustment of this amount in every rubber case which may later come to the board.

"Recognizing the wide disparities in wages paid in the several areas of production, the board may make additional allowances in the low-wage plants if their rates are found to be less than the minimum of the brackets of sound and tested rates in the area for such operations.

"After careful analysis, therefore, the board has reaffirmed its conclusion that applying the little steel formula on an industry-wide basis is reasonable and equitable. The board further believes that any other approach would be detrimental to wage stabilization objectives."

R. A. F. and Forts Strike in France

was in line with a policy of not dropping their explosives unless targets are clearly visible. The communique itself gave no results of the American raid, apparently because of cloud layers making observation difficult.

Squadrons of United States Thunderbolt fighters accompanying the bombers shot down at least two enemy fighters, and the Fortresses also destroyed a number of them, the communique said.

It was the first time Le Mans had been attacked by the Americans, and the first occasion since the Antwerp raid May 4 that the Eighth Air Force airmen emerged without loss.

A Paris broadcast said 46 persons were killed and 36 injured at a "locality in Normandy," presumably a reference to the attack on Le Mans.

During June, the Eighth Air Force has lost 82 bombers in seven expeditions compared to 62 heavy and 10 medium bombers lost in nine raids in May. In view of the much larger number of planes involved in June, however, the losses were not considered excessive.

The number of German fighters shot down in the last month probably is between 200 and 250, and the Americans also have increased greatly their bomb tonnage per raid.

Capt. Sir Harold H. Balfour, undersecretary of state for air, emphasized the magnitude of the Allied aerial offensive. He told the House of Commons today that the R. A. F. now is dropping bombs on Germany at three times the 1942 rate.

Approximately 37,500 tons had been dropped on Germany in the three months ending June 26 as compared with approximately 12,000 tons loosed in the corresponding period for 1942, he said.

The Germans themselves highlighted their defensive status by broadcasting for home consumption an OWI report that 1100 German fighter planes and 30,000 guns had been concentrated in the Ruhr.

Large segments of this industrial heart of Germany have been gutted by the R. A. F., which delivered nine major attacks against it in June. It was reliably estimated that the R. A. F.'s deluge of 12,500 tons in May had been surpassed by upward of 1000 tons.

AMERICANS ARE STILL THE BEST NOURISHED PEOPLE ON EARTH—and there's a Reason

Our food may be stretched out these days to share with the peoples of the United Nations, but thanks to new scientific developments in animal feeding, our feathered and four-legged armies are being greatly improved in quality and propagation.

To tiny yeast cells goes much of the credit, because brewer's yeast is the source of the vitamins used to fortify feed mixtures. Now, when you eat meat raised on vitamin-fortified feeds, you're getting nutrition plus.

seen—how good they seemed to me.

And I added, "But if you continue to educate the Russian people, Mr. Stalin, the first thing you know you'll educate yourself out of a job."

He threw his head back and laughed and laughed. Nothing I said to him, or heard anyone else say to him, through two long evenings, seemed to amuse him as much.

As I was leaving him after my first talk, I expressed appreciation of the time he had given me, the honor he conferred in talking so candidly. A little embarrassed, he said:

"Mr. Willkie, you know I grew up a Georgian peasant. I am unschooled in pretty talk. All I can say is I like you very much."

Stalin's Program

Since I have returned to the United States, Mr. Stalin has defined the program, as he sees it, of the Anglo-American-Soviet coalition in the European war. These are the goals he calls for:

"Abolition of racial exclusiveness, equality of nations and integrity of their territories, liberation of enslaved nations and restoration of their sovereign rights, the right of every nation to arrange its affairs as it wishes, economic aid to nations that have suffered and assistance to them in attaining their material welfare, restoration of democratic liberties, the destruction of the Hitlerite regime."

Many among the democracies fear and mistrust Soviet Russia. They dread the inroads of an economic order that would be destructive of their own.

Weakness

Such fear is weakness, Russia is neither going to eat us nor seduce us. That is—and this is something for us to think about—that is, unless our democratic institutions and our free economy become so frail through abuse and failure in practice as to make us soft and vulnerable.

The best answer to communism is a living, vibrant, fearless democracy—economic, social, and political. All we need to do is to stand up and perform according to our professed ideals. Then those ideals will be safe.

We need to learn to work with her in the world after the war. For Russia is a dynamic country, a vital new society, a force that cannot be bypassed in any future world.

Robert's Offer To Quit Reported to the Associated Press protesting the action.

The terms for joining the United Nations as stated in his letter to Dynan were:

1. That such a change of allegiance would "not mean the necessity of rebellion against the French government."

1. "That the Allies permit the French who are fighting—instead of constituting two factions, one dominated by Britain and the other by the American Government—to form a unity under one single authority vested with sovereign rights."

At the outset of his letter, in answer to Dynan's question as to why Robert remained aloof "from what might be a concerted drive to liberate metropolitan France from her German invaders," Robert declared:

"'Because his participation in that action under present circumstances risks placing the interests of the French Antilles in danger without, by that step, advancing by one day the liberation of France.

Dynan then asked why he could remain aloof when the rest of the French empire had joined the fight. Robert replied: "The manner in which the French, who believed that the moment had come to join the United Nations, have been treated by the Allies only confirms me each day in my prudence."

French Guiana, a member of the French Antilles over which Robert governed, broke away from Vichy in March and now is headed by a commissioner appointed by Giraud. The other member of the Antilles group is the island of Guadeloupe.

Abuser Flattened By Gentleman From the South

By the Associated Press

An unidentified man who called a Senator and a Representative from Alabama a couple of "Southern——" got himself slapped down.

Representative Boykin related to reporters that it came about this way:

He and Senator Bankhead, while dining on the roof of the Washington Hotel, were discussing how to handle a racial problem when an intruder asserted he could tell "you Southern——" how to do it.

Whereupon Boykin slapped the man down. Later, when the Alabamans were leaving the rooftop, the man and his party approached them, apparently bent on more trouble. A poke from Boykin put him on the floor. Then he and Bankhead departed.

Fortresses Use Automatic Sight

London, June 30 (INS).—The United States Eighth Air Force tonight officially revealed that Flying Fortresses are using an "automatic computing sight," which spots the enemy fighter, figures out how to get him and draws a bead on the unlucky fellow.

Fortresses blotted out at least 271 German fighters and crippled hundreds of others, many perhaps fatally, in June.

The sight is a small box-like contrivance fixed to the Boeing bomber's 50-caliber machineguns. It instantly works out the relative rates of speed, the range and even the amount of lead required to be shot in the enemy machine.

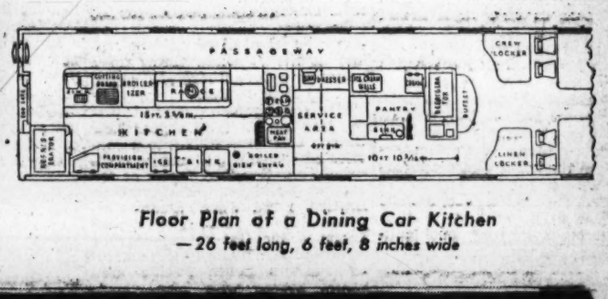
NOW... MORE MILLIONS OF MEALS from these little kitchens



Floor Plan of a Dining Car Kitchen
—26 feet long, 6 feet, 8 inches wide

But your friendly cooperation is helping Dining Car Kitchens meet Heaviest Demand in Travel History

Ever see a dining car kitchen? Kitchen and pantry combined measure only 26 feet by 6 feet, 8 inches!

But do you know how many persons these kitchens are serving, to meet the demands of the heaviest passenger travel in history?

This will give you an idea . . . in 1942, on its trains, the Pennsylvania Railroad served food to 14,237,980 persons—including 5,599,938 persons served "coach lunch". This compares with 5,579,214 in 1939, a normal year. Nearly 9,000,000 more! In fact, a single dining car kitchen such as you see above has on many occasions prepared servings for more than 500 people a day.

Neither you nor we would put steel into dining cars these days—steel must go for more vital things, so we must do the best we can with what we have.

And right here, your own friendly cooperation is extremely helpful. By vacating the table promptly after finishing your meal, you enable us to serve a fellow passenger more quickly. That we appreciate, just as we all appreciate each other's efforts these days.

White Slave Jury At Deadlock Stage

The white slave trial of Eldon Powell, 30, charged with bringing Sunny Gray, former bit player for a Hollywood studio, from New York to Washington in 1941 so she might engage in prostitution at the Hopkins Institute on Connecticut Avenue, reached the jury at 5:35 p. m. yesterday.

The jury was unable to reach a verdict by 9:55 p. m. and was then sent home for the night by Justice Jesse C. Adkins. He told them to return at 10 a. m. today for further deliberation. The justice admonished them not to read newspapers nor to listen to anything on the radio about the case. He said he hoped the jury would not turn the evidence over in their minds singly, since that was a task for collective deliberation. He cautioned them not to discuss the case with their families, "although they will undoubtedly want to hear about it."

In his charge to the jury before they were sent out to begin deliberation, Justice Adkins explained the White Slave Traffic Act. He said if they believed Powell brought Miss Gray here for prostitution, they should convict, but if they believed he lived with the defendant in a hotel here and perhaps brought her from New York for that purpose only, they should find for the defendant. He also explained if they felt Miss Gray was given promises or inducements to testify her word should be taken with caution.

The case closed after Powell, taking the stand in his own defense, testified that he was trapped by agents of the FBI into falsely signing a confession on the promise his wife would be saved from imprisonment if he admitted guilt.

Protected His Wife

Powell, a calm, sallow-skinned, brown-haired saxophone player formerly in local night clubs, told the jury, "I agreed to everything they told me because I didn't want my wife to be in on this."

He blamed his wife, Shirley Powell of Portland, Oreg., for arranging to put Miss Gray, also known as Sunny Pitts in the Hopkins Institute, alleged exclusive "call house" charging up to $100 a date. Powell denied any connection on his part with the "massage parlor" either as patron or panderer.

Agents of the FBI began the day's court session by showing a confession signed by Powell which stated he had brought Miss Gray here from New York and had been paid $100 by her for the ride. The purpose, the confession stated, was to arrange to have her placed in the Hopkins Institute.

Miss Gray Testifies

Then Miss Gray took the stand to briefly verify these statements. She reiterated her testimony about the money and then was cross-examined by Defense Counsel M. Edward Buckley, jr., about the $600 take she said she received weekly at the Hopkins establishment.

Miss Gray is a slender 24-year-old woman with blonde champagne curls. She wore the same costume she wore when the trial opened—a picture hat with veil and a navy blue tailored suit.

She said she had never been paid less than $10 a date at the institute. She said the "black book" at the establishment in which names of patrons was kept was based on the code word, "fitzgerald."

Being a 10-letter word—the letter F was the numeral 1 and I was 2 and so on up to D which was a naught. So if a man paid $50 the letters G and D would be marked behind his name.

Weeps on Stand

When Mr. Buckley began questioning her about her prostitution activities in New York and who arranged dates for her there, she broke down in tears and the court recessed until she recovered.

George F. Whitehead, 43, who pleaded guilty to white slavery in operating the Hopkins Institute, then took the stand. He testified that he had known Sunny Pitts; that she had worked for him, but he did not remember who made arrangements for her employment.

Powell was the next witness. He talked very calmly of Sunny, and of his own estranged wife, Shirley, who he said he tried to shield.

Under cross examination he told of meeting Sunny in New York in 1940 and again on a moonlight on the Potomac in 1941. He was with his wife at the latter time, he said. He said Sunny wanted to go home with him but he explained he was living with a friend. So he made a date at a hotel.

Met Her At Hotel

Powell then testified that Miss Gray left him to "see somebody" and that he later met her at the Ebbitt Hotel. He said they spent two nights together. Four days later, he said, Miss Gray told him that his wife had made arrangements for her to work at the Hopkins Institute. Later, he said, his wife confirmed this.

Questioned about receiving money from Sunny Gray, he said he loaned her $100 which she repaid. He denied that he had any connection with Hopkins Institute or that he had ever been there.

Under cross-examination by United States Attorney Edward Curran, who is prosecuting the case with his assistant, Bernard Margolius, before Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Court, Powell testified that he had been separated from his wife for three out of the four years he had been married. It also was disclosed Powell had been convicted of possession of marihuana, larceny of an automobile, petty larceny and attempted larceny in various parts of the country since 1934.

Carmen Beach Gets 1 to 3 Years, $2500 Fine

Mrs. Carmen Beach Martin, 29, was sentenced by Justice Matthew F. McGuire in District Court yesterday to serve 1 to 3 years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $2500 for white-slave activities in the operation of a "call house" which catered to Latin American diplomats, according to testimony in her trial.

Mrs. Martin, Spanish-born rumba dancer formerly performing in local night clubs, took the sentence calmly after listening to an hour of argument by her attorney, Harry Whelan, for a new trial.

In sentencing Mrs. Martin, Justice McGuire said:

"I don't believe this is the type of offense in which there should be granted probation because a person doing the things of which the defendant was convicted does it with some deliberation. The defendant is on the threshhold of a life not only dangerous to the community but is on the verge of getting herself in the position of another woman to whom I gave the maximum recently. That woman had a record of activities of 20 years standing.

"Having in mind the possibility of rehabilitation and the extent of necessary punishment, I won't send her away for the maximum which you know is 20 months to five years. But those who dance must pay the fiddler and there is no doubt about that."

Mrs. Martin has been in jail since Friday when the jury convicted her on one count of a four-count indictment.

In the argument for a new trial, the question of prejudicial remarks by a prosecutor was introduced in local courts for the first time since the United States Supreme Court reversed the conviction of George Sylvester Viereck. The highest tribunal held William Power Maloney, special assistant to the attorney general, had made inflammatory statements to the jury which might have therefore been prejudiced against Viereck.

Whelan argued Bernard Margolius, assistant United States attorney, in his final address to the jury in the Carmen Martin case, had erred inadvertently in stating: "Release this prostitute and 10,000 soldiers may die of venereal disease."

Justice McGuire denied the new trial, partly on the basis that Margolius' remarks merely served as a counter to Whelan who had said, "Release this defendant and let her send a telegram to her husband. Would to God that General MacArthur had 100,000 more like him." (Charles Martin, Carmen's husband, is a Navy pharmacist.)

Whelan, who indicated he will appeal the case, asked Mrs. Martin be released on bail. Justice McGuire denied the request.

WMC Orders Cut in Service By Laundries

vided under the plan, however.

The laundry manpower situation has become acute in the District with the United States Employment Service concentrating on supplying manpower to local establishments.

Restrictions were placed on the so-called "power" laundries—the typical commercial-type laundry. No regulations were issued covering hand laundries.

All-embracing in scope, the regulations endeavored to control the rate at which restaurants, hotels and railroads use their linen.

Hotels, boarding houses and tourist camps as well as homes are to be asked to change the bed linen no oftener than once a week for any one guest. A face towel and a bath towel a day a person are the suggested limit.

An average of no more than one tablecloth a table a meal period is suggestd for restaurants and hotels. Railroad accounts are to be asked to stop using linen towels and to curtail use of table linen.

Services Restricted

The laundries were ordered to restrict their family services to the following three types, apparently eliminating special piece-work service: (Wet wash, (2) semifinished or rough dry with flat work machine finished; wearing apparel dry or damp, and ready to iron, (3) press or family finish with flat work machine finished; wearing apparel straight machine pressed, and shirts finished.

Other Recommendations

In addition to doing their own laundry where possible, housewives will be asked to reduce the use of articles that require laundering, discontinue sending small, easily-laundered pieces, use wet-wash or semifinish services where possible, and sort outgoing bundles to save laundry manpower.

Other services banned:

Retouching of flat work and wearing apparel except the bare minimum required to make outer wearing apparel presentable.

Ironing of articles that have been dry-tumbled.

Starching of flat work.

Fancy packaging of handkerchiefs, socks and soft collars, and other superfluous wrapping and packaging.

Folding except for finished flat work.

Restrictions also were placed on laundry delivery services, but in general they conformed with Office of Defense Transportation regulations already in effect.

Wallace-Jones Battle Flares Anew After Parley

"I advised Mr. Jones that in my statement to the press I had no intention to reflect upon his patriotism or his interest in the war effort. I intended to assert that the delays in RFC in acting upon projects had delayed the war effort. I did not state or intend to create the impression that his personal motive was deliberately or intentionally to delay the war effort.

"Our difficulties have had to do with strong differences of opinion with regard to the quantities of various products to be obtained at a given time and place. That there should be these differences of opinion may reflect upon the judgment of the individuals involved but such differences do not reflect upon the desire of the individuals to serve their country."

Jones' Statement

Jones' statement:

"Mr. Wallace in his statement tonight repeats that delays of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation have retarded the war effort. This dastardly charge is as untrue as when he first made it. As for the rest of his statement Mr. Wallace was not authorized to speak for me. I will continue to speak for myself and as previously stated I shall insist upon congressional investigation."

Wallace's statement No. 2, issued through a spokesman:

"Mr. Wallace has no further comment to make on the statement he released tonight after leaving Justice Byrnes' office."

Justice Byrnes made no statement about the conference in his office.

While the White House stepped into the controversy, Democratic committee chairmen at the Capitol were cool to the idea of a congressional investigation, although demands for one were forthcoming on both sides of the Capitol.

Representative Wigglesworth (Republican) of Massachusetts, proposed that the House Rules Committee investigate the Wallace-Jones bout, and both their agencies.

Senator Wagner (Democrat) of New York was noncommittal about a suggestion that the Banking and Currency Committee, which he heads, take over the proposed investigation. That, he said, would be for the committee to decide. He said a meeting was planned for next week.

While the White House sought to quell the feud the Senate followed the lead of the House in giving Wallace's BEW every penny of the $36,150,000 in administrative funds it asked for the next year, but wrote in a proviso requiring BEW operations to conform to written policy statements adopted by a majority of the BEW board and filed with the Secretary of State.

Wallace as chairman, and Jones as Secretary of Commerce are both members of the BEW board, as are Secretaries Hull, Morgenthau, Stimson, Knox, Wickard; Attorney General Biddle, War Production Chairman Nelson, Lend Lease Administrator Stettinius, and Nelson Rockefeller, Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

The BEW policy proviso would take affect August 15, but members who drafted it and informed officials said it would not in practice change the way the BEW operates, since the board now holds policy meetings in general every two weeks. The proviso was said to be aimed at satisfying criticisms that Milo Perkins, BEW executive director, rather than the whole board, had controled the agency's policy.

WAACS Take Over

Girls Free Men Drivers At Pentagon

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer

Those legends about women drivers have taken a thorough shellacking this week at the Pentagon, where WAACS are replacing soldiers in 90 per cent of War Department motor pool jobs.

The handful of enlisted men who will remain are for heavy mechanical chores to which women are not suited, and for riding motorcycles. Otherwise, G. I. automobiles will be under the complete charge of the distaff forces—and Col. Raymond Dalley, commanding officer of the motor pool, is enthusiastic about their prowess with motors and their driving ability.

"We sent 50 of the women into Washington the other day to take the required driving tests, and all 50 finished with scores of better than 90," he confided proudly to reporters. "Funny thing, though—I found a sign in the garage that was a copy of an order I issued 10 years ago, reading: 'No women allowed in this garage under any circumstances.' You should have seen how fast it was yanked down."

The soldiers, most of them vastly relieved at becoming available for combat duty because of the WAAC's arrival, have shown no prejudices against women in khaki and actually welcomed them to the super-deluxe interior of the Pentagon garage. But not so with Pancho, a dignified brown and white dog of uncertain parentage who makes his headquarters in the motor pool office. For the first few days of the WAAC invasion, he refused to speak to the ladies and sulked in a dark corner whenever they approached.

Take Over Men's Work

By yesterday, however, Pancho was pointed out by soldiers as "the most spoiled dog in Virginia." And now it may be said that the WAACS have the 100 per cent approval of the pool's original inhabitants, mascot included.

The girls already have taken over the jobs allotted them and currently are carrying on, still partially under the supervision of the men they are to replace. Also they are in the midst of exhaustive lessons in navigation through Washington's complex traffic system, in addition to indoctrination into mechanical mysteries.

Beside serving as drivers on three-hour shifts all around the clock, they are dispatchers, mechanics and general handymen. Most of them are comparatively recent recruits into the corps and were trained at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, where WAAC officers, recent graduates of the intensive mechanics course at Holabird (Md.) Motor Base, gave them preliminary training.

Officers report that they are satisfied thoroughly with WAACS as drivers—they are likely to be more cautious and less temperamental than their masculine compatriots, 'tis said.

Draft Deferment On Dependency of Mother Is Denied

"Washie" Bratcher, District jitterbugs' musical delight, has been denied his second appeal for draft reclassification because of a dependent mother and will continue in class 1-A, D. C. Selective Service headquarters revealed yesterday.

The orchestra leader's case was one of 75 acted upon during the week ended June 5 by the Selective Service Board of Appeal, which denied the reclassifications requested by 43 other District registrants. Of these, a total of 25 had pleaded extreme hardship cases.

Seventeeen registrants, including three Metropolitan policemen, were transferred to class 2-A by the board, which placed two more in 3-A and four in 3-D. Cafe Manager Gets $50 Blackout Fine

David V. Yarborough, manager of Tucker's Cafe, 2521 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, was fined $50 by Judge Walter J. Casey in Municipal Court yesterday for violation of the June 23 blackout.

Air Raid Warden Joseph Soresi testified the defendant did not turn out his lights until warned and then turned the lights back on a half hour before the blackout ended.

2 More D. C. Officers Listed Among Prisoners of Japs

KIRKPATRICK

Lieut. Col. Lewis S. Kirkpatrick, who two years ago commanded Fort Drum in Manila Bay, and Capt. Robert G. Cooper, who served at Corregidor, were yesterday reported prisoners of Japan by the War Department.

They were among 789 U. S. soldiers reported interned in that country.

Cooper is the son of Col. Avery J. Kirkpatrick, stationed here with the War Department, and Mrs. Cooper of 4215 Thirty-seventh Street Northwest. Born in New Haven, Conn., January 9, 1918, he attended Washington High School in Mlushing, N. Y., Roosevelt High School in Honolulu and Columbia Preparatory School here before entering West Point in 1936. After training at Fort Monroe, Va., he was attached to the Coast Artillery and went to Corregidor in September, 1940. His last letter to his family was written shortly after the Pearl Harbor attack. His brothers are Lieut. Col. Avery J. Cooper, jr., now on overseas duty, and Kenneth Banks Cooper, a student at West Point.

Wife, Children Evacuated

Kirkpatrick volunteered to command Fort Drum shortly after his wife, who resides at 3400 Porter Street Northwest, and children, Roy, 5, and Mary, 2, were evacuated from the Philippines.

COOPER

He was born in Oklahoma City, Okla., on May 15, 1901. It was on May 15, which is also his daughter's birthday, that the message stating he was a prisoner of war came from the War Department. After graduation from West Point in 1924, Kirkpatrick was commissioned in the Infantry, served a detail in the Air Forces and finally joined the Coast Artillery. He went to the Philippines in February, 1939.

Three Brothers in Service

Kirkpatrick has three brothers and a brother-in-law in the services: Lieut. Col. Elmer Kirkpatrick, in the Army Engineer Corps; Lieuts. John and Claude Kirkpatrick, with the Navy overseas, and Lieut. Col. J. J. Mormon of the Army Air Forces.

Maryland men reported interned were: Lieut. Col. Reed Graves of Chesapeake City, Pvt. First Class James F. McGee of Baltimore, Staff Sergt. Edward Z. Miller of Hagerstown, Sergt. Dayton L. Potter of Baltimore, Staff Sergt. Leo Reider of Baltimore and Staff Sergt. Wyatt Warrenfeltz of Hagerstown.

Virginians reported prisoners: Second Lieut. George R. Bradshaw of Suffolk, Maj. Phillip Bress of Norfolk, Staff Sergt. Charles E. Burgan of Pennington Gap, Staff Sergt. Warren M. Hensley of Camp Pickett, Pvt. Floyd F. Laster of Inman, Master Sergt. Carl J. Milyneck of Newington, Tech. Sergt. Ralph W. Pope of Berryville and Maj. Erven C. Somerville of Phoebus.

Gene Krupa Guilty In Narcotics Case; Faces 1 to 6 Years

San Francisco, June 30 (INS).—Gene Krupa, the band leader, today was found guilty of using a minor to transport narcotics, a felony conviction which carries a manadatory penitentiary sentence of one to six years.

The idol of the Nation's "hep cats' was convicted after a two-day trial at which the mysteriously missing key witness, John Pateakos, Krupa's 20-year-old valet and property man, failed to appear.

Krupa earlier had pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of Pateakos by permitting him to have narcotics in his possession. The felony charge involved use of Pateakos by Krupa in transporting these same narcotics.

Krupa sent Pateakos, the State charged, to obtain two envelopes of marihuana cigarettes from Krupa's hotel room, and conceal them from Federal narcotics agents who had just arrested Krupa and were on their way to search his room.

Congress Decrees Death For Rollback Subsidy Plan

One Favorable Offset

Yesterday's severe jolt to the Administration's price line was broken by only one favorable offset. The Senate voted OPA the full $177,335,000 asked by Prentiss Brown for his buffeted agency, after the House had slashed price control funds to 130 million dollars. The Senate also wiped out House requirements for five-year business experience in OPA price-making posts, but approved the House action banning OPA grade labeling orders.

Only two speeches were made in defense of the Administration's limited subsidy program, but these posed ominous warnings to Congress.

"We are eliminating price rollbacks without offering anything in its place to hold the price line," Representative Patman (Democrat) of Texas told the House. "I believe this Congress is in a very vulnerable position. We are doing the very thing that will promote inflation."

In the Senate, Senator Maloney (Democrat) of Connecticut, only conferee who refused to sign the bill, said there was "no sensible alternative to limited subsidies," since Congress offered nothing in lieu of them. Said Maloney: "It is going to be extremely difficult now to prevent inflation."

Other Subsidies Validated

Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio, who had originally sponsored a 500-million-dollar rollback compromise, told the Senate that while the rollback is out, and subsidies to cut prices to consumers are forbidden, a number of other production subsidy programs are validated by the bill.

Under CCC buy-and-sell authority, limiting CCC losses from such operations to 150 million dollars, Taft explained that the CCC under the bill could continue to subsidize sugar beets up to 25 million dollars; dried beans, 10 million dollars; milk, 10 million dollars; cheese, 25 million dollars and foreign commodities, 9 million dollars. Taft said the bill also permits 25 million dollars for canning subsidies and 60 million dollars to underwrite prices on vegetable oils and fats. The Administration could continue to subsidize transportation of fuel oil, gas and coal to the East, and production of strategic metals.

In the House, Wolcott and Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee denied the food subsidy ban would spiral living costs. Wolcott insisted the only price rise that should result from the bill would be a 3-cent a pound retail increase in meat, and 5 cents more a pound on butter, when rollback subsidies die August 1.

In a statement, Deputy OPA Administrator Lou R. Maxon said Congress had given OPA "an almost insurmountable task" by outlawing consumer subsidies: "I honestly cannot see any other answer to our present food problem than subsidies."

Wallace Blast Ill-Timed, Some New Dealers Think

Vice President Henry A. Wallace, one of the New Deal's foremost champions, caused annoyance in some New Deal circles when he launched his attack upon Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, it was disclosed yesterday.

Jones, it was explained, had rolled up his sleeves to persuade his friends in Congress to back the President's subsidy program. He was making visible progress when the Wallace blast was issued.

There was no evidence of any direct connection, but Congress yesterday confirmed its death sentence against the Administration-sponsored subsidy-rollback plan.

Bills Call for Use Stamp Suspension

Identical bills to suspend until December 31 the $5 Federal "use" tax, due yesterday on private automobiles, which has netted the Treasury more than 200 million dollars in the last 16 months, were introduced yesterday by Representative Emanuel Celler and Senator James M. Mead (Democrats) of New York.

The Celler-Mead suspension would not apply to trucks or buses. Since Congress did not act on the bill yesterday, it had no effect to release motorists from the $5 payment, since they may not drive their cars today without the use stamp on their windshields.

Flow of Gas To East Hits All-Time High

A record-breaking rail movement of gasoline to the Atlantic seaboard was reported yesterday as part of petroleum developments which included new provisions for obtaining heating oil and for retiring old-type T gasoline coupons assigned to commercial vehicles.

The Petroleum Administration for War announced that 999,684 barrels of gasoline a day had been transported to the East in the week ended June 26. This was an increase of 29,149 barrels a day over the previous week and represented an all-time high.

Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes warned, however, that this improvement is being offset to a large extent by equally all-time high military demands.

Gasoline stocks rose from 27.6 per cent of normal last week to 29.5 this week, it was said. Any index number below 40 per cent is considered serious.

Heating oil coupons for the first heating period from July 1, 1943, to January 3, 1944, have been set at 10 gallons per coupon in the fuel oil rationing States, including the District of Columbia. These coupons are numbered 1. OPA officials said distribution of these coupons probably will be completed by the end of July.

OPA also announced that old type T coupons, now being discontinued as one way of combatting black market operations, will become invalid in the Eastern gasoline shortage area July 25. Dealers will have until August 5 to dispose of the T coupons, which will be supplanted by TT coupons, to a distributor or a rationing board.

Taxi Rules Revised

Taxicabs were placed under a revised set of wartime regulations by the Office of Defense Transportation yesterday in a continued effort to squeeze out all possible unnecessary mileage.

Main provision of the revised regulations involves the establishment of a single dispatching service for all taxi operators, eliminating previous practices of assigning business only to taxicabs belonging to the particular dispatching service called despite the fact that another cab may already be in the area of the call.

The new order also restricts trips to 10 miles beyond the corporate limits of any municipality of 10,000 or more population in which a trip originates. Previously, the regulation affected any municipality, thus working hardship on small communities where community-to-community travel is almost entirely by taxis now.

The mileage limit on the smaller communities is 25 miles. The order provides, however, that a passenger may not be transported to a point 10 or 25 miles off where obviously a transfer to another taxi must be made for completion of the trip.

Taxi drivers or operators, under the revised order, will no longer be permitted to use their vehicles for social or recreational purposes.

Other restrictions placed on drivers included a ban on transportation of commercial items except drugs, medicines, and equipment sought by licensed pharmacists and dentists, doctors, hospitals, or veterinarians.

Six Drivers Penalized

Three District Price and Rationing Boards reviewed cases of alleged pleasure driving violations this week and penalized six persons by "fining" them gas coupons, the District OPA announced yesterday.

Board 42 at the Langdon School, Twentieth and Evarts Streets Northeast, heard seven cases, dismissed four and held one over pending further investigation. Antonio Richardson, 1831 H Place Northeast, who offered no excuse, was fined 26 B coupons, and Thomas Graybill, 3013 Bladensburg Road Northeast, who also gave no excuse, was fined 17 C coupons.

Slash in Restaurant Prices Demanded in Petition

A petition asking an immediate rollback of restaurant prices in the District was presented to District OPA Director R. K. Thompson by Daniel H. Schwartz, president of the District Counsel of the Federal Workers of America (A. F. L.). The petition bore 5000 signatures.

The petition said restaurant prices were advancing beyond the pocketbooks of lower-salaried Federal workers and that rollbacks were necessary to keep Government employes eating.

Thompson told the delegation which presented the petition the District office had made a survey of the restaurant price situation here and had submitted recommendations to the OPA's regional office in New York. He did not disclose what the recommendations were.

Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, said last night that a survey made of food prices will be presented to Thompson today.

Wilson declared that the survey shows that commodity prices paid for food are three times greater at present than this time last year. He warned that unless food prices are controlled, it will be necessary to ask for an increase for meals served in restaurants.

Meanwhile, the last day of K, L, M and N red coupons for meat brought the usual end of period meat buying rush that left District meat supplies in most stores virtually depleted and the sale of chickens was at a near standstill as leaders pledged they would not purchase fowls at above ceiling prices, and black market shippers crossed Washington off their lists.

Still another development on the food front was the OPA's announcement ceiling prices on most grades of eggs would be increased one cent a dozen beginning tomorrow in the Washington area, with further increases possible between now and November.

Grade A eggs in cartons will be sold at 55 cents in Class I and Class II stores, 53 cents for Class IV stores and Grade B eggs will be sold at 49, 49 and 48 cents for Class I, II, III and IV stores respectively. Grade C and assorted eggs will be 46 and 45 cents.

ODT to Check With Stores On Deliveries

Department store representatives will meet today with W. M. Tobin, motor transport district manager of the ODT, to iron out difficulties in package deliveries, it was announced last night.

"This is one of a series of such sessions being held with industries in the Washington area, all of which have resulted in gratifying results in the conservation of gasoline," Tobin explained.

Carrying out a plan announced a week ago, the district manager, with Alvin S. McEvoy, assistant director, division of motor transport, ODT, yesterday burned "T" coupons representing 900,000 gallons of gasoline recalled in the District and surrounding counties during the past 60 days.

Since the beginning of the gasoline shortage, all ODT district offices have been reviewing truck, bus and taxicab motor fuel allotments, Tobin said. Two thousand fleet certificates of war necessity have been checked here.

"We expect to continue review of certificates of all truck operators," Tobin said, "until as much waste mileage and duplicate service as possible are eliminated."

Planning Board, Denied Funds, Bows Off Stage

By the Associated Press

The members of the National Resources Planning Board, which drafted a plan of cradle-to-the-grave social security and then failed to get another appropriation from Congress, sang their "swan song" to President Roosevelt yesterday.

The life of the agency expired at midnight when the fiscal year closed.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the board and uncle of the President, told reporters:

"Our swan song has been sung for us by Congress and now we bow off the stage.

"I don't feel badly about this, personally, because if an institution stays around for 10 years they've probably done all they can do, and let someone else try."

He was accompanied to the White House by Board Members Charles E. Merriam and George F. Yantis.

Anti-Aircraft Balloons Now Guard N. Y. Area

New York, June 30 (INS).—Anti-aircraft balloons—the first to appear in the New York area—are now a permanent part of Long Island's defense system, it was revealed today. Fifty of the giant gas bags made their baptismal ascent today.

Together with 11 supply and deficiency bills already sped to the White House, they constituted the second largest load of appropriations ever moved through any Congress. Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee estimated the grand total for this session at 115 billion dollars, as against the all time 147 billion dollar record of the last session.

Members still were wishfully hoping to clear away the last of the bills by late Saturday, so they can leave this weekend on their long scheduled midsummer recess.

But leaders said it would take night sessions and a miracle to come out of the money heap by Saturday night. Even if all pending appropriations, chief remaining work before Congress, are completed in three days, the President might further prolong the session by vetoing the 750-million-dollar Commodity Credit Corp. loan bill banning Administration consumer food subsidies.

Najera May Seek Mexican Presidency

Mexico City, June 30 (INS).—Castilla Najera, Mexican Ambassador to the United States, will leave his Washington post shortly to become a candidate for both the governorship of his native State of Durago and the Presidency of Mexico, the newspaper El Universal Grafico said today.

Analyst Gives Evidence at Viereck Trial

Dr. Werner B. Ellinger, propaganda analyst at the Library of Congress, testified in the District Court trial of George Sylvester Viereck yesterday that many Flanders Hall publications which Viereck backed were very similar in content to articles written originally in the German office of information in Berlin.

Viereck is charged with failing to register his activities as a foreign agent of the Nazi government fully with the State Department. A jury of three women and nine men is hearing the case, which is the third trial of Viereck. The first resulted in a conviction reversed by the United States Supreme Court. The second ended in a mistrial.

Among the books Dr. Ellinger found to be like those of the German office were "Polish Atrocities," "Children of Slums," "100 Families that Rule the Empire," and "Britain's Stranglehold on India."

The main difference Dr. Ellinger noted was that on several occasions in the Flanders Hall publications, references of an anti-Semitic nature were excluded as well as those which dealt with Hitler and the National Socialist party in Germany.

Thomas H. Morgan, special agent for the FBI, earlier testified that the accounts of Flanders Hall, a New Jersey company, showed former Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat) of West Virginia and Representative Stephen A. Day (Republican) of Illinois, had bought almost all the copies of books they had written and which had been published by the company.

Day, testimony showed, wrote, "We Must Save the Republic," Holt wrote, "We is Who Among the War Mongers." Holt was said to have paid $1000 which took all the copies published. Day was said to have paid $1164.

Mr. Morgan also disclosed that Viereck had a separate account with Flanders Hall. He said this was given the title, "Viereck Operations." Previously witnesses testified Viereck, paid $22,500 to get control of the company. The Government charges Viereck used the firm to distribute German propaganda.

Senate Votes 18 War Agencies Total of 2936 Millions

in it could be used to pay the salary of any official paid $4500 or more a year unless he had been appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

The amendment was sponsored by Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee, who is the author of a similar $4500 confirmation bill, now pending in the House, which would affect all Federal employes.

Whether the House would consent to the Senate confirmation clause was doubtful. The matter will have to be settled in conference. Some lawmakers believed that under the language of the McKellar amendment, all persons paid more than $4500 by the war agencies would be automatically out of a job if the bill were enacted, because their names would not have been presented for confirmation.

By a 38-to-26 vote, the Senate rejected an amendment by Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Oklahoma to raise a four-million-dollar appropriation for the Office of Civilian Defense (OCD) to five million dollars.

Apparently in a more liberal mood than the House, the Senate earlier had voted to restore the full $177,335,000 which the Office of Price Administration had asked to carry on its work for the coming 12 months. The House had knocked off 47 million dollars and OPA Chief Prentiss M. Brown said he couldn't operate under the drastically reduced budget.

The Senate also voted a $36,150,000 administrative fund for the Board of Economic Warfare (BEW).

In doing so, the Senators added a stipulation that after next August 15, BEW must file with the Secretary of State a statement, signed by a majority of its members, outlining its program plans before procuring supplies, equipment or services outside the United States.

Four times in one hundred and sixty-seven years America has gone to War to keep its Freedom.

And on this Independence Day, the American Flag again symbolizes that FREE MEN can FIGHT...will FIGHT...and will WIN against men of regimentation, bigotry and hatred.

That tattered . . . shell-torn . . . sun-faded flag, up there in the picture, is proof of this.

It flew over the light cruiser Boise the night she went into action against an overwhelming Jap battle fleet. 107 men died under that Flag. But when the action ended . . . 3 Jap cruisers and 3 Jap destroyers lay at the bottom of the Coral Sea, their guns silent forever.

The next time you look at the American Flag, and a choke comes into your throat, think only of this: The War Bonds you buy today will keep the guns of ships—like the Boise—firing . . . and firing . . . and firing.

Old Line G. O. P. Chiefs Favor Chicago for Convention

THE manner in which old line G. O. P. leaders are already maneuvering backstage to pick Chicago for the Republican National Convention next June indicates the deadly grimness with which they are out to do two things: (1) block Wendell Willkie, (2) dominate the Republican platform in regard to postwar isolation.

To this end, reactionary G. O. Piers are pointing out that Chicago is the most important convention city in the country; is in the center of the U. S. A.; that more political gatherings have been held there than in any other city.

Backstage, however, what they are whispering is something else again. In private their chief argument for Chicago is the fact that the anti-Willkie, proisolationist Chicago Tribune dominates the city

To hold the convention under the protecting wing of the Tribune, they figure, would be a powerful influence in putting across their candidate and platform. If the convention gets deadlocked, there is nothing like the constant day-to-day pounding of a big newspaper to stampede delegates.

On the other hand, liberal Republican leaders want the convention held in a more neutral city such as Cleveland or Detroit. They accept the geographical advantages of Chicago, but maintain that Detroit or Cleveland are just as centrally located and not dominated by the Tribune.

Interventionist Republicans

Meanwhile the nonisolationist peace bloc inside the Republican Party is growing. They believe that the United States cannot possibly pull in its horns from world affairs after the war, and that it would be political suicide for the Republican Party to take the lead in so doing.

Typical of this new, more liberal wing is Montana's G. O. P. National Committeeman Dan Whetstone, a member of the G. O. P advisory committee which will meet soon to formulate future foreign policy.

Whetstone's peace proposals, briefly summarized are:

"A world police force, under law, disarming of the Axis nations, punishment of the tyrannical Nazi and Fascist leaders of Germany and Italy and the arrogant war lords of Japan.

"We must help the nations that have lost their sovereignty and have been reduced to slavery but should permit them to establish the form of government that to them seems best, encouraging the aspiration of democracy but not insisting that any particular system of political or social life be adhered to; broadly we desire to realize human freedom, making sure that at all times it is not of such pattern as to breed dictatorship and set up a menacing military machine to threaten the future peace of the world."

OCD Survey

OFFICE of Civilian Defense has made a house-to-house survey of United States cities, gathering information on individual families and their readiness to meet an emergency. Block leaders in some of the poorer sections have done an abbreviated, unique job of reporting. Samples:

"Man hit by automobile—speaks broken English."

"This woman is ill. The gas has been turned off."

"Sophie is married to a sailor, and her whereabouts are unknown."

"Woman and house neat but bare."

"Couple breaking up home; friends helping."

"Milk needed for the baby, and father unable to supply it."

"Woman is willing to struggle if given an opportunity."

"Applicant and wife are illegally separated."

"These people are extremely cultured. Something should be done about their condition."

"Until a year ago," this applicant delivered ice, and was a man of affairs."

Churchill the Prophet

STUDENTS of air power have dug up an old statement of Winston Churchill's, written in 1917, which reveals an amazing foresight in the possibilities and limitations of aerial bombing.

As everybody knows, the Nazi blitz against England, intended to terrorize the people, failed in its objective. On the other hand, the more scientific bombing of the Continent by the R. A. F. and A. A. F.—strategic bombing—is now expected to bring Hitler to his knees.

Churchill seemed to foresee both of these developments when he said in a paper on air power, written in 1917, that nothing we know about warfare can lead us to believe that bombing for terror alone can cause such a morale collapse as to force a major nation to sue for peace.

Churchill emphasized that air power must single out and attack transportation, factories, and other enemy installations, upon which the enemy war-making ability depends.

England's survival of the blitz gives dramatic support to the first part of that statement, and Allied air power is now proving the second part.

Navy Notes on Knox

SECRETARY of Navy Knox now saves time by lunching in his office instead of going out. A special kitchen has been rigged up next to his office, and the mess boys serve Knox in a private anteroom . . . He always invites other officials to lunch, talks business . . . He eats no dessert, takes no siesta . . . Knox's day begins with a 9:30 meeting with Admiral King and other admirals, discussing war developments of the previous 24 hours. Admiral Train, Chief of Naval Intelligence, gives them the latest news . . . For a conference with Secretary of War Stimson, Knox generally goes to Stimson's office across the river, since Stimson outranks him . . . But if several admirals are to be involved in the conference, Knox telephones to Stimson and says, "Harry, can you come over to see us?" . . . Knox goes to church every Sunday—when his wife is in town . . . One of his best friends in Washington is John Sullivan, Assistant Secretary of Treasury. Both men come from the same home town—Manchester, N. H. . . . Though a Republican in a Democratic Cabinet, Knox is credited with playing no politics.

Dozens of Food Control Plans Under Study

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes yesterday disclosed that dozens of different food programs have been under discussion within Administration inner circles for several months—and that Judge Marvin Jones, new War Food Administrator, is going to be let in on them.

He announced President Roosevelt's appointment of Judge Jones to the Committee on War Mobilization and to the War Production Board. Chester C. Davis, former WFA head, was a member of neither and gave his inability to get at the "nerve center where policies are made" as a cause for his letter of resignation.

Director Byrnes said the President was accustomed to meeting with the mobilization committee and he thought it would be a good idea to have Judge Jones there when food and related problems were discussed.

Asked whether this country was contemplating a tryout of the British system of government purchase of all foods and their resale through regular distributing channels, the mobilization chief declared "dozens of different programs of that character" have been under discussion. He said he did not know, however, that any specific plan as a "substitute for the subsidy" had been agreed upon.

The WFA has been moving toward a tigher control over food for many months, taking over the 1943 canning packs of major vegetables, announcing intentions to purchase the entire 1943 peanut crop, controlling potato shipments, and requisitioning elevator corn stocks. Except for the canning crops, no definite subsidies have been involved in these movements, however. Officials have estimated the Government will lose money on some of the peanuts, and probably make money on some of them.

Other food developments yesterday included:

1. The Weather Bureau reported generally favorable weather during the past week for cotton, corn, wheat, truck and miscellaneous crops. An improvement after losses during a cold, wet spring was noted thoughout the country, except in the far Southwest where critical drought conditions continued. Severe heat along the Eastern Seaboard claimed a high moisture toll, but pastures and crops generally held their own.

2. The Office of Price Administration placed price ceilings at wholesale levels on 48 species of fresh fish. The new prices, officials said, represent a substantial rollback from those currently paid and will be followed soon by retail ceilings reflecting the same reductions.

3. The War Meat Board in Chicago reported a slight improvement in the beef procurement program of the armed forces, while Joseph G. Montague, general counsel for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Growers Association, blamed meat shortages on an "unofficial group of policymakers close to the President."

He told the Senate Agriculture Committee the meat industry was about ready to begin operating effectively when its "plan" was wrecked by the rollback subsidy program announced for meat butter and coffee. He said cattle prices are "high enough" and competition will keep them from going higher—if there is no more "interference with marketing." Packers, however, have contended they cannot pay current livestock prices and still operate under the retail ceilings on beef.

4. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported prices of farm products are at 116 per cent of parity, the highest level reached since February, 1930. Prices farmers pay for goods used for "family living" are at 167 per cent of the 1910-14 average, it reported—or 15 points higher than in June of last year. The general level of prices received by farmers is up to 100 per cent of the same average—or 39 points above those of last June, it declared.

Kuhn, Bund Chief Leaves N. Y. Prison

Dannemora, N. Y., June 30 (AP).—Fritz Kuhn, former national leader of the German-American Bund, who was paroled June 18 by New York in custody of the Federal Government, left Clinton Prison today, presumably headed for internment.

The 48-year-old former Bund leader was sentenced to serve two and a half to five years following his conviction in November, 1939, of grand larceny and forgery involving Bund funds. He and 10 other former Bundists were deprived of American citizenship through denaturalization proceedings last March.

FCC Gives More Time On Bookkeeping Order

By the Associated Press

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday extended until January 1, 1944, the date by which 50 independent telephone companies must file statements of their proposed methods for keeping certain accounting records. The commission said that meanwhile it would call a conference on the order, probably in the latter part of July.

The delay was requested by the United States Independent Telephon Association and by two independent companies, the Nebraska Continental Telephone Co. and the Home Telephone and Telegraph Co. of Fort Wayne, Ind.

The FCC also authorized R. C. A. Communications, Inc., to intervene in proceedings on the application for merger of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Cos.

THINK
travel
THE type of travel represented by trips home for the week end, trips to other cities to visit friends, and other trips for social or pleasure purposes, is strictly non-essential and should cease," says Joseph B. Eastman, Director Office of Defense Transportation.
Organized troop movements take a large part of the passenger cars. With the cars left the railroads must carry every other sort of essential travel—soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guards on furlough—families visiting servicemen in camp—businessmen and other workers on war business.
The Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad today carries 80 per cent more passengers than last year, nearly five times the traffic carried in 1940, just before the war.
Furlough travel at times is so heavy that we find it necessary to discontinue the sale of tickets for some trains. Often even standing room is not available.
Every patriotic American is urged to be SURE his trip is necessary before he buys a ticket. Please do not make non-essential trips, but if you MUST go travel if possible on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday; limit your hand baggage to actual requirements; other baggage can be checked, and if your plans are changed cancel your reservations promptly.
We will appreciate your patriotic co-operation, and we know you will understand.

Steinbeck Tells of U. S. Fliers' Peculiar Superstitions

John Steinbeck, the distinguished novelist and playwright, now on an assignment in England as a war correspondent for The Washington Post, continues his description of the life of the crew of an American bomber.

By John Steinbeck

Bomber Station in England, June 30.—It is a bad night in the barracks, such a night as does not happen very often. It is impossible to know how it starts. Nerves are a little thin and no one is sleepy. The tail gunner of the other outfit in the room gets down from his upper bunk and begins rooting about on the floor.

"What's the matter?" the man on the lower bunk asks.

"I lost my medallion," the tail gunner says.

No one asks what it was, a St. Christopher or a good luck piece. The fact of the matter is that it is his medallion and he has lost it. Everyone gets up and looks. They move the double-decker bunk out from the wall. They empty all the shoes. They look behind the steel lockers. They insist that the gunner go through all his pockets. It isn't a good thing for a man to lose his medallion.

Perhaps there has been an uneasiness before. This sets it. The uneasiness creeps all through the room. It takes the channel of being funny. They tell jokes; they rag one another. They ask shoe sizes of one another to outrage their uneasiness. "What size shoes you wear, Brown? I get them if you conk out." The thing runs bitterly through the room.

And then the jokes stop. There are many little things you do when you go out on a mission. You leave the things that are to be sent home if you have an accident. You leave them under your pillow, your photographs and the letter you wrote, and your ring. They're under your pillow and you don't make up your bunk.

That must be left unmade so that you can slip right in when you get back. No one would think of making up a bunk while its owner is on a mission. You go out cleanshaven, too, because you are coming back and you make dates for that night to keep your date. You project your mind into the future and the things you are going to do then.

In the barracks they tell of presentiments they have heard about. There was the radio man who one morning folded his bedding neatly on his cot and put his pillow on top. And he folded his clothing into a neat parcel and cleared his locker. He had never done anything like that before. And sure enough, he was shot down that day.

The tail gunner still hasn't found his medallion. He has gone through his pockets over and over again. The brutal talk goes on until one voice says, "For God's sake shut up. It's after midnight. We've got to get some sleep."

The lights are turned out. It is pitch black in the room, for the blackout curtains are drawn tight. A man speaks in the darkness, "I wish I was in that ship by now." He knows that he will be all right when the mission starts. It's this time of waiting that hurts, and tonight it has been particularly bad.

It is quiet in the room, and then there is a step, and then a great clatter. A new arrival trying to get to his bunk in the dark has stumbled over the gun rack. The room breaks into loud curses. Every one curses the new arrival. They tell him where he came from and where they hope he will go. It is a fine, noisy outburst and the tension goes out of the room. The evil thing has gone.

You are conscious, lying in your bunk, of a droning sound that goes on and on. It is the Royal Air Force going out for night bombing again. There must be hundreds of them—a big raid. The sound has been going on all evening and it goes on for another hour. Hundreds of Lancasters with hundreds of tons of bombs. And when they come back you will go out.

You cannot call the things that happen to bombing crews superstition. Tension and altitude do strange things to a man. At 30,000 feet the body is living in a condition it was not born to withstand. A man is breathing oxygen from a tube and his eyes and ears are working in the reduced pressure. It is little wonder, then, that he sometimes sees things that are not there and does not see things that are there. Gunners have fired on their own ships and others have poured great bursts into empty air, thinking they saw a swastika. The senses are not trustworthy. And the sky is treacherous with the flak. The flak bursts about you and sometimes the fragments come tearing through your ship. The fighters stab past you, flaring with their guns. And if you happen to see little visions now and then, why, that's bound to happen. And if on your intensified awareness, small incidents are built up with meanings, why, such things always happen under tension. Ghosts have always ridden through skies, and if your body and nerves are strained with altitude, too, such things are bound to happen.

The barrack room is very silent. From a corner comes a light snore. Someone is talking in his sleep. First a sentence mumbled and then "Helen, let's go in the ferris wheel now."

There is secret sound from the far wall and then a tiny clink of metal. The tail gunner is still feeling through his pockets for his medallion.

Child Care

Senate passage by a unanimous vote of the Thomas child-care bill affords hope that this vitally important measure will be enacted into law before Congress takes its summer recess. The House can, if it desires, give speedy indorsement to the Senate action. Extended consideration of the bill seems scarcely necessary, since thorough hearings have already been held by the upper chamber. If the House acts promptly, it will be possible to embark at once upon an effective program for the care of children of mothers employed in war areas.

The urgency of such a program has already been emphasized by The Post, both editorially and in articles by Agnes Meyer. Our failure to provide adequately for the supervision and nutrition of their children has been the prime barrier to the full employment of women in war industries and in other important kinds of war work. It has been one of the important reasons behind absenteeism. It has resulted in a dangerous spread of juvenile delinquency.

The program sponsored by Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah would embrace all the essential aspects of child care—health, recreation, education, and general welfare. It would include the supervision of foster homes and a counseling service for working mothers. Objections to the bill raised by Catholic welfare agencies have been met through minor modifications made in the Senate. In operation the program would blend the efforts of Federal, State and local governments, utilizing community welfare and educational agencies, both public and private. It would function with a minimum of centralized control, through recognized, well-established channels, affording the American people a chance for direct participation at the community level.

There is no time to be lost in getting this work under way. We urge the House to follow the example of the Senate and place this piece of legislation on its must calendar before it takes its vacation. By doing so, it can give a real impetus to the war effort and help in the solution of a basic social problem.

Labor Responsibility

The most responsible leaders of American labor, including the top men of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O., have accepted the Connally-Smith law with good grace and in a cooperative spirit. They do not like it. They share the President's view that one section of the law will hinder rather than help them in holding the rank and file of labor to its no-strike pledge. But because they are good citizens, aware that union prerogatives entail union obligations, they can be counted upon to work conscientiously for the maintenance of orderly labor relations. These men—indeed all organized workers throughout the United States—have John L. Lewis to thank for the Connally-Smith law. It is not only the immediate safety of the Nation which Lewis has imperiled by his behavior, but the whole future of the labor union movement as a healthy factor in our democratic society. By the abuse of his power he has created a popular indignation which may block the growth of unionism toward full responsibility and real economic security.

However, it cannot be forgotten that Philip Murray himself had some share in building the autocratic power which Lewis of late has been wielding so irresponsibly. He and Thomas Kennedy, at a time when they were both international officers of the United Mine Workers Union, resigned from the National Mediation Board after that agency refused to enforce a union shop contract upon the captive coal mines in 1941. Yet, interestingly enough, one of the expressed reasons for the board's refusal was a fear that the granting of such power to any union might result in governmental restrictions upon all unions. A concurring opinion written by Dr. Frank Graham, public member of the board, was so prophetic that its concluding paragraph seems worth quoting here:

> As we look down the centuries and back to this the world's darkest hour, we see centuries-old charters of human liberty torn and trampled under the ruthless heels of dictators. As we look around the earth today we see freedom and democracy, lately the goal of modern nations, now renounced or crushed in more than half the world. As we look inside the totalitarian nations we see subjugated the most precious institutions of human freedom—the church, parliament, the press, the radio, the university—and the labor union high on the list in its once vital democratic meanings to the freedom and security of the millions who now in servile subjection do the work of the totalitarian states. This is part of the ground and background of our opposition to any recommendation which, through the logic and force of governmental sanction, may likely lead to governmental limitation upon the rightful freedom and function of the labor union as one of the most indispensable of the free institutions now imperiled in the world.

After the dissolution of the Mediation Board, the union shop contract was imposed on the coal industry by a nongovernmental arbitration panel. Through it John Lewis was given an almost absolute sovereignty over the working lives of coal miners. Absolute power almost inevitably breeds abuse of power. And it is this abuse of power which represents the real threat to the progress and security of the labor union movement today. For it results in a loss of the public support which is the controlling factor in the growth or restriction of all our institutions. The attitude adopted by the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. leaders in the face of their first major setback provides the best means of recovering public support and assuring a resumption of labor progress.

Scolding The Press

It is not a dignified spectacle to see the President use his press conference time after time as a vehicle for the flaying of the free press of America. On Tuesday he attained a new peak in scolding. There was nothing particularistic about it. It was all-inclusive: columnists and commentators, news reporters and radio analysts. He just stopped short, as one of the scoldees put it, "of holding them collectively responsible for the wave of feuds, resignations, recriminations and widespread turmoil that have attended domestic phases of the war program in recent weeks."

Such a comprehensive excoriation is simply not justified. The newspapers have not invented or even fomented any of the wranglings which of late have disfigured the Washington scene. They did not cause the rumpus which terminated when Mr. Davis quit his office as Food Administrator. They did not set Mr. Ickes and the War Labor Board at loggerheads. They did not inspire either Mr. Jones' sabotage of the BEW or Mr. Wallace's blistering counterattack. These troubles were generated within the Administration till by the force of their internal combustion they blew up. Even Mr. Elmer Davis is now forced to admit that the recent sound and fury constitutes legitimate news. The newspaper press would be untrue to its trust if it failed to record it. Only by having the news will the American people be able to insist upon improvement.

The time has come to ask what is back of the President's onslaught. Is the President seeking to undermine the confidence of the American people in their free press? It looks like it. The President is not content with criticism of the way newspapers are conducted or of their news sense of proportion. He is constantly casting slurs at the integrity of the newsmen. They are accused of being artists in color, not for the fun of it, but because of orders from their "bosses." Such charges are questionable in taste, but, more importantly, they are serious from the standpoint of public policy. If the President were to succeed in undermining public confidence in the free press, serious consequences might follow. After all, the press is the cornerstone of our free institutions, and we should be well on the way to the loss of other freedoms if the people's faith in the press were lost. It is only when the people have lost faith in their institutions that the man on horseback has a smooth ride.

We prefer to think that the criticism is merely the spleen of a man who is harassed by the delinquencies of his Administration. It is human to find whipping boys. However, it may be dangerous for the President in this case to make the newspaper press a whipping boy. That will retard instead of furthering both the war effort and the maintenance of a free America. If the Administration's house is not in order, as it isn't, then the honest thing to do is to try to put it right, not to put up camouflage.

Racial Study

There is real need for a sound and searching investigation into the conditions responsible for our recent outbreak of race antagonism. Riots such as those which occurred at Detroit, Beaumont, Mobile, Los Angeles, are by no means matters of purely local concern. They make ugly splotches on our national record, on the validity of our war aims. They spring from prejudices, from educational deficiencies, from economic injustices, for which the Nation as a whole must share in guilt and shame. They are, therefore, an altogether proper subject for congressional inquiry.

But in the whole congressional roster it would be difficult to find any individual less qualified to conduct such an inquiry than Representative Martin Dies of Texas. In the work of his Committee on Un-American Activities, Mr. Dies has shown scant tolerance, let alone regard, for minority rights. His has been the record of a prosecutor, not an investigator—and, at that, of a prosecutor more eager to substantiate sensational charges than to uncover basic causes. His methods have been high-handed, careless in the extreme and marked by prejudices which make it incongruous for him to examine the prejudices of others.

Who can point to a single constructive effort on the part of Martin Dies to promote economic opportunities for Negroes—even in his home State, where they are helplessly disfranchised? What effort has he ever made to improve conditions for Mexicans who are as impoverished and oppressed in Texas as in California? His intemperance regarding Japanese has already been shown by his absurd charges against the War Relocation Authority. Yet it is obvious that any investigation into racial antagonism must be animated by a sympathetic concern for the rights and welfare of minority groups.

The problem calls for a congressional committee of real stature, for investigators who possess the social insight and economic understanding needed to get at the roots of our difficult interracial relations. We need to discover much more than proximate causes. What we must achieve through a study of this problem is some means of eradicating the conditions which have created it. America's greatness has stemmed from the variety of its racial backgrounds. Its greatness in the future will depend upon their learning to live together in full harmony and unity.

What We Spend

Yesterday, marked the end of the fiscal year of our Government. What is it likely to show? That expenditures are substantially below the estimates of outlays contained in the President's budget message last January. Actual expenditures currently total between 75 and 76 billion dollars, while last January estimated expenditures were set at more than 80 billion dollars. In the circumstances one would expect that the estimated size of the Government deficit for the year would have to be revised downward. That is the case, but owing to an overoptimistic January estimate of receipts, the actual deficit is expected to be only $2,400,000,000 below the 57-billion-dollar estimated deficit.

Thus, with total Government receipts not likely to exceed 21 billion dollars for the year, much less than 30 per cent of the cost of the war and the civilian establishments is being covered by taxes. The remainder of the expenses is being met by borrowing. That is a wretchedly poor showing. Moreover, a large proportion of the money borrowed to finance the deficit has been contributed by commercial banks, and this exacerbates the inflation by the tremendous Government outlay on nonconsumable goods. The reasons for the rising living costs that OPA has found it impossible to control are to be found chiefly in the figures of Government income and outgo rather than in the undeniable administrative shortcomings of that agency.

Kerr Amendment

The Senate did well in refusing to sanction the compromise proposal recommended by its conferees for inclusion of the Kerr amendment in the urgent deficiency appropriation bill. It is to be hoped that it will adhere to this stand despite the strong support of the amendment in the House yesterday. The issue goes far beyond the personal interests of the three individuals whom the amendment would drive from Government service. It involves a basic constitutional principle.

A good deal of passion has been aroused over this issue. And perhaps the passion has obscured the real fundamentals involved. We urge upon members of the House at this time a fresh consideration of the problem—not in terms of the personalities and records of the three proscribed men, but in terms of the conscientious objections raised by the Attorney General, by eminent Senators and by some of their own colleagues whose knowledge of the Constitution and devotion to its principles must command their respect.

Let us set aside any legalistic wrangling as to the technical constitutionality of the Kerr proposal. The fact remains that it is a method of penalizing specified individuals for certain opinions which they are alleged to have held long ago. As such, it is repugnant to the spirit of our most valued traditions. Even if Congress has authority to follow such a course, it is unbecoming to its dignity to do so. The procedure is stamped with the hallmark of pettiness.

Congress must act on the deficiency appropriation before it takes its summer recess. It should be noted that those who support the Kerr amendment simply assert a prerogative of Congress. But those who oppose it do so as a matter of principle. They cannot yield without sacrificing their convictions. A yielding on the part of the supporters would involve merely self-denial—a self-restraint which is the test of statesmanship. If they can bring themselves to make this renunciation, members of the House will be able to take their vacations with easier minds and freer consciences.

RETURN

The day that Rip Van Winkle came Back to his shrew was like a flame,
With motes of sunlight glittering
Upon each half-remembered thing,—
The drinking-trough like gilded stone;
His golden garden, overgrown;
His grizzled helpmeet, still a scold,
Her lined face sharp in the sun's gold.
To his dim sleep-accustomed eyes
The village seemed a Paradise
Where glinting streets and roof-tops grew
Into a pattern that he knew;
And one white cock with shimmering comb
Piped the yawning truant home!

Comment In England

(The following editorial on recent statements of the American policy toward Algiers appeared on Wednesday in the Manchester Guardian.)

"The message sent by a commentator of the Associated Press of America on the treatment of the leaders at Algiers will have been read by most people here with astonishment and displeasure.

"It reads like a gratuitous insult to General de Gaulle, to the Committee on National Liberation and to Europe. Its tone is that of reproof to a number of tiresome and unimportant people engaged in trivial disputes that are upsetting the plans and arrangements of an authority to whose superior wisdom they owe implicit obedience.

Has Made Good Progress

"The truth is that the Committee of National Liberation has made good progress toward the settlement of difficult and complicated problems.

"It includes men of distinction whose capacity and integrity are well known to their British and American colleagues on different national bodies. It has found a solution for the immediate military problem by setting up a committee to prepare for the fusion of the fighting sources under De Gaulle and those under Giraud.

"Its latest meetings have been held in a cordial atmosphere and M. Monnet, who is well known in the United States, has given an excellent report of the temper of the discussions.

"Suddenly the world is informed that the Government of the United States wants to make it known that it will stand no nonsense from these factions and fractious intriguers and that the British government entirely agrees with that attitude.

"Few will believe that the commentator is entitled to speak for serious official opinion in the United States. Fewer still will believe the British government has had anything to do with the publication of this message.

"Nobody thinks that De Gaulle has made no mistakes; he may conceivably have more vanity and ambition than most politicians; clearly he has faults that have been the cause of trouble and bad blood.

"But he represents more than anybody else the France that resists and this strident message is sent out to the world at a moment when the Committee of Liberation has surmounted its chief difficulties. De Gaulle himself has made a most loyal speech, addressed to a great audience that was clearly under his spell, in which he acknowledged in the most handsome manner the debt of France to Great Britain and the United States.

Allies' Spirit Protested

"This message would be less harmful if the management of French questions by the Allies in the last six months had not shown an influence and a temper which finds in it much irresponsible and ill-mannered expression. Some of the most distinguished American writers, including Walter Lippmann and Edgar Mowrer, have made strong protests within the last few days against the spirit in which the problems of North Africa have been treated by the Allies.

"It is easy to judge from the impression made upon these discerning and perceptive American minds how sensitive Frenchmen feel about it. To act as if France had forfeited her right to manage her own affairs, to push her Committee of National Liberation on one side and talk as this message talks of imposing American discipline on French politics is to challenge the self-respect of a great and sensitive people.

"The policy is as shortsighted as it is unjust. If General Giraud has services to render to France, and nobody doubts he has, nothing is more certain to weaken his position than to make him the agent of American power."

An editorial in the Yorkshire Post said:

"The rather curious statement issued by the Associated Press on the authority of its Washington commentator . . . amounts to a not over-polite hint to De Gaulle that he better behave himself or Washington will see that he is put in his place. . . . Nothing would do more to make Giraud unpopular in occupied France than any suggestion that American influences are aiming to thrust him upon the French people as their leader at De Gaulle's expense."

Kuehn's Sentence

I inquire why no questions were raised by your editorial column as to the story in your paper of the German spy Bernard Julius Kuehn, who was apprehended assisting, for the sum of some $84,000, the Honolulu Japanese vice consul Otojuro Okuda with plans for the sneak attack on our fleet on December 7, 1941, which caused the loss of numerous ships and almost 4000 American lives, thousands of the bodies of whom are still in the sunken foul depths of the battleships Arizona, Oklahoma and Utah.

Why should this murderer's just sentence to death by a firing squad be commuted to 50 years at hard labor? By whose orders was it done? And why is his family, who seemed to have been equally guilty, merely interned for the duration?

Drawing The Fangs

By Barnet Nover

The U-Boat Menace Curbed

FROM THE TIME he assumed the premiership in the dark days of April, 1940, up to the present, Winston Churchill's speeches have combined robust, if sometimes long-range, optimism with astringent realism.

Churchill has not permitted himself and has always cautioned his people against indulging in any wishful thinking. He has always emphasized the great difficulties that must be overcome, the heavy price that had yet to be paid, before the promise of final success will be translated into full achievement. He has done so again in the speech he delivered at the Guildhall Wednesday.

Yet that speech, like others he has made during recent months, had the resounding ring of victory. Anxious though Churchill is to prevent the growth of complacency on the Allied side, the pressure of good news has begun to override the instinct of caution.

THUS in this latest address Churchill did not hesitate to proclaim the fact that during May and June the Allies won a "total victory" over the U-boat.

The Battle of the Atlantic, he said, became, during that period, a "massacre of U-boats." More than 30 of the German undersea craft were sunk during May alone. Allied shipping, on the other hand, was almost unmolested.

Now it is impossible to magnify the importance of this news.

It does not mean the U-boat is no longer a menace. It does not mean that we shall henceforth be able to maintain an unbroken and unmolested bridge of ships between the American and British arsenals and the various fighting fronts.

The U-boat will probably continue to plague our overseas supply routes in the North and South Atlantic as long as the war lasts even as it did in the last war when 19 months intervened between the peak of U-boat depredations and Germany's surrender.

It is unlikely, however, that the U-boat will ever again in this war be the menace it was last year and and the early months of this year. Then an average of around 1,000,000 deadweight tons of Allied shipping a month were being sent to the bottom, more tonnage than the Allies were able to replace until recently.

IN VIEW OF Churchill's revelations of what has been happening in the Atlantic recently, it is instructive to recall that the greatest number of German submarines ever sunk in any month of World War I was 13. That occurred in September, 1917, when the tide had already begun to turn against the U-boat.

Yet during the following year, the last year of that war, there was never a month in which Germany did not have between 110 and 140 U-boats in active service. There were 129 prowling the Atlantic in September, 1918, and of these only seven were sent to the bottom.

Indeed, the percentage of U-boats sunk to U-boats in service in the last phase of the war was only between five and six per cent. Yet the evidence is clear that by the summer and fall of 1918 the morale of German U-boat crews had taken a nose dive.

Germany has many more submarines in service now than she had then. But the percentage of losses, as well as the numerical total, was very much greater last May and probably during June of this year than at any time during the 1917-1918 period.

It is a fair assumption, therefore, that despite the special rewards and special treatment given by the Nazi regime to U-boat crews the morale of those men has been dealt a body blow.

BUT THAT IS not all. Of equal importance is the fact that the turn which the Battle of the Atlantic has taken is bound to weaken the morale of the German people generally.

Until recently the Nazi press and radio did everything possible to emphasize the importance of U-boat activities in the Atlantic. This propaganda campaign had a double motivation. In the first place it was designed to draw the attention of Germans away from the German army's defeat at Stalingrad and in Tunisia. It was also designed to assure the Germans that no second land front in Europe was possible since the Atlantic supply line upon which such a front would have to depend was being cut by German submarines.

The latter hope is now proving illusory. It is no longer the Allies but Germany which is on the defensive in the Atlantic. The proportion of Allied ships sunk to ships in service is going down; the proportion of U-boats being sunk to U-boats in service has been going up.

With the Luftwaffe declining relative to Allied air power and the German armies reduced to the status of a garrison force guarding Fortress Europe, the U-boat is Hitler's last offensive weapon. It is still capable of doing damage to the Allies. But its fangs are being drawn. That is a fact of transcendent importance.

Water for V Gardens

Much has been written throughout the spring regarding shortage of water, and it has been stated that victory gardens should not be watered.

Being a victory gardener who has given up several activities since February to devote hours of work each day to my garden, not because I wanted to work so hard, but because, having the space, I felt it my patriotic duty to use it, I have been deeply concerned. It is heartbreaking during this long, dry spell to read we should not use enough water to keep our vegetables alive. My garden represents a large outlay of money as well as the time of several people. I had to pay to have trees and bushes cut down, sod removed and initial digging done, not to mention buying seeds, fertilizer, insecticides and tools. I am happy to say it is going to be a great success, providing plants do not dry up.

I have several suggestions to offer, which, if thoughtfully followed by every one of us, would inconvenience no one very much, yet leave enough water for us gardeners when needed:

1. Do not wash porches and pavements with the hose (a lazy man's way of sweeping).
2. Do not wash dishes or clothes under running water (a habit especially prevalent among apartment house dwellers who pay for neither the water nor the heat).
3. Do not take long shower baths—a shorter one will make one just as clean and save gallons of water. (One can even be clean with sponge baths taken from the stationary basin.)
4. Do not water lawns. While I dislike seeing my lawn dry, I can live nicely without green grass to look at, but not without food.
5. Do not let water run unnecessarily.
6. Repair leaks and replace worn washers immediately. If renting, report trouble to agent immediately.

I'd like to quote the poem, "Cooperation," by J. Mason Knox:

It ain't the guns nor armament,
Nor funds that they can pay,
But the close cooperation,
That makes them win the day.

It ain't the individual,
Nor the army as a whole,
But the everlasting teamwork
Of every bloomin' soul.

Letters To Soldiers

Supplementing the letter under title of "Sailor's Mail," which appeared in your paper on June 14:

Not only should there be something done about getting mail to men on ships, but also to those who are at land bases. My son has been away now for about two and a half months and for that entire period we have written him regularly, and since the first of May we have known definitely where he was and have had a Navy number to write to. As of today he has not received a single communication from his family, although we have received about eight letters from him, begging for news of the family and thinking that surely we have forgotten him entirely. Our last letter was received yesterday and it made us all cry—such a homesick, lonesome sort of letter, every sentence ending with "write soon."

There is much publicity in the papers about keeping up the morale of the boys by writing and keeping them informed of home events, but it sure is discouraging to get letters such as we have been getting from our son, begging for mail. And there are thousands just like him. Maybe you can stir up a little activity in this respect.

Tender Custom

While all branches of our armed forces are fighting the Axis forces in the Eastern Hemisphere, our soldiers and sailors in Washington and vicinity are romantically engaged, when off duty, in strolling our streets and avenues holding the hands of their best girls.

In 1917-1918 we veterans, equally an army of the people, indulged in no such pleasing custom as the 1942-43 wearer of the uniform. We were military men at home as well as abroad. We kept our hands out of our pockets, as we had other uses for them. We prided ourselves upon our bearing, as wearers of the United States uniform should.

While it has never been openly expressed, this pastoral manual practice must surely not be regarded with anything but criticism by our Allies here in the District and it would seem to be worth while giving this thoughtful consideration on the part of our higher military and naval authorities.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Version for Mr. Lewis

This is the Army, Mister L——
No suite in any smart hotel;
You've given orders with one loud roar,
But you're not doing that any more!
No telling others what to do——
With such dictation you are through——
You've issued edicts and threats galore,
But you're not doing so any more!

This is the Army, Johnny boy——
No long discussions you'll enjoy;
You've pooh-poohed orders since days of yore
But you're not doing that any more!
No bushy eyebrow stuff from you——
You'll get a "frontal" haircut, too;
You've made a Nation, hot, sick and sore——
But you're not doing that any more!

This is the Army, Mister Big——
Nothing to do but dig and dig;
You've bellowed loudly and held the floor——
But you're not doing that any more!
No loud demands that burn and vex——
Just take your turn at the "P X;"
You love to thunder and slam a door——
But you're not doing that any more!

You're in the Army, Lewis, yes!
You'll do more work and sputter less;
You've tied up warwork while we shed gore——
But you're not doing that any more!
No meetings in some hotel suite—
No weekly turning on the heat—
You've balked the battle and reduced the score—
But you're not doing that any more!

You're in the Army, as you see!
Grab up a bucket for k. p.!
You've laughed at orders as you cried "Ignore!"——
But you'll not laugh at them any more!
No haughty tones and manners bold——
You'll peel potatoes when you're told;
You've been the big chief and an awful bore——
But you're not being that any more!

The Duke of Windsor admits he is 49 years old, but we refuse to accept his word for it. Time just can't fly that fast.

Old Army song revived for use if President Roosevelt's plan to draft coal miners goes through:
You're in the Army now——
You're in the Army now;
Kiss Lewis goodby——
You're strictly G. I.——
You're in the Army now!

A new device has been perfected that will eliminate all static on the radio. This includes thunder, lightning and political speeches, but not commercial jingles.

Dr. James B. Scott

When I was introduced to Dr. James Brown Scott as a Tennessean, he remarked: "Tennessee had one very great man."

It would have been most natural for one whose family was in intimate touch with Old Hickory to reply: "I know whom you mean, General Jackson." But I did not. Instead I said: "You refer to Andrew Johnson, of course."

"You are right," he continued. "He was one of our greatest Presidents." And then he told me this interesting story:

"When I was a student at Harvard I studied the State papers of Mr. Johnson and then read what I could find on his life. All this convinced me that he was one of the outstanding men in American history. At that time the series of biographies known as the American Statesmen was being issued under the editorship of the head of the department of history of Harvard; so I went to my own professor of history and told him that I wanted to write the biography of Mr. Johnson for that series. He agreed with me that Mr. Johnson was a remarkable man and that his biography should be written, and volunteered to see the editor of the American Statesman series about it.

"A few days later he reported on his interview. The editor also was of the opinion that the biography of Mr. Johnson should be written, but the American Statesmen series had no place for it. That series was dedicated to men whose lives had been a success."

One would have to know Dr. Scott to appreciate the manner in which he related this anecdote.

"Do you think Mr. Johnson's life was a failure?" he asked me.

The editor of that series was Prof. John T. Morse, jr., and the professor of history to whom Dr. Scott appealed was Albert Bushnell Hart. Both are mere names now, and the American Statesmen series is no longer regarded as a success.

Laundry

"Sailors wash their own clothes, why can't privates do likewise.—Wearied Wife?" I can name three nonworking childless lazy wives who have the facilities to do their own washing but have quit because their husbands are making too much money. The power to shorten the time of winning this war rests absolutely in the hands of the women. C. BARTEL.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

It Can't Go On This Way

IF THE bickering inside the President's official family, and with Congress and with the press, does not subside soon, it may occur to the French committee at Algiers to call in the correspondent of the Associated Press and have him publish a lecture on the necessity of unity in order to get on with the war. Let us hope that this dreadful idea has not occurred to the committee, or if it does, that their wisdom and good taste will be sufficient to prevent them from any self-righteous interference in our affairs.

LIPPMANN

Our domestic affairs are, however, in a state which must cause every American to blush when he compares it with the devotion and the sacrifice of the men in our armed forces. He must blush because in fact there is nothing inherently wrong with the country. Therefore, the spectacle we have made of ourselves this week is a reflection upon our capacity for self-government. There is nothing in these problems which is not readily soluble and manageable by lucidity of mind, by resolution of character, and by a disinterested spirit which puts aside vanity, puts aside pride of opinion, and puts aside resentment.

THE SITUATION cannot, however, be manipulated and cleverly fixed up. It requires a re-dedication, beginning at the top, of the whole nation to the cause in which we are engaged. It calls for, though this is no doubt to believe in the improbable, the rise of some new men to authority. And it demands, imperatively, a program of candid and comprehensive measures in place of this muddled procrastination with improvised half measures.

THE COUNTRY needs, and must have, a national service act and a tribunal for the compulsory arbitration of all industrial disputes. We have trifled too long with the notion that 10 million men can be drafted to fight without being guaranteed the unqualified support of every able-bodied man and woman at home.

The country needs and must have a drastic tax bill which drains off, and a forced savings bill which impounds, the inflationary purchasing power which will otherwise ruin everyone.

The country needs and must have a Food Administration armed with every power needed in order to stimulate production and guarantee that in the retail shops the promised rations can be bought at the promised price.

These three measures are necessary to the prosecution of the war and the maintenance of order when the war ends. They are interrelated as the three legs of a tripod.

BUT MEASURES are not automatic. They have to be designed and administered by men. The fact is that precisely in the field where there is the greatest need of first-rate men there is a crying lack of them. The proof of this statement is in the President's own actions.

Does he depend upon his Secretary of Labor to take the initiative in formulating war labor policy? Does he trust his Manpower commissioner to lead in manpower policy? Does he count upon his Secretary of the Treasury to conduct the struggle against monetary inflation? Does he expect his Secretary of Agriculture to manage the Nation's food supply? He does not. Why does he not? Because he knows they cannot do it. But rather than admit it, and act accordingly, he retains them in nominal authority and tries to patch together something which will work behind them, around them, in spite of them.

THIS IS bad government. If the country were not so strong, so rich, so powerful, such bad government would already have produced national disaster, and not merely confusion and humiliation.

This is bad government because it violates the fundamental rule of good government which is that responsibility and power must never be separated. It is bad government, also, because the retention in office of men who cannot and do not fill the office, throttles the energy of the Government all the way down the line.

THE PREGNANT argument against a third term, as we now see it in practice, is that it has stopped the circulation of the new men who ought to be able to rise to the top. There is now at the top a tired and rapidly aging Administration. Yet the life of any government, and especially of a democratic government, depends upon the advancement of men who prove themselves worthy. In Washington today no younger man can get to the top because there is a third-term officeholder permanently fixed there.

Yet with two or three notable exceptions—the case of highly trained and devoted public servants like Secretary Stimson and Secretary Ickes—the heat and burden of the war management is carried by men at the second, third, and even lower levels of administration, and by men who preside over agencies which do the work, but lack the titles, the dignity, and the support that belong to the established departments of government. The President is a poor judge of human nature, and he is disregarding the wisdom of political experience, if he will not see how much it would energize, and indeed electrify, his whole Administration if he removed some of the place holders and then promoted younger men who are serving the country so well.

LET HIM remember that the rule of military affairs applies also in civil: If an aggregation of men is to have initiative, discipline, and a high spirit, every private soldier should have the right to believe that in his knapsack he carries a marshal's baton.

No Fraud Apparent

Oil Pact Evidence

By the Associated Press

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren agreed with the Justice Department yesterday the Elk Hills oil contract between Standard Oil Co. of California and the Navy went even beyond the contracts in the Harding Administration oil scandals.

Warren said, however, as did the Justice Department, that no fraud was apparent in making the contract, which has been canceled.

Quoting from a report by E. L. Fisher, assistant general counsel for the General Accounting Office, Warren told the House Public Lands Committee:

"With the exception of fraud and collusion, and the possibility this contract may be a good faith attempt to conserve the oil reserves, the contract is strikingly similar in its basic principles to those involved in the well-known Elk Hills and Teapot Dome oil scandals, and its provisions regarding operation of the oil lands appear even to be more extensive."

Citing the statute which requires filing of original contracts with the General Accounting Office, Warren said the Elk Hills contract, executed November 20, 1942, had not been filed until January 12, 1943.

A supplementary contract, dated last March 3 was filed with his office March 27, he said.

The contract provided for joint exploitation of the Elk Hills oil reserve in California by the Navy and the company. The Justice Department held it to be illegal in violating conservation legislation.

Library Receives Chinese Medical Works on Film

Arrival here of 654 works on Chinese medicine in microfilm makes the Library of oCngress' collection of Chinese material medica the largest now available in the world, Milton Plump of the library announced yesterday.

The 305 rolls of microfilm are of rare works owned by the Peking Union Medical College, now under Japanese occupation. If originals are destroyed during the war, duplicates can be made for the college, Plumb said.

Dealing with traditional Chinese medicine, 101 of the items are concerned with fevers and infectious diseases. Sixteen were written by Japanese authors.

Partial Text of Churchill's War Summary

Following is that part of Prime Minister Churchill's text relating to the military situation:

In May the German Admiralty made extreme exertions to prevent the movement to Great Britain of the enormous convoys of food and materials which are continuously received from the United States and which we must bring in safely if our warmaking capacity is to be maintained. Long lines of U-boats were spread to meet these convoys, and 15 or 20 U-boats were concentrated in each attack.

To meet this the British and American and Canadian forces of the sea and air hurled their strength at the U-boats. The fighting took place mainly around the convoys and also over a wide expanse of ocean. It ended in the total defeat of the U-boat attack.

More than 30 U-boats were certainly destroyed in the month of May, floundering in many cases with their crews in the dark depths of the sea. Staggered by these deadly losses the U-boats have recoiled to lick their wounds and mourn their dead.

Best Month of 46

Now as a result of the May victory and massacre of U-boats we have had in June the best month we have ever known in the whole 46 of the war. The prodigious shipbuilding exertions of the United States and the considerable contribution of Britain and also Canada have produced an output of new ships which is somewhere between seven and ten times as much as our losses from enemy action in the month of June.

Since the middle of May scarcely a single merchant ship has been sunk in the whole of the North Atlantic. In June also, although the convoys are not being seriously attacked at the present time, U-boat losses have been most solid and encouraging.

I give these facts purposely in a form which conveys the truth without giving precise or detailed information to circles wider than those with which we ourselves are concerned. There are two conclusions to be drawn from them. The first is that we must not assume that this great improvement will be maintained or that bad patches do not lie ahead. The second is that although encouraged by the growing success of our methods, we must redouble our efforts and ingenuity.

The disasters of the U-boats in May and June have a bearing on another phase of our offensive war. These two months have seen the heaviest discharge of bombs on the munitions and industrial war centers of Germany.

Reaping Whirlwind

Three years ago Hitler boasted he would rub out the cities of Britain. Certainly in the nine months before he abandoned his attack we suffered very heavy damage to our buildings and grevious hindrance to our life and work. More than 40,000 of our people were killed and 120,000 wounded. But now those who sewed the wind are reaping the whirlwind.

In the first half of this year the 35 times the tonnage of bombs R. A. F. alone has cast on Germany which in that same six months of this year has been discharged on this island. In one single night—nay in one single hour—we had cast on Duesseldorf 2000 tons of terrible explosive and incendiary bombs for a loss of 38 aircraft, while in the whole first half of this same year the enemy had discharged on us no more than 1500 tons of bombs at a cost of 245 aircraft.

In addition to this the United States air fleet in this country, already so powerful and growing with extreme rapidity, has by precision daylight bombing inflicted grave injury upon the most sensitive nerve center of the enemy's war production and American crews and pilots are continually performing feats of arms of the highest skill with dauntless audacity and devotion.

All these facts and tendencies, by no means unfavorable in their general character, must stimulate our joint exertion in the most intense degree and on an even vaster scale.

No Shallow Optimism

I have never indulged in shallow and fugitive optimism but I have thought it right to make this statement because I am sure it will not lead to the slightest complacency or relaxation of the awful force which is now being brought into action.

This force will be remorselessly applied to the guilty nations and their wicked leaders who imagined that their superiority of air power would enable them to terrorize and subjugate first all of Europe and afterward the world. They will be applied, and never was there such a case of the biter bitten.

During the summer our main attack has been upon the mainspring of German war industry—in the Ruhr—but as the nights became longer and as the United States Air Force becomes more numerous our strong arms will lengthen both by night and by day, and there is no industrial or military target in Germany that will not receive as we deem necessary the utmost application of exterminating force.

The war industry of Germany has already to some extent been dispersed in numerous smaller towns. When the cities are disposed of we will follow it there.

Presently the weight of the Russian air attack, now mainly absorbed by their long front line, will contribute an additional quota to the total blitz.

Somber Prospect

Thise is, I can quite well believe, the somber prospect for the German people and one which Doctor Goebbels certainly is justified in painting in the darkest hue.

But when we remind ourselves of the frightful tyrannies and cruelties with which the German armies, the gaulieters and subordinate tormentors are now afflicting almost all Europe; when we read of mass executions of Poles, Norwegians, Dutchmen, Czecho-Slovakians, Frenchmen, Yugoslavs and Greeks; when we see these ancient and honored countries of whose deeds and traditions Erope is heir, when we see them under this merciless alien yoke nd when we see their patriots fighting with fierce desperation, we may feel sure we bear the sword of justice and we resolve to use that sword with the utmost severity to the fullest and to the end.

It is at this point that the heavy defeats recently sustained by the U-boats play their part in the general attack pon German morale. Apart from mysterious promises of revenge, one hope which Doctor Goebbels holds out to the German people is that though they suffer the extreme tribulation of air bombing, the U-boats on the ocean are inflicting equal or even more deadly injuries upon the British and American power to wage war. When that hope dies—and die it will—it will appear to the most dispassionate observer that a somewhat raw and bleak outlook is beginning to open itself before Hitler's accomplices and dupes. We must allow these corrective processes to take their corse.

Meantime, this is not a time for us to indulge in sanguine predictions. Rather should we remind ourselves of St. Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians: "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

To Remain Steadfast

I may therefore say that our affairs are in considerably better posture than they were some time ago and that we intend to remain steadfast and unwearying in doing our duty and our best, whatever may betide.

I have still to speak of the war in the Mediterranean, about which there is so much talk at the present time. Mussolini's Italian Fascists, who are after all only a small privileged proportion of the real Italian nation, seem to be suffering from the war of nerves of which they and their German masters made so much use in former times. So far they have only been subjected to preliminary and discursive bombardments but they already are speculating feverishly where the blow will fall and what will be its weight.

It is no part of our interest to relieve that anxiety. They may remember how they themselves struck at the Turks in Tripoli, at Abyssinia and Albania and how they fell upon the Greeks and set out to conquer Egypt. And they may look back regretfully to the day when they used to disturb the peace of the world and when it rested with them which weaker community could be struck down first.

I can do nothing to help them resolve their fears, which, communicated to their allies, may perhaps have led them to the remarkably long delay of the opening of the promised German offensive against Russia.

Words of Caution

But I have some words of caution to say to our own people. First of all, great military operations are dominated by the risks and turns of the future. I know of no certainty in war, and that is particularly true of amphibious war. Therefore, any mood of overconfidence should be severely repressed.

Another point which should be comprehended is that all large and amphibious operations, especially if they require the cooperation of two or more countries, require long months of organization with refinements and complexities hitherto unknown. In war all impulses, impatient desires and sudden flashes of military instinct cannot hasten the course of events.

I cannot go further today than to say this—very probably there will be heavy fighting in the Mediterranean and elsewhere before the leaves of autumn fall.

For the rest we must leave the unhappy Italians and their German tempters and taskmasters anxieties which will grow from week to week and from month to month.

Unconditional Surrender

This, however, I will add. We United Nations demand from the Nazi, Fascist and Japanese tyrannies unconditional surrender. By that we mean that their whole power to resist must be completely broken and that they must yield themselves absolutely to our justice and mercy. It also means that we must take all those far-sighted measures which are necessary to prevent the world from being again convulsed and wrecked and blackened by their calculated blows and ferocious aggression.

It does not mean and it never can mean that we are to stain our victorious arms by inhumanity or by mere lust and vengeance or that we do not plan a world in which all branches of the human family may look forward to what the American Constitution finely calls "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Arms Lag Comment

Overconfidence Blamed

By the Associated Press

New York, June 30.—Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the Army Service Forces, said in a magazine article released today the Army was so short of weapons and materiel that equipment used in training soldiers was being sent abroad for combat use.

Somervell, writing in Mill and Factory, a trade publication for industrial management, asserted that May output for the Army's supply program was $106,783,000 under the month's quota of $1,600,941,000. He attributed the drop to a number of factors, including floods, labor shortages and turnover, work stoppage, but primarily to the "sedative" effect of good news from the battle fronts.

Training Equipment Taken

". . . one of the most important causes was over-confidence on the part of some segments of industry, labor and the public—the growing, false and damaging impression we've got the war won, we can let up now in the intensity of our efforts and we can now begin planning for early resumption of manufacture of nonessential consumer goods which the war has denied us," the supply chief said.

"This is happening at a time when we are so short of weapons and material we are having to take equipment being used to train our growing Army in this country and send it abroad for combat use. This not only seriously impairs our training program, but affects morale of the troops."

Somervell said the original 1943 military strategy, laid out by combined chiefs of staff with approval of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, called for war machinery, equipment and supplies costing 92 billion dollars. The War Production Board, he said, reported such a program was beyond the capacity of the Nation and the estimate was revised to 75 billion dollars.

20 Per Cent Reduction

"Since our first and greatest need was for aircraft, cargo ships and Navy combat vessels, the major part of the reduction in 1943 goals had to be absorbed by the Army ground supply program," he said. This meant a 25 per cent cut in the schedules the Army had planned for the year—one-fourth less equipment than the Army had determined to be necessary to accomplish the tasks assigned to it."

Under the program steady scheduled increases in production were achieved through April, he said, but added that "even with this schedule met, the Army will not be fully equipped until well into 1944."

Dies Sets Stage For Hearings on Jap Camps, Riots

Final preparations were made by a Dies subcommittee yesterday for the opening today of what promises to be a prolonged congressional hearing on conditions in Japanese relocation camps.

At the same time Chairman Dies (Democrat) of Texas announced the full committee had decided to inquire into the causes behind recent racial disturbances, such as last week's Detroit rioting which took more than a score of lives.

Committee investigators already in the field, he said, had turned up evidence which led him to predict "important developments."

Chairman Costello (Democrat) of California of the three-man subcommittee that recently completed a tour of Japanese relocation centers in the West, said that among the first witnesses will be Dillon S. Myer, director of the War Relocation Authority. Others to be called early will include officers of the Japanese-American Citizens League and probably three Japanese recently employed on the nearby Maryland farm of Interior Secretary Harold Ickes.

H. G. Poss Estate Willed to Wife And Daughter

The will of Harry G. Poss, retired Rockville business man, who died two weeks ago, has been admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court at Rockville. It bequeaths $1000 to his widow, Mrs. Clara B. Poss, and also leaves her one-third of the residue of the estate.

The remainder goes to the testator's daughter by a former marriage, Mrs. Nellie M. Daly of Washington. The will, which was executed November 5, 1932, and which does not reveal the value of the estate, names Attorney William F. Prettyman of Rockville as executor.

Holds Navy Officer Garb Changes Are Not Compulsory

Washington, June 29.—After one brief session, the subcommittee appointed by the House Naval Affairs Investigating Committee to inquire into numerous changes in officers' uniforms by the Navy Department has decided that such regulations are not mandatory or burdensome to the officers and has dropped the inquiry.

The inquiry was started at the request of Representative W. Sterling Cole of New York, but Mr. Cole did not attend the session held this morning in the office of Representative Leonard Scheutz of Illinois, chairman.

Rear Admiral Randall P. Jacobs, chief of the Navy's Personnel Division, was called before the committee to explain recent numerous changes in officers' uniform regulations, such as the switch from khaki to slate gray for the summer work uniform and the change in the winter uniform regulations announced last Saturday, which call for the wearing of gray shirts with the blue service uniform instead of white shirts as at present, and certain changes relating to gold braid and other uniform ornamentation—changes which were then announced as becoming effective October 1.

None Mandatory

Admiral Jacobs convinced the committee, Mr. Hess told the Daily News Record, that none of these changes were mandatory. The present khaki work uniforms, he pointed out, may be worn as long as they are serviceable and officers may continue to buy them as long as there are stocks on the dealers' shelves.

He also said that the wearing of the gray shirt with the blue service uniform would not become mandatory on October 1, a fact which was not made clear by the Navy's official release Saturday. Officers may continue to wear their present stock of white shirts with the blue service uniforms until they are worn out, and the white shirts may also continue to be worn with the blue dress uniform, Admiral Jacobs told the committee.

The only part of the new regulations which is mandatory is that relating to gold braid, Admiral Jacobs said, as the half stripe on the sleeve, instead of the present full stripe, will become mandatory October 1. This change was made with the double purpose of saving money for the officers and saving gold braid which, being made of French gold, is becoming scarce.

However, the saving to the officers will be only one-third instead of one-half the cost of a present full gold stripe, the committee was informed, because the cost of applying the halfstripe will be greater, since it has to be let into the seams of the sleeves.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Chicago, June 30.—The decisions handed down by United States Army doctors at Fort Jefferson, Mo., and Camp Lee, Va., this week were not hard to take for the St. Louis Browns. In fact, the Browns could kiss 'em.

POVICH

When the Army's medical men decided that Vernon Stephens (detachable knee) and George McQuinn (injured back) were unfit for military service, the Browns were regaining merely $200,000 worth (conservative) of playing talent. Yesterday, with Stephens and McQuinn headed for the Army, the Browns were shot—a last place club in a hopeless spot. Today, they are again a power in the American League race. The Army may not be able to use the two ball players, but the Browns are taking them back gladly. .

Stephens is just about the best ball player in the American League, at this time, despite the knee that has a habit of wandering out of its socket. Lou Boudreau is the only man who can play a better fielding game at shortstop, and Stephens is outhitting Boudreau more than 60 points. In fact, he's tied for the league batting lead with .342. He hits home runs and has averaged more runs driven in per game than any other guy in the league.

McQuinn hasn't been any great shucks with the bat this year, but he's probably the league's best fielding first baseman and he always has been a good hitter.

The Browns, you might interject, haven't been so hot to this point with Stephens and McQuinn in the line-up, else what are they doing in last place. But eighth place in this not American League race is only three games removed from third place, and with Stephens and McQuinn now able to get their minds off the Army, the Browns figure to do much better. They look like one of the solid clubs of the league.

Clark Griffith's share-the-wealth program has earned him the support of the New York Yankees in his effort to bludgeon Judge Landis into permitting him to stage more night games at Griffith Stadium.

When Landis proved obstinate, Griffith started to circularize every American League Club owner in an attempt to gain their support. Already he has a majority and small wonder. Griffith has something easy to sell—that big attendance at his night games.

The Yankees used to look down their noses at the night games. They never installed lights in their own park. They used to beef that Griffith and his nocturnal pals among the club owners were ruining baseball as a daytime atttraction. But the Yankees have been won over to the cause.

Like every other club, they like the size and the feel of the check that the visiting team takes out of Griffith Stadium this season. Night game attendance has averaged 13,000 per game. That kind of money talks. If Judge Landis doesn't listen, he's apt to be very unpopular with the club owners.

The other day in Washington, Clark Griffith watched his Nats lose a ball game to the Athletics because Dick Siebert, the A's first baseman, made four consecutive hits, including the single that put the tying run on base in the ninth inning.

Later in the same inning, Griffith watched Mickey Vernon, his own first baseman, strike out with the bases full of the tying and winning runs and none out.

Know what he was thinking? He was thinking of that offer Connie Mack made him last winter—a straight trade of Siebert for Vernon. Griffith now wishes he had made that one. Siebert has been playing much better ball than Vernon. Up to the other day, he was leading the league in runs driven in. He's the best first baseman in the league at making that smart first-to-second-to-first double play.

Griffith turned down the Siebert for Vernon deal because he was afeared of Siebert's two damaged knees. But Siebert hasn't missed a game this season, and nobody is a better first baseman.

Leonard Hit Hard, Driven From Mound

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Chicago, June 30.—This afternoon Pitcher Orval Grove of the White Sox was rejected by the Army as physically unfit. Tonight the Nats were wondering at Army standards, because young Mr. Grove threw a five-hit ball game at them and won his fifth straight for the White Sox, 7 to 1.

Happily for him, Rookie Grove does not pitch with the damaged left knee that the Army doesn't like, but with a rugged right arm that throws a whistling fast ball and a pretty good curve.

Dutch Leonard was no help to the Nats or his own pitching record. He was wild in the first inning and he was a soft-touch for the White Sox in the fifth when they knocked him out. They scored all of their seven runs off Lonard, who allowed ten of their 13 hits.

Painful Night for Nats.

It was a painful evening for the Nats because over in Cleveland the Yankees were beating the Indians in extra innings and pulling away to 2½ game sin front of the second-place Washingtons.

The Nats were a puerile outfit even in the inning when they scored their lone run against Grove. Gerry Priddy's single to center, which drove it home in the fourth inning was preceded by a hit batsman and a walk. Priddy collected two of the Nats' five hits, one a bunt. Spence and Early singled and Sullivan doubled and that's all there was to the Nats' batting attack.

Leonard was no help to himself when the White Sox took a 3-0 lead in the first inning. He pitched a single to Moses at the start, and filled the bases with one out by two walks. When Vernon left first base uncovered on Grant's grounder to Priddy, Leonard covered the bag himself but muffed Priddy's throw, two runs scoring. Kolloway's single drove in the third.

Curtright Extends Streak

Guy Curtright, the rookie White Sox outfielder, stretched his consecutive-game hitting streak to 25 when he led off the fifth with a single off Kampouris' glove, his only hit of the night. But it started a barrage of five hits that knocked Leonard out of the box and ultimately produced four more runs for the Sox.

Before the Nats and White Sox took the field as foes, they teamed up in an all-star cast to best the Great Lakes Naval Training Station team in a twilight game, 4-0 . . . The night's program was for the benefit of war charities and drew 29,495 fans who paid in $32,624 at the gate . . . Lefty Gomez pitched the first five innings against Great Lakes and allowed only two hits, one an infield affair . . . It was an impressive performance by Gomez . . . Joe Haynes finished the shut-out job in which the Sailors were held to five hits . . . Ossie Bluege managed the combined Nats-Sox team . . . Third Baseman Ellis Clary turned his ankle at first base in an attempt to beat out a hit in the fourth inning of the Nats-Sox game and was replaced by Alex Kampouris . . . Clary may not be available tomorrow.

Selections at Charles Town

First race—PRECISE ran a good third last out and appears best of these. LOUIS L and HIGH VALLEY to fill out the money bracket.

Second race—BOILED BRISKET closed like the wind here on Tuesday. Needs only to run back to that effort. MAROC had class once and could awaken. MERCILESS for the show.

Third race—MISTAKE had poor racing luck last out. Will win with clear sailing. MISS UPSTART is faint-hearted but has speed. SOME WHERE is a threat.

Fourth race—STRAW NEST galloped in that recent outing and should repeat. BUTTERMAN is ready and will be a serious contender. MEADOW SUN for the show.

Fifth race—TETRATOWN and CHIEF TEDDY are a tight fit in this event. I prefer them in the order named. LIGHT TIDE to take care of the others.

Sixth race—The entry of TERRY MAY and MARDI GRAS should account for the chief award in this field. SILVER BEAM was never better. MARADAN for the third position.

Seventh race—CLAY HILL is best suited in this gang. NYLEVE and PURPORT should be in the cash circle.

Best bet—STRAWNEST.

Patty Berg Wins, Gains Semi-Finals

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 30.—Using her putter as a cane as well as for a potent golf weapon, Patty Berg defeated Marjorie Row of Detroit, 4 and 3, this afternoon to move into the semifinals of the Women's Western Open.

In the morning round, she defeated Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., 5 and 4.

Catherine Fox of Glen Ridge, N. J., eliminated Margaret Russell of Detroit, 7 and 6, for the right to play Miss Berg. In the morning she defeated Mrs. O. H. Romadka of Rochester, 3 and 1.

Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, eliminated Elizabeth Hicks, 1 up in 19 holes on a technicality when Miss Hicks failed to hole a putt that might have turned the tide.

Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia defeated Phyllis Otto of Omaha, 4 and 3, and Kay Byrne of Rye, N. Y., 3 and 2, for the right to meet Miss Kirby.

Cubs Sweep Braves' Bill

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 30.—The Chicago Cubs continued their mastery over the Boston Braves today, sweeping a war relief fund double-header, 6 to 2 and 5 to 4, before a throng of 9123 which paid an unofficial total of $9532.83. Bill Nicholson gave the Cubs their sixth straight victory of the season against the Braves with a ninth-inning home run which broke the nightcap deadlock.

Yanks Win On Etten's Double, 3-1

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 30.—Nick Etten's double in the eleventh inning scored two mates and gave the New York Yankees a 3-to-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians tonight in a benefit game for the National War Fund, Inc.

The Yankee first baseman constituted a one-man rebellion against the Tribe's Jim Bagby. He also accounted for his club's other marker by slamming a home run into the right-field stands in the second inning. Bagby allowed only five hits but Etten collected three of them.

The Indians notched their lone tally in the second when Ken Keltner singled and Mike Rocco walked. Gene DeSautels sacrificed Keltner to third and he came home while Stirnweiss tossed out Ray Mack. In the fourth and eighth stanzas the tribesmen loaded the bases, but couldn't produce the necessary punch.

Jockeys Scocca, Sisto Injured in Suffolk Tumble

Boston, June 30 (AP).—Two jockeys were injured in spills today during the running of the $1800 Hillcrest, 6-furlong feature at Suffolk Downs.

Jockey Rocco Sisto was tossed at the gate when the ground broke from under J. Harry Miles' Itabo and Jockey Danny Scocca was thrown as he was pulling up to dismount when the stirrup broke.

Sisto injured his lower back and was removed to Chlesa Memorial Hospital for X-rays. Scocca suffered contusions and a sprained left ankle and canceled the rest of his riding assignments.

Dodgers Win 2; Gain As Cardinals Split

Flock Routs Reds, 5-0 Behind Davis; Newsom Wins, 11-5

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 30.—The Brooklyn Dodgers dressed up their war relief doubleheader today with plenty of trimmings, including a couple of tenor solos by Fred (the Dixie Songbird) Walker, but the best entertainment they gave the 26,893 fans at Ebbets Field were two rousing victories over the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 0 and 11 to 5.

The double victory raised the Dodgers half a game ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals in the won-lost totals, although St. Louis held a precious five-point margin in the percentages to remain in first place in the National League.

Curt Davis smothered the Reds in the first game, allowing only four singles and never letting a runner past first base. This was a performance Johnny Vander Meer could not match.

Because a lefthander was pitching, Dixie Walker remained on the bench during the first game, but he cooled off the wise crackers about his singing debut by rapping the plate in the second game and out a home run on his first trip to followed with two more hits for a perfect day at the plate, driving in three runs. Paul Waner also made three hits, including a homer.

Browns Beat A's, 3-1, Climb

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 30.—The St. Louis Browns' night pitcher, veteran Johnny Niggeling, held Philadelphia helpless on three-hit hurling while his teamamtes backed him up with a 3-to-1 triumph in a War Relief game before 6015 customers who paid an unofficial total of $6100.

The victory enabled the Brownies to climb into seventh place over the Athletics.

Flower Battle Scores in Day of Upsets at Charles Town

Idle Night, Sug Return Big Mutuels

Honeymaid Second In Feature Race, Red Wings Third; $269.60 Double

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 30. The yell of the long-shot player making his kill echoed through the nearby Blue Ridge Mountains this afternoon as the boys and girls who bet hunches and collect bunches cashed their tickets. The parade of "moon-shooters delights" moved into the featured fifth race when Joe Brooks' Flower Battle registered a $55.80 mutuel by leading seven rivals to the wire.

Three lengths behind this surprise winner came Wendell Kenrick's Honeymaid to be second and half-length in advance of T. Leatherbury's Red Wings. Flower Battle, winning for the first time in her career, was clocked in 0:51 over a fast track.

Flower Battle did not have things her own way in the early stages. She was off sluggishly but apprentice R. Fitzgerald sent her to contention on the inside and then found himself in back of the pacemaking Honeymaid. Fitzgerald finally got a narrow opening along the rail and sent the Cavalcade filly through. She held sway thereafter with good courage. Honeymaid ran a creditable race but could not resist Flower Battle. Red Wings closed strongly on the outside to be third.

The long-shot day began when Raymond Holland's Idle Night jolted the talent under a good ride by Jockey Carson Kirk in the first event. Idle Night paid a $31.30 mutuel. In the second race Dr. H. B. Langdon's Sug surprised at a $32 mutuel after the favorite, Frank Beuhler's Revelry, bolted to the outside fence at the first turn. The daily double on Idle Night and Sug paid $259.60. Another prominent stop on the long-shot parade was Mrs. R. L. Humphrey's Henry's Imp, winner of the third at $59.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IDLE NIGHT, $31.20, $11.00, $7.60; MISS PILGRIM, $6.00, $4.00; BOB JUNIOR, $4.20.

IDLE NIGHT, outrun early, came between horses while improving her position and drew clear in stretch run. MISS PILGRIM lacked speed early, was hard ridden in final quarter, but could not reach winner. BOB JUNIOR, shut off by SALLY LUNN while bettering position along backstretch, was taken to outside and closed with good courage. SEA PILOT and FANTASTICAL tired after leading entering stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:46. Off at 1:47½. Winner, H. B. Langdon's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUG, $32.00, $13.20, $8.20; BRUSH OFF, $5.00, $3.40; INMATE, $5.00.

SUG took command when leader bolted at first turn, was never seriously threatened and won under a hard hand ride. BRUSH OFF chased winner throughout and just failed to finish place. INMATE, in contention throughout, closed with a rush on inside. MARGARET LOUAN tired. REVELRY opened good lead early and bolted at first turn.

Daily Double, IDLE NIGHT and SUG, Paid $259.60

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:16. Off at 2:16½. Winner, Mrs. R. L. Humphrey's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HENRY'S IMP, $59.00, $17.20, $6.20; INDIAN SEA, $5.40, $3.80; BRAXTON, $3.00.

HENRY'S IMP, well handled while in first flight, went to outside for stretch run and was up in the final stride. INDIAN SEA, tacked speed early, was lucky to find racing room on inside entering stretch and just missed. BRAXTON disposed of CRACKSINE to take command entering stretch, but faltered in final test. OYSTER BAR was in close quarters on inside. CRACKSINE stopped after holding a long early lead.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:46½. Winner, R. Ed Lewis' b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—INCENTOR, $9.60, $4.60, $2.60; BELFONDS BOY, $11.20, $4.00; SAMPLER, $2.40.

INCENTOR saved ground while following pace early, dropped back on turn, was taken outside for stretch run and won in going away fashion. BELFONDS BOY raced well up from start and had no mishaps. SAMPLER, off in a tangle, moved up gradually, took brief lead in midstretch, but weakened. REMOLEE set pace under hustling ride

FIFTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:10. Off at 3:13. Winner, Joe Brooks' br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLOWER BATTLE, $55.80, $19.20, $11.00; HONEYMAID, $4.40, $4.80; RED WINGS, $6.60.

FLOWER BATTLE, slow to get under way, was lucky to get through on inside, obtained lead midway of turn and drew clear while being kept to a drive. HONEYMAID was unable to shake off pursuers early, allowed winner to come through on inside and was no match thereafter. RED WINGS, knocked back leaving backstretch, came again on inside to be going best of all at the end. HAPPY HANNAH lost ground.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:41. Off at 3:44. Winner, T. Pressgrave's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL FLEET, $6.00, $3.80, $3.80; FIRST GIRL, $4.00, $3.60; BROCADE, $3.80.

ROYAL FLEET, well handled, saved ground while racing with FIRST GIRL, was under a hard drive in stretch to get nod. FIRST GIRL took command approaching first turn, was on outside while racing with ROYAL FLEET and just failed to last. BROCADE moved up menacingly on backstretch, but could not better her position thereafter. GLORENE was off rather slow. FLYING JUNIOR was shut off at first turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:13. Winner, H. C. Rubin's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KATE SMITH, $5.00, $3.80, $3.20; QUATRE SONG, $7.80, $5.00; WAR BONNET, $6.80.

KATE SMITH, under steadying restraint while within striking distance early, circled leaders entering stretch and then held QUATRE SONG safe. The latter moved into contention after a half, lost ground while moving to leader and could not overtake top one in stretch. WAR BONNET opened long lead while racing on own courage and held on rather well. DURABLE had no excuses.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:39. Off at 4:40. Winner, O. S. Jennings' b. m. LADY JAFFA, in first flight from start, moved by leaders when asked and drew clear to win easily. ULTIMA THULE moved with winner, but was unable to kep up through stretch. FIVE O' FOUR came from far back to be third. TANTRUM tired after chasing pace for three quarters. FLAG ETTA weakened after setting early pace and weakened when placed to pressure in stretch. STORMCOCK was carried wide at first turn, losing all chances.

"Shangri-La" to Become Fact Instead of Fiction

Drive Starts Today for New Carrier; Library of Congress Requisitions Films; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

TODAY MARKS the official opening of the Treasury Department's July drive to sell 130 million dollars worth of war stamps. Not bonds, stamps. Secretary Morgenthau's motivating impulse no doubt springs from the realization that if every man, woman and child in the United States would buy at least one dollar's worth of stamps, the new aircraft carrier "Shangri-La" would be paid for in advance, with possibly a dollar or two left over for other purposes important to the victorious conduct of the war.

MITZI MAYFAIR

If not spearheading the campaign, the motion picture industry, at least, has pledged itself to wholehearted cooperation with the Government in translating the legendary taking-off place of the Tokyo bombers from fiction into fact.

By anticipating the Treasury's requirements and "beating the gun" in its own organization, RKO-Radio is the first major film-and-theater company to report a 100 per cent subscription to the drive from top brackets to bottom throughout the country. Word comes from RKO headquarters in Radio City, New York, on this first day of the drive, that from N. Peter Rathvon, president of RKO, down the entire payroll, the RKO theater circuit, RKO-Radio Pictures, all of the branch exchanges and Pathe News have chipped in their individual dollars to register the first complete company support of the Treasury's July aim.

Everybody in the outfit is wearing a feather in his cap.

Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's Theater is wearing his chest clear out to here in pride of the fact that his theater is included in the 100 per cent cooperation with the Federal establishment. Not only has every member of the house staff bought his stamps, but, individually and collectively, they have pledged themselves to spread the contagion to every patron setting foot in the theater through the current month.

A shade remote from its star's week of personal appearances, "The Youngest Profession," with Virginia Weidler in the top spot, will be coming up at Loew's Capitol the week of July 8—a week from today—in conjunction with quite a stage show, costarring Henny Youngman, Mitzi Mayfair and Carol Gould in melodic goings-on. This will be the vivacious Mayfair's first time around since her junket overseas with Kay Francis, Carole Landis and Martha Raye to entertain the sojers.

Deadlines and Heat Are Demoralizing!

Our prevalent right arm, Miss Marjorie Kelly, is retrospectively distraught that early deadlines and oppressive heat are not always conducive to an impregnably bullet-proof summary of every play that has to be covered. Her acute distress seems to spring primarily from the fact that the review of the Willard Roof Players' production of "Broken Hearts of Broadway" neglected to pay deserved tribute to Natalie Core's engaging portrayal of the role of Daisy Bloodgood, or her equally provocative duet with Bibi Osterwald, which took the lilting form of "Two Little Girls in Blue."

Another superior item which Miss Kelly believes deserves to be stressed is the musical embellishment of the play which Thomas Johnson contributes with inspired skill at the piano.

All of which only adds strength to her considered opinion that in "Broken Hearts of Broadway, Impresario Dick Midgely has put on quite a show.

Word comes from the Library of Congress that it has requested United States motion picture producers to deposit in the Library 104 films and portions of films released in the period from May 1, 1942, to April 30, 1943. These films are to be deposited under an agreement between the Library and the producers made in April, 1942. Under its terms the Library of Congress is to select from among the films copyrighted in any given year pictures having documentary significance or importance in their relation to the record of the times. Specifically, what the Library attempts to secure is all newsreels and news-related films, or parts thereof; all documentary films, and all films with documentary significance to a student of the period; any films produced in the course of the year which mark important artistic or technological advances in the art of the cinema; films, such as animated cartoons, which have had a currency so great as to provide elements of the common imaginative life of their time; outstanding films of scientific interest or geographic interest. Too long to reproduce here, the requested list includes many features, or excerpts therefrom, presented during the past year as major attractions in the downtown picture houses.

Speaking of such, the Warner Brothers, recently honored with a Victory Flag for their production of "Action in the North Atlantic," have again been accoladed. John G. Bradley, division chief of National Archives, has requested the studio to supply "posterity prints" of four pictures that have historical value, eligible for acceptance under Archives' high code of standards. They are "Mission to Moscow," "A Dispatch from Reuter's," "Underground" and "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

"Blossoms" Revived at the Little

By Marjorie Kelly

One of the most tenderly emotional of screen biographies is "Blossoms in the Dust," the story of Edna Gladney's pioneering work in child welfare, which returned yesterday to the Little Theater for what is perhaps its last showing, since it may be withdrawn after this engagement.

That the film manages to be emotional without sentimentality is largely due to the sincere and thoughtful characterizations of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gladney, contributed by Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, who, brought together on the screen for the first time in this film, scored again so notably in "Mrs. Miniver." Mrs. Gladney herself chose Miss Garson to impersonate her on the screen.

"Blossoms in the Dust" deals mainly with Edna Gladney's efforts to push through legislation which would end the branding of children as illegitimate simply by removing the requirement that legitimacy be mentioned on birth certificates. But in order to show the growth of Mrs. Gladney's conviction that such labeling of children is a handicap they have not merited an can only with great difficulty overcome, it takes up her story from early girlhood, telling of her marriage to an impetuous young Texan, played by Walter Pidgeon; of the death of her small son and her reaction to the knowledge that she will never have another child. After a year of giddy, frantic pleasure-seeking, in an effort to forget the loss of her child, she realizes it can't be done that way and takes a group of little orphans to care for.

This is the beginning of Mrs. Gladney's work in child welfare, which is traced through her victorious fight against the bigotry and prejudice of the times, both in her own town and in the legislature, where she finally gets her bill passed, eliminating the requirement that birth certificates specify legitimacy.

Also in the cast, which was directed by Mervyn LeRoy, are Marsha Hunt, Fay Holden and Felix Bressart.

Won't Wear Fur Before Aussies

Hollywood.—It is all a matter of geography.

In Australia, where Ann Richards come from, opossum fur is very common and only used for throw rugs on outing trips. In this country the fur is considered in the luxury class, as she learned when she went shopping with a friend and found she was considering buying an opossum coat.

When the Metro-Goldwyn Mayer actress went home she looked with new eyes at a rug of the fur, which she had brought with her from home, and is considering having it made into a coat.

"But," laughs Miss Richards, "I couldn't let any of my 'down under' friends see me wear it or they would never believe I have a motion picture contract. They would think I was hard pressed for money."

Unusual Hobby

Ruth Hussey's favorite nonprofessional occupation is drawing plans for houses. The actress, currently playing an important role in "The Uninvited," studied sketching in college.

Cast in Her First "Glamour" Role

who, despite her success in "Our Town" and "Cheers for Miss Bishop," never has been seen on the screen as her own vivacious self. That oversight is about to be remedied by Producer-Director Andrew Stone, who is costarring Miss Scott with Adolph Menjou in "Hi Diddle Diddle." In this forthcoming comedy she will look approximately as above.

Navy Gets Its Turn

Hollywood, Calif., June 30.—From Washington, D. C., comes word that Secretary of Navy Frank Knox has given the go-ahead sign to Sam Goldwyn to make a big picture about the Navy, showing coordination of its three units—air, submarine, and battleship . . . Well, knowing the kind of pictures Goldwyn makes, I'll wager it will be entertainment, not propaganda. Sam doesn't make many, but he makes 'em good, and his "North Star," which is about Russia, will wipe out a great deal of the harm done by propaganda in "Mission to Moscow." . . . Barbara Stanwyck is wanted by three studios. She's going to choose her next carefully. Her fans didn't like her in 'Burlesque." Billy Wilder has the inside track on her services for "Double Indemnity." . . . Joan Fontaine tells me she and Brian aren't adopting a baby. When they have one, it will be their own.

BARBARA STANWYCK

Now One for Films

Rogers and Hammerstein, who hit the jackpot with 'Oklahoma" in New York, arrive July 1 to do the same with "State Fair" at Twentieth, Anne Baxter gets the lead. I'm wondering why they don't hire Earl Godwin's pet pig, Fleurette for that . . . Rise Stevens finally set for "The Padre." Wonder why they didn't get Florence George, who's singing superbly these days. I suppose she didn't get the job because she is Bing's sister-in-law . . . Edgar Bergen made himself many friends when he went on his own to Alaska. He was aiming to do the same thing for our men in the South Pacific, but put himself in the hands of USO. Now he's being sent to Newfoundland. . When the pirates were chosen by Mitch Leisen for "Frenchman's Creek," they wore abbreviated shorts.

Long Leave

Phil Baker to New York for three months until he's called back for another picture. On his return, he and Sid Grauman will put on a revival of "Charlie's Aunt." Phil asked Jack Benney if he'd like to do it a couple of weeks. Jack snapped him up on it. When I asked if he was about to marry the former Mrs. George Bruce, he replied, "before I marry anyone, I'll send you my head on a silver platter" . . . Olsen and Johnson wired, "come out to the studio any day and share a few mad hours with us while we take the dementia praecox on a binge" . . . Bella Webb, Marie Dressler's lifelong friend, writes that when they do Marie's life, the one person who would be perfect for it is an English actress, Vera Pierce . . . Since George Jessel is at Twentieth and Lou Holtz at Metro, Jack Warner's having the last laugh by signing up Franklin Ardell . . . I'm hoping Katharine Hepburn will play in "Drivin' Woman," instead of Greer Garson, who's up for it.

Helping Hand

Dennis Morgan and Harris Ashburn were schoolmates 'way back when. Ashburn and his wife, now a dancing team, arrived here recently and looked up Dennis. Through that they'll do a number in "Shine On, Harvest Moon." I asked who would sing for Ann Sheridan, who's playing Nora Bayes, and was told she'll do her own singing. Well, be that as it may, she isn't going to please Bayes' fans. Nora's voice was as distinctive as Helen Morgan's, and Annie doesn't sound a bit like her . . . Roger Clark, who makes his debut in "Dollar-a-Year-Man," got a term contract at Twentieth because he's 4-F, an old football injury . . . Beverly Whitney, who did some thrushing at the Savoy Plaza in New York, is being groomed by Twentieth for a screen debut. She's a beauty, has a voice, can wear sweaters, and her father, whose name is not Whitney, manages a big life insurance company in Canada.

Times Square Tattle

New York, June 30.

Lord Beaverbrook will be England's new Lord Privy Seal unless he refuses the job . . . The President will make a radio speech about the antistrike legislation passed over his veto . . . Maxwell Anderson is back from his trip to Europe and Africa with a trunkful of plots for new plays . . . Norman Bel Geddes, the famed designer, now is working on a postwar project for Radio Corp. of America . . . Maj. Alexander de Seversky will go to England after the release of his "Victory Through Air Power." When Seversky returns, he'll go back to his old trade—designing new aircraft and agitating for increased air power.

MAXWELL ANDERSON

When Adolphe Menjou's camp tour in England is completed, he'll go to Russia . . . One of the State's witnesses—a prisoner—in the recent trial of the murderers of Patrolman Fox, is singing to the district attorney and supplying the answers to many unsolved killings . . . Gloria Vanderbilt di Cicco is in Kansas, selling all the furniture she had purchased during her stay there with her husband. Lieutenant di Cicco will be going overseas as soon as his present courses are completed . . . Ed Murrow, who has been broadcasting from London ever since the war began, is returning to England. He's requested permission to be a battle-front reporter.

Orson Welles will go to England to star in the movie version of "War and Peace" only if the cast will be taken to Russia for some of the on-the-spot scenes . . . Dean Acheson of the State Department may have a new job soon . . . Jim Farley is going to Mexico next month . . . The USO Camp Shows, Inc., will spend $14,000,000 in the next 18 months . . . Within the next few weeks Wendell Willkie is expected to announce his support of legislation to reduce the voting age to 18 . . . All the victims of the Lisbon plane crash except one are paying their own hospitalization costs here. In the case of Jane Froman, this amounts to over $20,000.

A few days ago General Marshall entertained a group of 14 men and invited questioning. They popped 16 questions at him before he answered any of them. Marshall then answered all 16, from memory, in the order in which they had been asked . . . Anton Dolin, the ballet star, may return to London soon, for army duty . . . Eric Sevareid, the C. B. S. commentator who left Paris when the Nazis entered, is terminating his 2½-year stay here. Sevareid is leaving Washington for a correspondent's post in the Far East . . . Next week C. B. S. will inaugurate a 13-week Sunday afternoon series, called "Sneak Previews," to test new program ideas for sponsors.

In the cables between Collier's Magazine and its correspondent in Moscow, Quentin Reynolds, the code word for Joseph E. Davies was "The Messiah." Reynolds received a cable: "Suggest interview The Messiah" and he replied: "The Messiah unreachable" . . . The Government may soon take control of one of the world's largest buildings in New York . . . At Mamaroneck, where he resides, Tommy Manville's house is only a bride's throw from the station . . . Senator Happy Chandler, who has been taking Russian lessons in preparation for his trip abroad, said on Saturday night that he now knows enough of the language to get along in Moscow.

A New Deal Manhattan Congressman soon may have as his temporary secretary a former legislator who was purged and who now wants to secure his pension rights . . . Tom Dewey's intimates are confident that he's bidding for next year's nomination . . . Joe E. Lewis, the cafe comic, arrived in Australia last week to entertain troops. He was met by thousands of soldiers who expected to see Joe Louis, the heavyweight champ. "I used the name first," Lewis explained to them. "The first time I saw Joe Louis fight, I didn't think he'd last more than a round—so that's why I didn't bother copyrighting the name."

New Crop of Stars Is Biggest In the History of Hollywood

By Melrose Gower

Hollywood, June 30.—A golden era has dawned for young actors and actresses in Hollywood. Opportunity's knuckles are raw from knocking on their doors. Every time one of 'em answers the 'phone, there's a producer on t'other end with a fat contract calling for a major role in an important picture.

Nothing like it ever has been known before since the birth of the movie industry.

Until recent date, only one policy ever applied to youthful players and newcomers: Sign 'em to a term contract with a six months option, use 'em for leg art; send 'em to drama schools; keep 'em away from the cameras. At the end of six months renew their options, or fire 'em.

Policy Suddenly Discarded

But that policy is in the discard now, and no one knows why. The war has no bearing on the subject because, regardless of the drain from that source, experienced, capable actors and actresses still are plentiful in the film colony. Let the reason be forgotten, let the fact remain—that newcomers are riding the crest today, working steadily before the cameras in bigger and bigger roles.

Sonny Tufts, 6 feet 4 inches, was a 200-pound singer in Broadway shows and New York and Palm Beach night clubs. The powers-that-be didn't know him from Adam's off ox when, sans agent, he walked into the Paramount studios a few months back and asked for a job. Executives gave him a screen test, yelled "bingo!" and promptly cast him opposite Paulette Goddard in one of the two male leads of "So Proudly We Hail."

Hardly had the blonde young giant washed the make-up for that picture from his face before he found himself on the next-door RKO-Radio lot. There he is at this writing, costarring with Olivia De Havilland in "Government Girl." Get it? Costarring with Olivia De Havilland in one of the biggest pictures of the year, being directed by Dudley Nichols.

Stepped in at Top

Three months after she came West to appear in a Pasadena Community Playhouse presentation, 20-year-old Kim Hunter signed a film contract. One week after the ink was dry, blonde Kim, who had never been on a movie sound stage in her life, was playing the femme lead opposite Tom Conway in "The Seventh Victim." That's one of Producer Val Lewton's chiller-rillers ("Cat People," "I Walker With a Zombie," "The Leopard Man"), the type of picture that demands the utmost in emoting.

Wally Brown and Alan Carney, products of the vaudeville and night club wheels, were signed to term contracts as individual comedians by RKO-Radio a short time ago. Carney promptly received a fat role as Cary Grant's stooge in "Mr. Lucky," while Brown made an immediate movie bow in "Petticoat Larceny." Now, slender Wally and plump Alan are playing the leads in "Adventures of a Rookie."

They're a new, red-hot comedy team and will continue as such in further films in the same series. In fact—and this shatters some sort of Hollywood precedent—Carney and Brown are to receive star billing in their first joint effort—a decision announced by RKO executives after seeing the picture's rushes.

More Newcomers

And who is playing the feminine lead in "Adventures of a Rookie?" A lassie named Margaret Landry, fresh from Louisiana State University. She's streamlined, vibrant, has talent and beauty. And right there with her, playing the second lead, is youthful Patti Brill, recently from San Francisco, who comes by her histrionic ability right honestly. Her father sings in seven languages, her mother is a musician, her grandmother was a stage dancer and her grandpappy, Fred Owen, was a noted minstrel man.

Freckled-faced little Marcy McGuire is playing a top role in the Kay Kyser starrer, "Around the World." Mel Torme, 17-year-old singer, gets a big part in "Higher and Higher." Nancy Gates' roles keep growing bigger.

These are only a few of the many. The colts and fillies are really kicking up their heels in the picture pastures.

Pix

Displaying admirable judgment in selection, the Pix Theater yesterday inaugurated a series of revivals of Frank Capra films with "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," one of his best, with Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur costarred.

In addition to providing a wealth of wholesome humor, "Mr. Deeds," is a picture that eventually gets around to having something to say of importance to the economic and social scheme of things. It is the droll tale of an unobtrusive small-town fellow, who suddenly comes into possession of a large fortune, which he puts to most extraordinary uses in the view of those who would like to share his opulence by fair means or crooked.

In the city, Mr. Deeds encounters adventures that awe him not in the least—an understandable complacency in a young man who was discovered playing tuba in the band summoned to the station back home to give him a royal sendoff! It is when things find their way into court that Mr. Deeds reaps the full reward of his quiet good judgment and sound philosophy.

The title role is one so perfectly suited to the Cooper talents that it is, to all intents and purposes, perfectly played. The same is largely true of Jean Arthur in the principal feminine role. The supporting cast reads like one of Mr. Capra's most comprehensive "Who's Who's" in Hollywood.

Not the least memorable of "Mr. Deeds" contributions to the joy of living is the word "pixilated," which bobs up during the inquisition, and probably by now occupies an honored place in the language.

Ducks Eat Snails But Also Flowers

Hollywood.—Donald Meek, enthusiastic horticulturist, is wondering if Robert Young was playing a joke on him.

Meek was complaining about the havoc caused by snails in his flower garden, and that various poisons he used seemed ineffective.

Young gave Meek two Muscovy ducks from his ranch. "They don't quack and are guaranteed to eat all your snails in no time," explained Young. "Ducks love snails."

Isn't the Army— Just Hollywood

Hollywood.—A soldier visitor on the set of Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" at Warner Bros. Studio recently received the shock of his military career. In plain view of everyone, a first sergeant was having his shoes shined and at the same time he was grunting noncommittal answers to the entreaties of a major. Suddenly, the sergeant swung at the officer good naturedly and missed.

His fears were ut at rest a few moments later when he discovered that Stanley Ridges was the major and the sergeant was Alan Hale. Both actors are appearing in "This Is the Army."

Sets Pace for Theaters in His Zone

JAMES M. BRENNAN,

Eastern manager of RKO theaters, including RKO-Keith's in Washington, buys his dollar's worth of War Stamps to launch his houses in the motion picture industry's drive for $130,000,000, beginning today—proceeds to be devoted to constructing the new aircraft carrier "Shangri-La." His action is being duplicated by high and low in the industry throughout the land.

Director Rosalind Russell

Only nonmedical member of the directorate of the newly formed Elizabeth Kenny Foundation, to carry on among American paralysis victims the work started by Sister Kenny in Australia, is Rosalind Russell. The job is to help her get en rapport in preparation for portraying Sister Kenny in a forthcoming RKO Radio film.

Scripts "Hargrove"

Harry Kurnitz has been named to script Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's forthcoming "See Here, Private Hargrove," hilarious comedy of Army camp life by Marion Hargrove. Robert Walker, who scored heavily as a young sailor in "Bataan," plays the title role. Cast includes Donna Reed, Chill Wills and Keenan Wynn.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Mr. Smith Tackles a Large Order!

Hollywood, June 30 (INS).—When Buddy DeSylva hired H. Allen Smith to write an original comedy for the screen his only instructions were: "It has to be different—and it has to be funny!" That's an order for even the author of "Low Man on a Totem Pole" and the current, hilarious "Life in a Putty Knife Factory!" But evidently it hasn't slowed down Smith, for he arrives in Hollywood July 12 with the germ of an idea that Para hopes will fit Bob Hope.

JOSEPH COTTEN

However, no restrictions are being put on the comedy; if it turns out to fit Betty Hutton, or even Joe Blow, that's all right, too. It isn't often that a writer gets such a free-wheeling assignment, but it just goes to show you what Hollywood will do for laughs these days.

Just a word about Joseph Cotten before we tell you some news about him this morning; if he keeps his feet firmly planted, he has one of the brightest futures of any new actor in years. Now after that little lecture, here comes word that Cotten, who was outstanding in "Shadow of a Doubt," gets the romantic role of Tony, the young officer who carries on the love interest in "Since You Went Away," the David Selznick picture. The cast now lines up with Claudette Colbert, Shirley Temple, Jennifer Jones, Monty Woolley and Cotten. The story, now in magazine form, sounds like an American "Mrs. Miniver."

Herbert Marshall has made so many movies on the M.-G.-M. lot as a free lance player that his car heads in the direction of the studio almost automatically. But over the weekend, Bart put his "X" on a term contract with Metro calling for three pictures during the next year. His first will be "The Picture of Dorian Gray," which Pan Berman produces and Al Lewin directs. No, Bart will not be cast as Oscar Wilde's exquisite Dorian—but he draws the role of the artist for whom the decadent young man sits for his portrait.

Lucy Monroe, who was one of Parsons jr.'s school mates, lets us hear from her too infrequently. But then, Lucy has been a busy girl doing a magnificent job with her community singing for the war cause. Now she wires: "I purposely refrained from telling you about my new movie career until I actually had begun it. But now I thought you and Harriet would like to know that the first of the series of 'Sing, America, Sing' shorts I am making under the Columbia Pictures banner has turned out beautifully.. The first short leads off with a salute to the services and the songs are 'Army Air Force,' 'Anchors Aweigh,' 'Over There' and 'The Star Spangled Banner.' We plan to ask millions of Americans which songs they'd like to hear and invite them to join in singing."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: After all of these months, Lady Carnavon, the former Tillie Losch, is still in America and at the moment is here in Hollywood; Hortense Harris, Warner secretary, has sold an original story to Columbia; the good-looking soldier with whom Susan Hayward dined at the Hollywood Brown Derby was her brother, Private Walter Marriner.

Lieut. Owen Ward is here from Georgia on leave to visit his wife, Brenda Joyce, and daughter; Hal Wallis, Irving Berlin and Mike Curtiz are all on their way East to discuss the details of "This Is The Army" premiere; Mimi Chandler, Happy's daughter, is a possibility for one of the leading roles in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

Irvin S. Cobb, who wrote a number of the Will Rogers movies, is now writing a story for Bob Burns that will parallel his own life; Sinclair Lewis is in town doing a writing chore at M.-G.-M; Bert Wheeler is back in town taking up with Patti Orr where he left off.

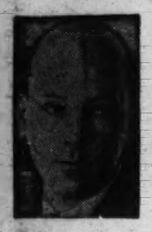
All New War Agencies Running Without Funds

All the new war agencies today are operating without funds. The employes will be paid for their services eventually, of course, but when, is the question. Several officials told their employes yesterday that funds would be advanced from the President's fund to meet the payrolls. This is true only in part. The President has the money and the power only to finance payrolls through midnight last night. His authority stopped at that time. The congressional delay will be felt in half a dozen war agencies tomorrow—the July 2 payday—when only 13 days' pay will be given WPB, OWI, Lend Lease, Central Administrative Services and employes in several other agencies. Every other new war agency will be hit unless Congress breaks the deadlock and approves the appropriation bills within the next week.



Army and Navy, contrary to rumors, won't be hit. Navy already has its appropriation and the War Department's supply bill is well on its way toward approval. However, these agencies have delayed paydays and all their employes are certain to get their checks unless the War bill hits an unexpected snag. Most of the old-line agencies will be able to meet their payrolls on time. The Agriculture bill has been held up, but it's expected to be law in time to meet the payroll deadline. Legislative employes are being hit by the delay. Many House employes and a few Senate workers won't get their checks on time.

Officials who have been afraid of criticism and have refused to release their employes on hot days should take a tip from the President. On that awful hot day last Saturday the President personally released White House employes from work in the forenoon. . . . The major part of the field offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce will continue operating. The Senate put back enough money after the House abolished them all. . . . Joe Rupley is the new personnel director of OWI and it'll be his job to knock off several hundred employes from the domestic branch. . . . Phil Mayer, former OWI personnel director, has joined FHA. . . . Senator Langer has introduced a bill which would tie Federal wages and pensions to the cost of living. The bill would have the effect of raising salaries and pensions by 10 per cent, but its chances of passage are nil at the moment. . . . The Board of Legal Examiners died last night at midnight. The Senate committee failed to take action on continuance yesterday.

Pay Deduction Table

Today your salary will be cut. Your check won't be as large next pay day. Uncle Sam is withholding a much larger portion of your pay check. The amount that he'll withhold will depend on the amount of money you make and whether you're single or married.

The new and official Government pay table, computed by the General Accounting Office, is carried below. This scale requires a little explanation. In the first column on the left is your base salary, the second column is your gross salary for a two-week period, base pay plus the standard eight hours' overtime, and in the third column is the 5 per cent retirement deduction. Also deducted from the checks of thousands of employes are war bond payments.

In the upper right are the code symbols. These codes cover the family status of every single employe. In the top bracket are the "S" code numbers. The "S" is an abbreviation for single and the numbers represent the number of dependents. For example, if you're single and support your mother and sister and you make $2400 run down S-2 to the 2400 line. You'll find out that Uncle Sam will deduct $15.60 from your semimonthly pay check and that your net pay check, not counting bond deductions, will be $101.06.

The next line, the "N" bracket, applies to employes who are claiming no income tax exemptions. This bracket will apply to working wives whose husbands claim all the tax exemptions. Also to persons who fail to file withholding tax blank. However, a working wife may be supporting her family back home which would entitle her to claim dependents.

The "H" bracket also applies to working wives and husbands who each take half of the income tax exemptions.

The "A" bracket covers married men who claim all personal income tax exemptions and their wives nothing. Of course, the opposite could apply.

In the last line, the "F" bracket, is for the head of families. Strangely enough, a married man with no children and a family head with one child have identical exemptions.

Senate Backs 20 Million Daycare Bill

House Gets Measure To Care for Children Of Mothers Working In Essential Industry

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

By unanimous vote the Senate passed and sent to the House yesterday a comprehensive bill to provide for the care of approximately one million children of mothers employed in essential industries.

The Seante vote was taken after a brief discussion led by Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Utah, author of the bill.

Several amendments introduced by Senator Danaher (Republican) of Connecticut, chiefly concerned with protecting the interests of nonprofit private agencies dealing with child care, were adopted without opposition.

Final Danaher amendment limited the bill to the children of mothers employed in essential industries as defined by the War Manpower Commission.

The bill authorizes an annual appropriation of 20 million dollars until July 1, 1945 (expiration date of other war measures).

The Senate Appropriations Committee took swift action yesterday to add an amendment to the urgent deficiency bill for 1943 providing funds authorized under the bill.

Under the terms of the bill the Federal Security Agency, working in cooperation with the Children's Bureau, the Office of Education and the United States Public Health Service would have the responsibility of administration.

Grants would be made to State agencies, or to nonprofit private agencies, and the State programs would be administered through the State Departments of Education and Welfare. In most cases the States would pay half the cost of the projects and fees would be accepted from the mothers.

Day Care Facility to Open Soon On Friendship Mansion Site

On the site of Friendship, the mansion where distinguished Washingtonians used to play, the American Women's Volunteer Service yesterday formally opened for visitors a low white prefabricated building surrounded by a sandbox, see-saw, and open-spaced play-yard for children of warworkers.

Equipped not only to care for 36 children between the ages of 2½ and 5, the building contains also observation rooms from which child care volunteers may observe the two large sunny playrooms and be given instructions. The nursery will be open six days a week from 7:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. for children living in or near McLean Gardens.

To Train Volunteers

Persons wishing training for volunteer child care work may contact A. W. V. S. and arrange to be instructed when the nursery opens for children in the near future.

Yesterday, just one little girl enjoyed the wooly dogs, the blocks and books, peered in a closet at the rest cots, found out the isolation ward where youngsters with slight colds have their own playroom, cots and private bath; looked at the rocking horses and the bright red work bench complete with fancy vises; wondered about the food cart, ready in the kitchen; and was introduced to the scale model bath facilities where individual towel and comb racks are already hung with those articles. But there were many interested grownups to keep her company.

Leaders Officiate

Receiving were members of the executive committee, of which Mrs. Herbert Emmerich is chairman. Honor guests included George Williams, executive vice president of Defense Homes Corp.; John Daiger, business executive of American Houses, and Robert McLaughlin, architect of the nursery building.

Mrs. Elizabeth P. Highby will direct the professional nursery staff, assisted by Mrs. Ruth M. Powell and Mrs. R. C. Whittlesey, teachers; Dr. Virginia P. Beelar, physician, and Mrs. Carl Snyder, registered nurse.

Hearings In Shanker Case Ended

OPA Prosecutors And Defense to Present Briefs Before Decision

By Arthur Dawson
Post Staff Writer

Samuel Shanker, operator of the Country Garden Markets of Arlington and Alexandria, Va., charged with the selling of meat without taking the proper number of coupons, rested his case yesterday in Arlington after declaring he had offered an OPA official a position at $100 a week to help him keep his stores in line with OPA regulations.

No decision was given in the two-day hearing. Commissioner Ellsworth Clark instructed OPA Prosecutors Robert W. Keyser and Reginald Watt and Defense Attorneys Frank L. Ball and Albert Brick to file briefs by July 7 and stated that a decision would be given after that date.

Phoned on Violations

Shanker admitted in cross-examination that Mrs. Beulah Goss, Arlington OPA director, had called him a number of times asking him to correct what she claimed were OPA violations, but declared that her complaints dealt entirely with canned goods and were not about meat.

He later declared that he had offered Mrs. Goss $100 a week to join his firm to aid in keeping the company in line with the OPA regulations. He added that he and his company managers held frequent conferences at which he continually stressed the necessity of adhering to the regulations. He identified posters he said were placed in his four stores setting forth ceiling prices and OPA regulations.

Heavy Meat Purchase

In answer to the prosecution's question as to why the company had such a large quantity of meat on hand around April 1, Herman Drill, meat buyer for the company, testified that he had ordered approximately 29,000 pounds of meat late in March in anticipation of selling it before rationing went into effect. When large sales failed to materialize, he said, the company managers asked permission of the OPA to reduce the point requirements on the meat in an effort to sell it before it spoiled.

Leonard Lebovitz, former manager of the Alexandria store, took the stand to testify that the meat was in danger of spoiling and that he had ordered signs printed advertising reduced point requirements. The signs were not posted, he said, until April 2.

Ball closed the defense by presenting a petition signed by 250 customers of the stores which stated that they had never received any concessions as to surrendering meat coupons, and had seen none.

Postlude

Performers Captivate Audience

By Ray C. B. Brown

C. C. Cappel, in cooperation with the National Capital Park Service, presents the Coolidge Quartet (William Kroll, Daniel Guilet, David Dawson and Naoum Benditzki) on Wednesday night in Meridian Hill Park. Program: Quartet in G major, Op. 77, No. 1 (Haydn), Quartet No. 1 (Piston), Quartet in F major, Op. 96 (Dvorak).

Halcyon weather favored the opening last evening by that sterling American organization, the Coolidge Quartet, of the 1943 series of Starlight Chamber Music Concerts in Meridian Hill Park. A large and appreciative audience was in attendance to celebrate the start of the third annual array of distinguished instrumental ensembles, and the presence of the assemblage was in itself a congratulatory tribute to C. C. Cappel, whose initiative and foresight are responsible for what may well become a Washington institution. The open air is not ordinarily conducive to the intimacy connected with chamber music, but the formal garden of the lower park terrace provides with its hedges and trees just the right setting of seclusion.

BROWN

William Kroll and his associates were in excellent form and played with a captivating consentience. Their readings had technical security, rhythmic vitality and communicative spirit. They began with an eighteenth century work, the G major quartet by Franz Josef Haydn from Opus 77. Written in 1799, this is the next to the last in the long list of Haydn's quartets, and consequently reveals his mastery of the form at its best. Three of the movements are filled with the geniality and humor so characteristic of the composer, while the adagio is a perfect example of the aria for solo violin with a beautifully balanced accompaniment.

The second offering was Walter Piston's Quartet No. 1, and one noted with approval Mr. Cappel's announcement that there will be a quartet by an American composer on every program in the series. Walter Piston has gained in craftsmanship since he composed this quartet in 1933, but it contains all the essentials of his style and the conspicuous traits of his musical thought. To speak of his style is not exactly right, for it is his endeavor to avoid those idiosyncracies and personal idioms which are ordinarily considered a style.

The third work on the program was Dvorak's F major quartet which requires no comment after all the years that it has been heard. Encores are usually in order at the park concerts, and last evening thre were two, the serenade from Haydn's F major quartet, Op. 3, No. 5, and a humorous and clever little march by Mr. Kroll.

Leon Barzin conducts the National Symphony Orchestra at the Potomac Watergate on Wednesday night. Soloist: Lawrence Tibbett, baritone. Program: Overture to Manfred (Schuman), Introduction and Cortege de Noces, from Le Coq d'Or (Rimski-Korsakov), Symphony No. 1 (Beethoven), Overture to Die Meistersinger (Wagner), songs by Verdi, Chaikovski and Marx.

Two Watergate debuts were recorded successfully last night at the National Symphony Orchestra's eighth summer concert—one by Lawrence Tibbett as baritone soloist and the other by the guest conductor, Leon Barzin, who holds regular post as conductor of the National Orchestra Association, a training ground for young musicians.

Mr. Barzin revealed himself as a conductor of authority. His virile and active reading of Schuman's Manfred Overture was fraught with a full sense of Byronic drama.

Lawrence Tibbett encountered some of the countless friends he has made through radio broadcasts and concert appearances and the meeting was "warm," indeed. He responded to the continued applause which greeted the Credo from Verdi's Othello and Eri Tu from the Masked Ball by singing Schubert's Serenade and Wagner's Song to the Evening Star as encores. The sad part of the evening was that Tibbett's voice improved constantly as the quality of his selections deteriorated. His second group consisted of Chaikovski's Pilgrim Song, None But the Lonely Heart, which might gain courage if left alone for awhile, and Joseph Marx's If Love Has Entered Thy Heart. An operatic engagement in Cincinnatti which necessitated catching a train, stopped Tibbett's encores short but not before he had sung his inimitable Road to Mandalay and Malotte's setting of The Lord's Prayer and made a plea for funds on behalf of the orchestra.—N. Deficiency Bill Delay Ties Up Pay

3 U. S. Jobholders Crux of Deadlock Hitting Thousands Of Workers Here

Failure of a deadlocked Senate and House to pass the urgent deficiency bill for 1943 last night in time to meet the June 30 deadline will delay the payday of 13,000 District employes, several hundred legislative employes, and overtime pay for approximately 400,000 Federal workers.

Representative Cannon (Democrat) of Missouri late last night indicated that conferees expected to work out a compromise which would insure passage of the measure today. He declined to elaborate on the proposed compromise except to say that it involved a change in the language of a provision cutting off three Government employes from the Federal payroll.

Not Receding, Cannon Says

Cannon indicated, however, that the House which yesterday rejected by a vote of 301 to 71 a motion of Representative Marcantonio (American Labor) of New York to recede from its position and concur with the Senate, would not yield in its determination to see the three men named in its provision severed from the payroll.

The three men, accused many weeks ago of membership in subversive organizations by the special Appropriation Committee headed by Representative Kerr (Democrat) of North Carolina, are Dr. Robert Morss Lovett, Government secretary for the Virgin Islands, and Dr. Goodwin B. Watson and William E. Dodd, jr., of the Federal Communications Commission.

After the House voted to insist upon its amendment yesterday, House adjournment was delayed for two hours in the hope of Senate action.

Delayed by the War Agencies appropriation bill, the Senate sent the measure back to conference without a record vote after the House had adjourned.

Fund Legally Killed

Cannon revealed that payrolls cannot now be met from the President's Emergency Fund since failure of the bill to pass also leagily killed the fund after midnight yesterday.

The measure provided for the reappropriation of approximately 89 million dollars left in that fund.

Budget authorities said that the 1200 District custodial employes and the 3500 District schoolteachers who missed their payday last week might have been paid at that time by the President's Fund has District officials applied.

Meanwhile there is no possibility that 6000 clerical employes, 1700 policemen, and 600 firemen in the District will receive their pay tomorrow. If the measure passes tomorrow, it will still be about five days before the financial red tape can be straightened out.

D'Alesandro Asks Backing For Slum Bill

An apeal for nonpartisan support in both Houses of Congress when legislative efforts are made to improve insanitary housing conditions in the District of Columbia was made yesterday by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat) of Maryland, chairman of the Public Health Subcommittee of the House District Committee.

At the same time Representative Randolph (Democrat) of West Virginia, District Committee chairman, announced that he had directed that a study of possible legislation to carry out certain recommendation of the D'Alesandro committee be prepared during the summer congressional recess.

Randlph said measures necessary to the welfare of the District would be considered by the full committee in September.

D'Alesandro's appeal for support of measures to clean up the Nation's Capital was made in a letter which, together with a copy of the subcommittee report, was sent to every member of the Seventy-eighth Congress.

The letter read:

"Enclosed is a copy of a report, 'Investigation of Insanitary Housing, Tuberculosis and Social Diseases,' made by the Subcommittee on Public Health of the District of Columbia in the House of Representatives which is the result of extensive investigation. It was found that crowded and insanitary housing conditions threaten Washington with one or more epidemics. Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, has concurred with the committee on this finding.

"In this report we have attempted to indicate the immediate needs of the Nation's Capital. It is referred to you in the hope that when the several bills contemplated in the recommendations are presented for action your support will be forthcoming."

Landlady Fined $150 for Changing Room of Lodger

Mrs. Pearl Humble, Negro, operator of a rooming house at 1808 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, was fined $150 in Municipal Court yesterday by Judge Walter J. Casey for rent-control violations.

The complainant, Mrs. Mary Van Goez, Negro, said that she had been moved from her large first-floor room to a third-floor room during her absence.

A complaint was made to the Rent Control Board and Robert T. Smith, legal assistant, warned Mrs. Humble that she must allow Mrs. Goez the use of the original room. Mrs. Humble, according to the testimony, refused.

Mrs. Humble was found guilty of unlawful eviction, increase of rent over the ceiling of September, 1941, and reduction in service standards. She was fined $50 on each count.

Summer Term Begins Today In 34 Schools

Accelerated summer sessions will open today at 34 District public schools and for the first time at local teachers' colleges and vocational schools.

The current season's session will close August 5, at an earlier date than in past years, at the request of youngsters who wish to work in the country during harvest time or take advantage of the many jobs available in the city. In order to maintain the standard length of summer terms, schools will be in session on all Saturdays. Only holiday will be Monday, July 5.

Average registrations are expected at elementary and junior and senior high schools, E. J. Lockwood, director of summer schools, divisions 1-9, reported yesterday, while Wilson Teachers College had registered about 60 students yesterday. Miners Teachers College anticipated an enrollment of 150.

Summer sessions at Wilson and Miners Teachers Colleges were inaugurated this year to prepare young people more quickly for teaching positions, while enabling prospective draftees to complete their courses before induction. The need for warworkers with specialized training led vocational schools to hold their first summer courses.

Trade courses to be offered at Abbot and Chamberlain Vocational Schools will include auto mechanics, electricity, drafting, machine shop, printing, radio service, sheet metal, home nursing and nurses' aid training. At Phelps Vocational School, for Negro students, about 25 boys will continue a 12-month course in vocational agriculture, while a victory gardening program will be offered to about 150 adults. A victory canning course also will be given.

Advanced or refresher courses will be held at Central and Cardozo Senior High Schools, beginning today, while junior high schools opening include Macfarland, Stuart and Garnet-Patterson.

Summer sessions also will be held at the following elementary schools: Divisions 1-9, Addison, Blair, Buchanan, Burroughs, Emery, Fairbrother, Janney, Ketcham, Lafayette, Park View, Thomson, Wallach, Webb, West and Webster Americanization; Divisions 10-13, Bell, Burrville, John F. Cook, Garrison, Giddings, Lovejoy, Monroe, Phillips and Sumner.

Dr. F. P. Cassidy Appointed Acting Dean of College

The Rev. Dr. Frank P. Cassidy, secretary of the Catholic Sisters College, has been appointed acting dean of the college, the Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, rector, announced yesterday. He succeeds the Right Rev. Msgr. Edward B. Jordan who is now vice rector of Catholic University.

City News In Brief

Man Robbed of $1497

Police last night were searching for a pair of local recketeers in connection with the $1497 daylight robbery yesterday of Carroll H. Campbell, 37, 3301 Prospect Avenue, District barber and rooming house operator.

Apparently followed by his assailents Campbell was attacked in a third-floor corridor of an apartment building at 1447 Chapin Street Northwest, about 10:45. He had gone to the house, the vitctm said, to visit another barber.

The money, including a $1000 bill, 3 hundreds and the rest in smaller bills, was taken from his wallet.

Campbell was found semi-conscious by another resident and was taken to Garfield Hospital where he was treated for facial lacerations and a blackeye.

Snow's Court Reopened

Snow's Court playground for children was reopened in ceremonies late yesterday afternoon when Commissioner John Russell Young raised the American flag.

Presentation of the grounds for community use was made by M. Francis Sands, of the C. A. Snow Co., which owns the property. T. J. Anderson, of Howard University, spoke.

The grounds will be open six days a week for regular playground activities, and Sunday 5 to 6 p. m. open air religious services will be conducted there.

Magazine Editor Becomes President Of Rotary Club

Albert W. Atwood, former chief editorial writer for the Saturday Evening Post, yesterday took over the presidency of the Rotary Club of Washington at a club luncheon at the Willard Hoel.

Retiring President Wilberding outlined the Rotary Club's activities on the home front and for the furtherance of international relations in a speech to the assembly.

Women Comprise 21% Of Md. Farm Workers

College Park, Md., June 30 (AP).—Women and girls formed 21 per cent of the total farm workers in the State on June 1, compared with 5 per cent on June 1, 1942.

Three will be giving for a very personal cause, that of their own men relations fighting overseas. Norah G. Keiser has two sons in the Army, Meredith G. Du Bor has a son in the South Pacific, and Cleo M. Motto has three sons and five brothers in the service.

Hospitality Office

The Coordinating Council of Home Hospitality yesterday opened its enlarged quarters and reception center for warworkers at the parish house of St. John's Church, 821 Sixteenth Street Northwest. Newcomers will be furnished with an information service at the new office.

New Listening Room

Soldiers and sailors, forced to wait their turn in the hall or go away, have taxed the ingenuity of the public library's music division, and soon another record lestening room will open, it was announced yesterday. Servicemen visit this division in large numbers so it was decided to get along with one less office, and have another listening room.

The collection of about 5000 records is played daily and at all hours.

Miss Hayes a Guest

Actress Helen Hayes, on her way to Mexico for a three-week vacation, prepared for her trip by attending "Mexican Night" at the Stage Door Canteen last night.

The program included a talk by the Mexican Ambassador, Senor Najera, dances by a group of local Mexican senioritas and first presentation of an original show by the canteen hostesses.

Freedom in Your Own Back Yard

By Ruth Gregory

Going somewhere this Fourth? If you're one of the many we've asked, you are . . . right down a flight of steps into your own backyard. What you're going to wear is your own business—that's the nice thing about backyards, but you'll feel more festive in some sun-admitting playthings.

Better take a look at what you have on hand . . . and remember summer's just begun (oh yeah?) . . . there are a month of Sundays coming that are going to cry for shorts and pinafores.

We found some dandies for the money. Trim shorts with kick pleats in the front so that they're easy on the legs , , , sturdy, too, for around $3. If you want to feel star-spangled come next Sunday, tuck a red and white-striped basque shirt into a pair of these in Navy. Cotton basques, incidentally, are something you may want plenty of . . . they're cool, you can wear them with lots of things like overalls and slacks, and they launder like nobody's business. A good investment when you can get them for about $1 per.

If you're going to monkey in the Victory Garden before you relax under the shade of the old Catalpa tree (we hope you have one), the lightweight cotton overall in Turkey red is all the fireworks you need . . . the weeds will fly up. And if you're a pocket-stuffer, there are five big sassy ones to cram. It's only about $3.

If you just want to feel feminine and loll around, the checked gingham pinafore is sweet . . . and cheap, less than $3. Nice thing about this one is the fitted girdle effect around the waist—you can shape it to your own midriff by merely setting over one button.

P. S. In case you don't have a backyard, these are all good beach things, too.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

No mother need be unduly alarmed about the hot weather's influence on her children if she takes ordinary precautions against its known dangers.

The fact a child is going through his second summer and is therefore a prey to greater dangers, means only that the parent too often lets down her guards against new foods, against play in the hot sun, against iced drinks and ice cream concoctions and garners the sure consequences.

The second summer need be no more terrifying than the first if the mother will use the same measures to prevent digestive disturbances. The second summer, depending upon the birth date, comes between the child's twelfth and eighteenth months. It is an age when children perambulate under their own power; are getting double teeth; like all kinds of foods, especially those they see the adults eating, and are in a state of perpetual motion.

Therein lie the dangers. The parent is too easy-going. She is too inclined to the apparent sophism, "I don't think it will hurt him." Just a taste of this or that, just a small glass of the bubbly, cold drink, just another ice cream cone, just another handful of cookies, any of these may open the door to those digestive upheavals which are the second summer's bugaboo.

There are only a few rules of conduct to keep in mind and those may be relaxed when the weather turns cool. It shouldn't be too difficult to be careful for such a few months.

First of all, be sure all milk the child drinks is boiled. Cool it rapidly and then keep it ice cold until serving time. Never warm it ahead of time—for any reason—and allow it to stand. If there is any suspicion of the water supply, boil it for the child. When the appetite is captious, skim the milk and cut the portions of solid foods in half. Allow no unusual foods.

Substitute fruit drinks made at home for most bottled drinks. The exception is ginger ale, which is appetizing to the child when the stomach is upset or when there is fever.

Dress the child lightly, give him several cool sponge baths a day and keep him out of the sun in the middle of the day. If you are conscientious about practicing these rules you can stop worrying about the second summer.

Scrambled Eggs

For a heaping platter of fluffy scrambled eggs—with less than the usual number of eggs—add cracker crumbs just before pouring into the skillet. Crumble or crush them, but not too fine. About 2 tablespoonfuls to each egg will add a distinctive flavor as well as welcome volume to the dish.

Hints on How to Keep Vegetables

Vegetables like sweet corn, lima beans and peas keep better in their jackets. They should also be kept cold. If prepared for cooking any length of time beforehand, they should be kept tightly covered in the ice box.

Vegetables such as cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and broccoli should be left uncut and kept cold. Root vegetables—beets, turnips, rutabagas, carrots—should be stored in a cool, ventilated place.

Berries, cherries and grapes should be stored unwashed in a shallow tray in a cold place and washed just before using. Eggs should also be stored unwashed—washing them removes the protective film which keeps out air and odors. They should be placed in an open bowl or wire basket in a cool place.

Peaches, pears and plums should not be washed until ready to use but should be spread out to keep from bruising. Ripe fruit should be kept in a cool place and the unripe at room temperature to give it a chance to ripen.

Apples should be kept cool. They soften in one day at 70 degrees, and in two days at 50. Bananas, when you can get them, should be kept at room temperature.

All meats and poultry should be kept clean, cold and covered. Fresh meats should be covered loosely and wiped with a damp cloth just before cooking. If it is chopped or ground, it should be kept in an extra cold part of the refrigerator and used soon. Cooked meat should always be kept covered and not cut or chopped until ready to use. Salad and sandwich meats should be kept cold right up to the time they are put on the table. Poultry should be washed thoroughly inside and out, and patted dry, and kept very cold until time to cook.

Fish and all other sea food should be cooked at once or wrapped in wax paper to keep the odor from other food and stored in a cold part of the icebox.

Allergies Are Not New

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

Allergy is one of those strictly technical scientific words that occasionally get taken over into common speech, like "gravitation," "electric," "magnetic," "orbit," and as is usual in such cases, in common speech it loses its exact meaning. To say, "This is an electric machine," has an entirely different meaning from, "His is an electric personality." You hear, "I am allergic to her," and it may mean, "She affects me very favorably," or "She irritates me." The way the word got into the language is a key to what it should mean.

The fact that some people reacted differently than the majority of their fellows to common substances has been sporadically recorded by many older medical writers. Hippocrates wrote: "It is a bad thing to give milk to persons having headache."

John Bostock, in 1819, read a paper before the London Medical Society in which he described hay fever in himself:

"About the beginning or middle of June in every year a sensation of heat and fullness is experienced in the eyes, gradually becoming converted into a combination of the most acute itching and smarting. To this succeeds irritation of the nose, producing sneezing, which occurs in fits of extreme violence, coming on at uncertain intervals. To the sneezings are added a further sensation of tightness of the chest, and a difficulty of breathing."

Henry Hyde Salter published his treatise "On Asthma" in 1868 and noted:

"One asthmatic is obliged to take a sea voyage; another cannot stroke or nurse a cat; another is rendered asthmatic by a privet hedge; another cannot sleep upon a pillow stuffed with feathers, and one young lady I knew who did not dare to pass a poulter's shop."

Physicians, then even long ago, knew of these "queer" people who were "sensitive" to substances—smells and contacts and foods—that did not affect other people at all.

These separate facts were not scientifically grouped, however, until with the use of diphtheria antitoxin in 1893, serum reactions began to be common. Here would be a child who had required two doses of antitoxin, and on receiving the second broke out with hives and had severe asthma. It was soon proved that the horse serum, not the antitoxin, did this, and that one dose sensitized the recipient to the second. This phenomenon was called anaphylaxis—the opposite of prophylaxis.

It was seen, too, that this kind of reaction was the same as that of the hay fever victim to pollen,

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Creed for a Future Octogenarian

Realizing that the span of human life is steadily being prolonged, that women generally live longer than men, and that I have a very good chance of becoming somebody's great-grandmother or great-aunt, or at least an elderly fifth wheel in a world becoming daily more crowded and complex, I will prepare early to fill such a role happily and productively.

First of all, I will look to my health. In order that I may remain active, useful and independent, as long as possible during the years ahead of me, I treasure my body, and by food, exercise and care, build it to its highest efficiency.

I will begin early to do some hard-headed thinking about finance. I realize that the grandmother or aunt with even a little stake of her own gets a warmer welcome and far more respect in the home of her relatives than if she were penniless—or what is better yet, is enabled to maintain her own sovereignty in her own home if it is nothing more than a furnished room. Hence I forego a few luxuries now for the sake of more independence a little later—when a maturing war bond will look a lot better to me than a fur coat.

I will develop some professional or trade skill that will give me a tool for earning my living even though I expect to be sheltered in domesticity. I will realize that the increasing number of widows as well as other feminine lone wolves will need to become producers of some kind both for their own contentment and the good of society, and I will early in life try to find what I am best equipped to do and be ready to do it.

I will prepare to be interesting and stimulating company to myself when the time comes that I will be increasingly alone. I will realize that eventually most of my present intimates will be scattered or gone, that while I may be sympathetic in spirit to youth, I cannot hang on to its coattails for companionship, that indeed even the harried and busy middle-aged generation cannot halt for my slower pace, and that I must have a creative hobby or interest, an inner resource of some kind that is not dependent on time, place or people, and that will go faithfully and comfortingly with me to the grave.

I will cultivate the grace of adaptability. I will face the fact that I probably sooner or later will have to live with persons whose ways and thoughts may not be mine. Hence, I will guard against getting set in habit, and above all in opinion, and I will remember that the great Anglo-Saxon gift of compromise is necessary for successful home life as well as government.

I will begin early to practice democracy in all my relationships with other people—especially those nearest and dearest to me. I will constantly remind myself of the right of the human spirit to its privacy, its dignity and its freedom. I will be prepared, should life place me in crowded physical relationships, to practice mentally the philosophy of live and let live and never to impinge on the inner lives of others—or let them impinge on mine. I will zealously fight off the tendency of age to be didactic, possessive and domineering to those younger. I will try to become enough of an individual in my own right that I will not have to eat off of the interests or vitality of others.

I will above all keep on growing. I will realize that when life slows down for me it is more imperative than ever that I keep in tune with its laws, that I change, evolve, go on to new knowledge, experience, ideas, beliefs, aspirations that I may have the satisfying sense of being a part of the scheme of things and that the confines of an arm chair may never bar me from the soaring adventures of the soul.

Woman Asks How to Engineer Psychiatric Help For Friend, a Pampered Young Wife, Who Whines Or Flies Into Frenzies at Domestic Irritants

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Is there anything that I, as a close friend (though living many miles away), can do for this girl (or rather, married woman) whom I am about to discuss? She is nearly 30, has been married five years and has a son nearly two. At the time she got married, she was painfully thin. She had (as I understand), been ill with pneumonia four or five times during previous years, and had been pretty pampered as a result. In fact, she is so babyish-acting and talking sometimes even now, that we all get disgusted. Though she is not an "only child," she might as well have been,—so far as spoiling and petting go.

She has had, I will admit, more than her share of physical ills. Her back bothers her a lot. If there is a flu germ at large, she is sure to get it and be sick abed for days. Every contagious ailment seems to come to her. However, she isn't content to make a concise statement about these real and imaginary ailments of hers; but talks anyone she can corner "deaf, dumb and blind" about her afflictions; and if the listener should refer to any troubles of his, she can top them every time.

She gets herself in frenzies over domestic problems; and has had hysterics several times since the baby came,—if not, indeed, before;—so that the doctor had to come and give her a quieting hypodermic. She bosses and nags her husband, who loves her so much that he just takes it. Recently, in a rage at the baby because he wouldn't take his nap, she screamed at him until he actually quaked. She has said sometimes that she hates both the baby and her husband; but in calmer moments she has retracted that. She is always running to her doctor for something; although she is the picture of health since being married, and has gained weight until she is positively husky. But try to tell her that!

I have decided that she doesn't even try to curb her emotions; and that if anything her tantrums are getting worse. She has lost nearly all her friends,—who refuse to listen to her whining. But for some reason, I have been able to see that deep down underneath those layers of self-centred complaints there IS a woman,—who is in accord with my own views on many subjects. I think I may sincerely say that I am one of her best friends; and what is more, she is one of mine. That's why her state of mind bothers me. She has had much more, materially, since being married, than she had before. Although her husband definitely is not well off, her standard of living as his wife is a great improvement over her childhood.

I am wondering how (if you think it is the right thing for me to do), I can engineer a consultation between my friend and a psychiatrist who could (I feel sure) help her straighten out all the unfortunate quirks in her mind. Even if it should be at the cost of her friendship (temporarily or permanently), I would feel I had done the right thing, if I could help her get a better slant on life. This isn't a comprehensive report on her condition, and maybe you won't be able to draw any conclusions. But I fervently hope you can, and eagerly await your reply.

B. M. L.

Psychiatry Only Helps Those Who Want Help

DEAR B. M. L.: It appears that your friend is a neurotic, whose psychological development has been "arrested" at an infantile level of outlook; and likewise neurasthenic,—which is to say, afflicted by a characteristic condition of worry, disturbance of digestion, circulation, etc., that stems from emotional conflict. It is unlikely that a benevolently "engineered" consultation with a psychiatrist would be of any benefit to her, for the following reasons: (1) psychiatry can ONLY help adult-age neurotics who fervently and intelligently seek help in "coming of age," psychologically; and (2) your friend's most urgent wish, obviously, is to hold fast to what seems to her to be the advantages and prerogatives of the semi-invalid, spoiled child or "poor darling" status.

In other words, the way she sees (or, rather "feels") things,—from the viewpoint of the perennially pampered sensitive plant,—nothing could be worse or more undesirable than graduation from the infant's-attention-getting role into the casually-burden-bearing higher bracket of normally hardy adulthood. Every detail of your offhand description of her alternately whimpering and tantrum-throwing performance as wife and mother graphically portrays her defiant, rebellious rejection of the adult status and all its works. A more comprehensive report would have been superfluous.

Husband Should Act To Curb Her Hysteria

In my opinion, her husband is the only person who has a ghost of a chance,—but no more than that,—of shocking her into (1) a wide-awake recognition of the self-defeating nature of her "escapist" performance; and (2) an instantaneously-adopted program of psychiatrically administered "emergency" re-education to force quick growth from infantilism to approximate maturity of behavior. And he could only do it by being sufficiently adult himself to refuse, absolutely, to further tolerate in long-suffering silence or patient compassion, either her bullyragging of himself or their "quaking" child. In letting her rage herself out,—i. e., "taking" her tantrums because he "loves" her,—he is at once acting the coward and doing all concerned (his wife, himself and the child) a great disservice. If he loves her, he should have the willingness and the courage to take a strong hand, or positive steps, to try to help her conquer hysteria,—even at the expense of hurting her sharply and perhaps himself also, in the process.

It might mark a turning point for the better in her experience if her husband had the wisdom to say to her sternly, with deep conviction: "Molly, it's one thing for you to put me through hell, as you have for the past five years, with your unbridled tempers and your tiresome ill health and your everlasting complaints; but it's someting else, something I won't stand for,—get me, I WON'T STAND FOR,—when you turn on Junior and scare him half to death. I've taken plenty of punishment since we've been married, and said nothing about it. After all, I asked for it; and besides, I love you,—or I used to think so. Also, I've felt sorry for you, for reasons too numerous to mention. But my sympathy for you goes out the window, when you throw these fits in the presence of Johnnie. He is entitled to something better than that, from the person who is supposed to be taking the lead in molding his character. And if you choose to forget that fact,—well, I don't. I have a big stake in that kid's future, and I refuse to stand by and see you make the same nervous wreck of him that you seem to enjoy being. You are making the biggest mistake of your life, Molly, in falling down like this on your job as a mother;—and in obliging me to take sides against you. This is a very serious situation; wonder if you know HOW serious. My advice to you,—and I am speaking straight from the shoulder, for the kid's benefit; and also from the bottom of my heart, where I feel for you,—my advice to you is to cut out this tantrum-throwing, beginning tonight, and see what you can do about becoming a real woman . . ." Etc.

If she could be given to see (by him) that she WAS on trial in her husband's mind and heart, and that nothing less than an adult performance on her part could revive and sustain his respect and affection,—she might in pure panic seek expert help in "straightening out the kinks in her mind," and getting "a better slant on life." But unless she gets such a jolt from that quarter, she probably never will mend her ways,—because SHE'S getting warped enjoyment out of things as they are.

With cheese at 8 points per pound, even the smallest shred should not be wasted. After grinding cheese for spaghetti, always run a few crackers through the grinder. The crackers will pick up all of the cheese which has adhered to ridges and blades and will also add bulk.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Steamed cabbage wedges with a mask of creamy cheese sauce, served with broiled ham, makes an appealing main dish. Make use of cabbage for it is a worthy vegetable which needs never become monotonous since it can be served in various combinations and ways.

It isn't only the aristocratic foods which are coming in for attention in the rollback of food prices. Bourgeois cabbage now boasts a ceiling price along with lettuce.

A 25 to 40 per cent rollback on the price of these two green vegetables deserve special mention. Cabbage is rich in vitamin C, and also contains vitamins A, B1 and G. It also contains minerals, especially valuable for its iron content. Raw cabbage is our most abundant vegetable source of vitamin C. Lettuce, like cabbage, is valuable for vitamins and minerals, especially iron.

Scalloped cabbage is rather a luxurious treatment of cabbage. Let's plan using it in a dinner menu. Since cabbage must not be cooked for a long time, this dish will need be baked but 10 minutes in a 375-degree oven. Just long enough to bake some biscuits or heat some rolls.

DINNER MENU

Chilled Vegetable Juice
Broiled Ham Scalloped Cabbage
Baked Potato Slices
Biscuits Butter
Apricot Sherbet Cookies
Iced Tea

The scalloped cabbage is a dish that can utilize stale bread and bacon fat. Mince sauted bacon can be included in the recipe if desired, but it is not necessary. Here is the recipe:

SCALLOPED CABBAGE

Chop, then boil, 1 small-sized head of cabbage. Drain it well. Prepare ¾ cup cream sauce. Prepare 1 tablespoon chopped peppers, 1 tablespoon chopped pimientos, Saute and mince 3 slices bacon (optional). Melt 1 tablespoon bacon fat or other fat and toss ¼ cup bread crumbs lightly into this. Place layers of drained cabbage in a greased baking dish. Sprinkle them with the minced bacon, the peppers and pimientos and ½ cup or less grated cheese. Cover them with the cream sauce. Top the dish with the sauted bread crumbs. Bake the cabbage in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 10 minutes. Serves 4.

SHORT SHORT STORY

"Thrift is a Wonderful Thing"

June bought this stunning L. Frank Company . . . sable-blended, Northern Muskrat coat today.

"Why don't you get one tomorrow?" She asked Betty. "Look, it's fashioned from Northern Muskrats, and I'm assured that means a deeper pile, sturdier, longer wear. See? It looks like sable. That's because of the blending . . . it's not dyed, so it's truer to rich sable tones and definitely superior." She stroked the lovely coat.

"Why did you buy it now? The weather's hot—"

"But the coat's kept cold! I'm using L. Frank Company's lay-away plan . . . it's stored for me and I never miss the money. So if you're as thrifty as I think you are, you'll get one yourself, tomorrow!"

Missouri "Neighbor" Plan Initiated by Mrs. Renfrow

By Genevieve Reynolds

Again Missouri is showing them how. This time it is a practical application of the good neighbor policy. From Hannibal to St. Louis, from Kansas City to La Monte, the State has opened its heart as well as its hospitable doors to our friends from south of the border. That isn't all. The folks from 12 to 60 are learning Spanish.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Initiator and practical exponent of this effective good neighbor policy is dynamic Mrs. Ruth Keslo Renfrow, alert, progressive president of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs. In town visiting her husband, Lieut. Col. L. H. Renfrow, in the United States Medical Division Selective Service, she is enthusiastically planning more and more ways to cement mutual understanding among the peoples of the United States and the other American republics.

Now in full swing is the Missouriana—a project in which old and young, rich and poor participate. It's a traveling exhibit of literature, pictures, pamphlets, folders and what not of scenes from the various Latin-American countries. Also, there are samples of art work, handicrafts and even farming projects. This vast exhibit now is being housed at Warrensburg Teachers College. Missourians also are busy building up a similar State project to be shown in Latin-American countries. So from hamlet to cities, the men, women, and school children will know about Missouri—its churches, its industries, its homes, its art, its handicrafts.

This year practically all the schools, colleges, and communities put on a Pan-American fiesta. In remote sections of the State, as well as the cities, people danced the zamba, rumba, tango and folk dances of each of the Latin-American countries.

When a Latin American visits Missouri he or she is met at his point of arrival, be it airport, railway station or bus terminal, by a member of the Federation's courtesy committee. The visitor is entertained by a resident of the city in the same friendly way she would entertain for any out-of-State guest. The introduction of the Latin American to Missourians is natural—not a special show put on for a visitor. The hostess finds out what her guests are interested in and shows them the town or State accordingly. And when the guests depart their gift is a copy of the History of Missouri compiled and written by the State WPA. These are given by the State's Federation of Women's Clubs that is leading in this effective Pan-American program.

Responsible for making her State good neighbor conscious is Mrs. Renfrow. It all started when she went with a group of women from the General Federation of Women's Clubs on a tour of South America. In the various countries, she met and talked with the people from all walks of life. She found out what they thought of our way of life . . . their aims and their interests, their attitudes. Then she came home to start her good neighbor policy, first through the federation, then through schools and communities.

Mrs. Renfrow didn't stop there. She broke red tape, traditions and customs to get our Government to bring undergraduate students to this country on scholarships. Heretofore, only graduate Latin-American students had been brought here. Advancing the theory that the older graduate students already were indoctrinated with their own beliefs, she maintained that the younger students would be more impressionable. Furthermore, four years in this country rather than one would give them a chance to know the North Americans better. Mrs. Renfrow sold the idea to the powers that be. In addition she persuaded them to send girls to the normal teachers' colleges not only in Missouri but elsewhere in the Middle West. Result is that already five scholarships have been established in teachers colleges for next year. There's an art scholarship at Washington University, a journalism scholarship at the University of Missouri and an opening at the Rolla School of Mines and nursing at Barnes Hospital.

If you think the federation brings the students over and forgets them, you are dead wrong. The club pays the expenses of the girls to travel in the Middle West during vacation time. Or they may spend the summer with federation members in town, city or village. By the time she arrives in the community, old and young are awaiting her visit to shower her with real friendship, in true Missouri style. Mrs. Renfrow insisted that the scholarship students come without worry or financial strain; that they be given sufficient money for travel, tuition, room and board and for extracurricular activities.

Back at school the girl has a guardian angel looking after her social life as well as her studies. Usually, it's a Spanish-speaking teacher in the college. Now that the war has ejected many of the girl students from their college dorms, the federation women are taking them into their homes to live.

How tall, handsome, youthful-looking Mrs. Renfrow accomplished all this is her own secret. But you can be sure that she upset many a tradition in the Missouri towns and schools. Eventually, she hopes other States will adopt the good neighbor policy with the same thorough effectiveness as Missouri. Too modest to take the credit for Missouri's good neighbor policy, she distributes her praises among the State's Federation women, school boards, college heads, politicians—in fact, everybody.

At the same time she was working day and night on this program, she was launching a recruiting campaign for student nurses. Despite floods and high water, bridges that bore the sign, "Dangerous," or "Do Not Cross," she visited every nook and corner of the State. She even got a freight car to help out in the transportation problem. Often she spoke at rallies or meetings five to ten times a day. Yesterday she telephoned to say: "I've just had a telegram from Missouri saying that we have obtained the State's quota of student nurses."

Now she's off on a big program to promote backyard playgrounds and to help lower the increasing juvenile delinquency rate.

Zwiebach Crumbs Save Sugar, Butter

Here's a wartime topping for coffee cake that actually increases the flavor richness of the finished product:

Instead of spotting an ordinary crumb topping lavishly with butter and sugar, use crushed zwieback. Cover your cake with a cup of zwieback or rusk crumbs to which 2 level tablespoons each of sugar and melted margarine or butter, and a half teaspoon cinnamon, have been added.

Dance Tonight Helps Promote Bond With Brazil

The M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club dance at the Hotel Annapolis, scheduled for tonight, has a twofold purpose—promotion of friendship with Brazil and the raising of funds for a scholarship which will be used to bring a Brazilian student here after the war.

The national M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club began in Texas with the express purpose of fostering good old-fashioned friendship. It soon spread to other States, until now, under the presidency of Mrs. Eric W. Schwartze, the club is attempting to carry the idea of closer friendship beyond our own shores.

This year, the club enlarges upon its original project by including China, Brazil and the Dominican Republic as the countries with which to get better acquainted.

The Brazilian colony in Washington has lent itself wholeheartedly to the support of tonight's affair. Among those subscribing are Minister-Counselor and Mme. Fernando Lobo, Col. and Mme. Armando de Souza e Mello Ararigboia (Air Attache), Col. and Mme Stanio Caio de Albuquerque Lima (Military Attache), Lieut. Comdr. and Mme. Paulo Antonio Teiles Bardy (Assistant Naval Attache), Mr. and Mrs. A. C. de Alencastro-Cuimaraes (First Secretary), Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Berges da Fonseca (Second Secretary), Mr. Paulo Frees da Cruz (Agricultural Attache), Mr. Alfeau Domingues (Agricultural Attache), Dr. Lino Sa Pereira (Educational Attache), Miss Sa Pereira, Mr. and Mrs. Ceslo Paul Gracia (Attache), Mr. and Mrs. Henrique Redrigues Valle (Attache), Mr. and Mrs. Aluysio Guedes Regis Bittencourt (Attache), Mr. and Mrs. Roberto de Oliveira Campos (Attache).

Also among the supporters are Gen. and Mrs. Leitae de Carvalho, chief of the Joint Brazil-United States Defense Commission; Commander and Mme. Espindola, chief of the Brazilian Naval Purchasing Commission, and Major and Mme. Menteiro, Capt. and Mrs. Mauricio Lessa, Captain Caldraz and Captain Pereira (all of the Brazilian Military Commission).

Erlebacher
Washington, D.C.

Open Thursday 12:30 to 9 P.M.

Sketched: Smart, boldly executed, this newest idea in Black-dyed Persian Lamb, is excitingly lovely. It's a full-back tuxedo model with cuffs that mean roomy action. So durable, so adaptable, so comfortable. $850.00 plus tax.

To Our Patrons—

In many ways, the Erlebacher Summer Sale of Winter 1943 Furs, which we announce starting Today is outstanding. The authoritative collection has been long in the making. It began last winter when we covered the fur markets and procured our choice of fine skins. For many months our fur experts have experimented with models, until we arrived at the perfect silhouette. We base our collection on three great principles:

FASHION—We have created a new silhouette designed to go with the new clothes for Winter '43. One that has great ease with restrained fullness. Mindful of their function as over-suit coats, we saw to it that our furs would have a slightly deeped armscye, while avoiding the bulkiness of dolman sleeves. We designed a new "carved" shoulder that establishes a fashion totally different from that of previous years. We believe in the coat with "day and night" cuffs . . . in the fashion of the fur jacket in all lengths for day and evening. These are but a few of the collection highlights.

QUALITY—It is our custom to buy only from the finest resources, so as to maintain complete control over the quality of fur. Selection of skins, detailing and workmanship and even the final selection of proper linings, are done under the most critical supervision, with the result that every coat in the Erlebacher collection is a FINE coat, whatever its price.

VALUE—We are loathe at any time to sell merchandise on the basis that it may advance in price. We can say truthfully that we ourselves had so much confidence in the values represented here that we made the largest purchase of furs in our entire history. We believe that wise buyers will avail themselves of the opportunity to purchase Erlebacher furs at prevailing summer prices. I shall be happy to have the opportunity of rendering any assistance in the selection of your furs.

First Lady Answers Variety of Questions at Final Conference

Will Spend Part of Summer At Hyde Park; to Visit Seattle

By Marie McNair

Mrs. Roosevelt said farewell for the summer to members of her press conference yesterday, with the warning that from now until fall she will be "off the record." That is, unless "some kings and queens" come to visit—a question put to her by one of the group—which she reechoed. And which at the moment is quite unlikely.

A good part of the summer will be spent at Hyde Park, Mrs. Roosevelt said, doing some necessary things around the estate and in the neighborhood and later she will visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger in Seattle. She will come back to the White House for brief visits, however, and will be on call if she is needed.

Questions put to the First Lady yesterday ranged from subsidies to racial problems, laundry troubles, her oft-discussed trip to South America, and wound up with "What do you think of Clare Luce's accusation that the President is an isolationist" The answer to that one was "It depends on how you define isolationist."

The controversial subject of subsidies, Mrs. Roosevelt believes, should be discussed only by those who have real responsibility and authority to do something about it. As far as Mrs. Roosevelt knows, no alternative plan has been found to achieve the desired result to keep us from inflation and to keep the cost of living down, although she emphasizes the enormous importance of preventing inflation. An educational campaign would be a good idea, the First Lady believes, but such projects are usually slow in progress and she doubts that there is time now to institute anything of the kind.

War Tension Cause of Riots

"Keep down fear" is the answer to the racial disturbances which are prevalent throughout the country now, and "show goodwill." That's Mrs. Roosevelt's theory to put an end to riots and race clashes that are assuming importance in the topics of today. Basis of these racial current troubles goes back a long way, Mrs. Roosevelt is convinced, and is probably the result of tension of war and war strain under which everybody exists.

Scotch rumors and stop unreasoning fear; run down rumors and give them publicity and reveal the truth, Mrs. Roosevelt commented, and she further states that, because they are afraid, many people do things unconsciously which bring on disastrous results. The recent race riots in Detroit brought her a flood of letters, many of them laying the root of the friction at the White House door.

A firm believer in an equal work standard, the First Lady believes that equal pay should be given to anyone able to do the work. If there is a varied wage scale the higher price scale will eventually sink to the lower level.

Excess purchasing power also came in for discussion, the First Lady answering the question on the solution of the problem with the remark that she believes we will be forced in time to resort to compulsory savings, but that at present we are doing well on the voluntary basis, many people taking great pride and satisfaction in being able to save from their increased earnings.

Not Going to South America

No trip to South America was ever contemplated, according to Mrs. Roosevelt, but she admitted that some time ago Nelson Rockefeller had said he hoped she could go.

And as to returning the visit of Mme. Chiang Kaishek, well, that depends on a number of things and there are no plans at the present time for a journey to China.

Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public are having their laundry troubles what with the shortage of labor, but, as far as she knows, the White House laundry bundles are coming back on regular schedule, Mrs. Roosevelt said.

But the First Lady did have troubles with censorship in her recent "My Day" columns.

On three occasions she mentioned weather conditions, was called down by the censors, although the weather was "over" when the paragraph appeared in print. Now she "takes her weather more seriously."

White House horses go pleasure driving? Asked about this Mrs. Roosevelt replied that every year the White House horses are removed to the Fort Myer stables to be exercised. They go in an Army truck. This year they happened to make the trip the day following the announcement on the pleasure-driving ban. But could it be classed as pleasure?

Artist Seeks Permission To Paint Boys Overseas

Jean Appleton Wants to Give Real Pictures to Folks at Home

By Martha Rhyne

"I'd make a terrible WAVE or WAAC—I'm no secretary—and I can't even count," says pretty Jean Appleton, artist, "but I'm in Washington trying to get permission to go overseas and paint our soldiers and sailors in action." She's another person who wishes to turn her peacetime job into a wartime duty—and she's very convincing in her argument.

"You see," she said, "an artist has mental contact with her subject as an actor has with his audience. Accuracy in portraiture can be obtained by painting from photographs, but you have to see the person in action to make a picture live." It is in this way that she wishes to paint our servicemen overseas and portray them to the American public, part of which is still passive to the war.

This native Bostonian, who thinks that the Hub City is a fine place for other people to live, divides her time between Washington and New York, making her living painting people. And the people here in Washington are completely fascinating to her. "Here you find all the kinds of people that you've ever heard of—and some kinds you haven't heard of. Washington is an artist's paradise." She is staying at the Mayflower Hotel while here.

Several months ago she was here painting the Washingtonians who are running the war. She wanted to give the people a picture which would show their earnestness rather than the glaring mistakes of which they are constantly accused. So her series of portraits appeared in one of Boston's newspapers, including Donald Nelson, James S. Knowlson, Leon Henderson, Paul B. McNutt, Dexter M. Kebzer, William H. Davis, William L. Batt, Gen. Allen Gullion and Chinese General Tsai.

Miss Appleton's favorite Washington institution is the taxicab driver—she always talks to them. Once she rode with a woman driver who told her all about her baby and her hobby, etching and sketching dogs and horses. It was like a sorority convention. Then there was the time when Miss Appleton was on her way to paint Donald Nelson. The cab driver, seeing her portfolio, asked enough questions to find out that the artist was going to paint the "boss" of WPB. The driver asked her to deliver to Mr. Nelson the message that he thought the executive was doing a fine job. The message was delivered and WPB's "boss" was pleased.

Her war work consists of painting servicemen at the Henry Hudson Hotel in New York, where officers gather to dance—these portraits she gives them.

But she's anxious to go across. And this "ever-so-sketchable-herself" young artist has her argument cut and dried. I'll only take my cardboard and my charcoals—with those instruments of war, I can do my job."

She can hardly remember when she didn't want to be an artist; she studied for nearly 10 years after completing the regular education courses; and she's still hard at work learning new angles. Even a fling at Hollywood and a chance at pictures didn't sway her resolve. So, 10 to 1, if the determination holds out, Jean Appleton will soon be sketching from "somewhere over there."

June Bows Out in Cloud of Orange Blossoms and Tulle

At a 9 o'clock ceremony with a nuptial mass, Miss Janet Hart McBride, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Hart McBride of Washington, and the late Lieut. Comdr. Charles J. McBride, U. S. N. R., of Philadelphia, became the bride yesterday of Edward Lynch Spellerberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Spellerberg, of Springfield Gardens, Long Island. The ceremony was held in the shrine of the Sacred Heart with the Rev. Roland Fannon officiating.

J. Willard Reed, of Flushing, N. Y., and Atlantic Beach, Long Island, gave his niece in marriage. The bride wore a white satin and net gown, the fitted bodice of satin with long close sleeves and sweetheart neckline. The bouffant net skirt ended in a short circular train and was trimmed with tiny satin bownots. A narrow seed pearl wreath trimmed with tiny clusters of orange blossoms held the short circular tulle veil. She carried a white prayerbook covered with white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Adelaide Roberts, who was maid of honor, wore a white marquisette gown painted with delicate pink and blue flowers and a Juliet cap of the same material. She carried a Colonial bouquet of pink and white roses and blue delphinium. Francis Spellerberg, brother of the bridegroom, was his best man, and the ushers were Gerard Kane and Leonard McGann.

Following the ceremony a small reception for relatives and close friends was held at the home of the bride's mother.

The bride is a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart and Wilson Teachers College. She attended George Washington University and Columbia University and received her master's degree at Catholic University. Mr. Spellerberg attended Catholic University and was attending Georgetown University School of Law before becoming an instructor of military and Naval personnel in Washington.

Simpson—Giles

Miss Alice Joan Giles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett T. Giles, and Ellsworth T. Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth L. Simpson of Arlington, Va., were married last evening at All Souls Episcopal Church with the Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a mousseline de soie gown made with a full circular train and a finger tip tulle veil held by a halo of pearls. Her bouquet was of white pinks and baby's breath.

Mrs. Vernon Dunn, who was matron of honor, was gowned in blue marquisette and carried a bouquet of marguerites. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Walter Monroe Ennis, jr., cousin of the bride, and Mrs. George Pope, wore frocks made alike of yellow marquisette and carried clusters of Shasta daisies.

Robert L. Simpson served as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Lieut. Thomas D. Simpson, another brother; Lieut. Ralph Hammersley, Lieut. Kenneth Stedman and J. Carter Fort, jr.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was held at the Wardman Park Hotel for the bridal party and immediate families. For traveling the bride wore a suit of natural tussalene with cocoa brown accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Simpson will be at home at 22 South Old Glebe Road, Arlington, Va.

Chalker—Harmer

Miss Mary Margaret Harmer, daughter of Mrs. Franklin Milton Harmer, and Royal Herbert Chalker, son of Mrs. Clarence Elmer Chalker of Glenburnie, Md., were married yesterday at 3 o'clock, the ceremony taking place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Anthony Rowan. The Rev. Thomas M. Moran of St. Thomas the Apostle Church officiated, and a small reception followed.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, John Leroy Ingoldsby. She wore a white organdy gown made with a full skirt, fitted basque and long-pointed sleeves. The neck was finished with a Peter Pan collar. Her fingertip tulle veil fell from a Juliet cap of pearls and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and baby's breath.

Miss Mary Frances Harmer, the maid of honor, wore an orchid organdy gown made with an apron ruffle and a matching headdress with a face veil. Her flowers were Talisman roses. Miss Patricia Chalker, who was flower girl, was in an aqua organdy frock fashioned with a shirred bodice and tiered skirt. Her headdress was the same color and she carried a nosegay of Talisman roses. Albert B. Sommer served as best man.

Maj. R.C. Page, Miss M'Dougall Married Here

The marriage of Miss Jean MacDougall, daughter of Mrs. Hethbert Eugene MacDougall, of Chicago formerly of Minneapolis, Minn., and Maj. Robert Collier Page, son of Mrs. Emily Page of Detroit, formerly of New York, took place in Washington yesterday afternoon at St. John's Church. The Rev. John G. Magee read the service at 6:30 o'clock and a reception followed immediately afterward at the Carlton Hotel.

The bride wore a chalk white crepe gown with a yoke of Duchess lace and panels of lace in the skirt, and a finger-tip tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of gladioli.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Jay Murray of Minneapolis, was in a white net and faille gown, the fitted bodice of faille and the bouffant skirt of net. Her headdress was of pleated white net with a scarlet bird and she carried a bouquet of scarlet gladioli. The junior bridesmaid, Sally Ann Allee of Chicago, wore a similar costume to that of the matron of honor and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of scarlet gladioli.

Col. W. P. Holbrook, Medical Air Corps, served as best man, and the ushers were Capt. H. Schaller, Air Corps, and Maj. M. O. Conner, Medical Air Corps.

After a short wedding trip to North Carolina Major and Mrs. Page will make Washington their home. When the bride left on her honeymoon she wore a powder blue costume with Navy blue accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

The bridegroom attended Northwestern University Medical School and did graduate work in Philadelphia and Leeds, England. He is a diplomate American Board of Internal Medicine and fellow American College of Physicians. At present he is a member of the professional division of the staff of the Air Surgeon, Brig. Gen. David N. W. Grant. The bride attended the University of Minnesota and is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority.

Miss Fromme Of FallsChurch Recent Bride

And still they come—weddings to swell the mounting list of June's vital statistics.

Among the weddings of last weekend was the Saturday ceremony in which Miss Barbara Fromme, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Denton Fromme of Limewood, Falls Church, Va., became the bride of Lieut. Robert Stuart Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart L. Henderson of Ridgewood, N. J. The Rev. John G. Sadtler officiated at the 6 o'clock ceremony which took place in the garden of the bride's home.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white embroidered organdy, made with a ruffled skirt. She carried a bouquet of white shasta daisies. The matron of honor, Mrs. Frank Price Kennedy, a sister of the bride, was dressed in white muslin, embroidered in yellow. Her flowers were yellow daisies. Miss Anne Fromme, another sister of the bride and her maid of honor, was dressed like the other attendant. Capt. John Medaris of Dayton, Ohio, served as best man.

After wedding trip to the seashore, the couple will make their home in Orlando, Fla. The bride attended West Virginia University and George Washington University. Her husband was graduated from Williams College.

Batte—Coleman

The wedding of Miss Julia Coleman, daughter of Mrs. Lewis Cameron Coleman, and the late Mr. Coleman of Blackstone, Va., to Albert Bascom Batte, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bascom Batte of Greensville County, Va., took place at noon Saturday in the chapel of the First Baptist Church in Richmond, Va.

The Rev. Charles G. McDaniel, an uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was unattended, wore a costume of powder blue with white accessories, and a corsage of white orchids.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Blackstone.

Glaser—Lewis

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Glaser are now on their wedding trip following their marriage here Sunday afternoon in the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Glaser is the former Miss Rose Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Lewis of this city, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Isaac Glaser of Brighton Beach, N. Y., and the late Mr. Glaser. Rabbi Joshua Klavan and Rabbi Solomon Metz officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white velvaray, made on princess lines with a full skirt, falling into a long train. Her veil of illusion, which fell beyond her train, was held by clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a bride's bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

A reception followed the ceremony.

Hope Ridings Miller

A Word or Two in Passing About Those Weekly Conferences At the White House—the Ones Mrs. Roosevelt Hopes Will be Even Better 'the Next Few (or Is it Several?) Years'

Just how many years are "a few?" Did Mrs. Roosevelt say "several" instead of "few" in her speech at the Women's National Press Club dinner Monday night? And what, exactly, did she mean when she tossed off that seemingly casual remark, "All I hope in the next few years is that something will come out of my press conferences that will be of real worth to the country"?

Discussion, debate and speculation swirled around those questions yesterday wherever women of the press gathered. A group of reporters, arriving at the White House early for the First Lady's press conference, collected in the Green Room and argued the points politely. Some insisted Mrs. Roosevelt had said "a few years," others declared she had said "several years." But all agreed that whatever she had said, it certainly was not just "another year."

Mrs. Roosevelt, then, obviously expects her White House press conferences to continue after 1944. A "few years" might take them on to 1948; and "several years" could mean she expects them to go right through a fifth term. You never can tell.

Along with OWI Chief Elmer Davis, Mrs. Roosevelt was a featured speaker at the annual women's press gathering, where silver bowls and verbal bouquets were presented to incoming and outgoing presidents, and club members, with their year's work behind them, breathed a sigh of relief that it was all over . . . until next autumn. Since the press, apparently, is very much on the minds—and in the hair—of several Capital powers-that-be, the committee for the dinner decided to give the notables mentioned above a chance to say either something, or more, about what they think of the way Washington reporters cover the news.

Virtually all of the 60-odd women who cover Mrs. Roosevelt's press conference were among the 300 club members and guests who settled down comfortably in the air-conditioned Statler Hotel dining room—prepared to hear the First Lady's frank appraisal of her conference. They hardly expected the hint that they might be at it indefinitely—for "a few years" more at least, maybe longer.

About a dozen who listened could remember the first press conference Mrs. Roosevelt had at the White House—the conference at which tea and cakes were served and the First Lady sounded a new note in informality by inviting the newspaper women to sit on the floor because there were not enough chairs to go around.

I don't remember that first meeting. It was long before my Washington day. There have been chairs for all, the years I have been covering . . . and no tea and cakes. Like all regular conferences, they are sometimes interesting; sometimes dull. As Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out Monday night, they were "born in a kind of revolt" because she saw no reason why women reporters should have to get the White House's distaff stuff by the back stairs. From the beginning she made it plain she wanted her conference to be used "as a place for getting special angles on things affecting the women of this country . . . with the end in view of awakening women to what they should know, and their responsibility as citizens."

But her weekly get-togethers are much more than a clearing house for women's angles. Every subject under the sun seems to have been introduced and threshed out. No matter how embarrassing the question may be, no matter how much it pries into the personal life of her loved ones—Mrs. Roosevelt will answer one way or another. Not always for the record, of course. She has the privilege—as who doesn't in Washington?—of stating when she is to be quoted, and occasionally she takes advantage of it. More often, she imposes no restrictions. And only in the rarest instances does she make even a passing reference to an inaccurate report of her conference.

Mrs. Roosevelt's remarks Monday night left the impression she thinks the members of her conference have done a good job for 10 years. "I have never felt that those who come regularly have anything but a kindly feeling toward me," she said. "I have never looked on my press conference as a one-way street; I have always felt I should get as many ideas from reporters as they get from me; but I am not always sure I get what I want to get."

Well, if it's good publicity she wants, she has no complaint. None of the adverse criticism falling to her lot the past 10 years has come from anybody who covers her conference regularly (note that regularly). Whether she is—as her fondest admirers will assure you—"God's gift to newspaperwomen," is a matter of opinion. Certainly, she has more loyal friends among women of the press than any other woman in the world. She has been courteous and cooperative; she has "been nice" to newspaperwomen; and they have been nice to her. Her weekly conference has paid handsome dividends. "Ours is a small conference," she observed Monday night, "but it has far-reaching results."

Question is now—how far will it reach? The extent of "several" or only "a few years" longer?

Captain Phelps' Funeral Services To Be Held Today

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. today in Fort Myer Chapel for Capt. Oliver A. Phelps, 78, District lawyer, who died Tuesday at Mount Alto Hospital after six weeks' illness. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery, where his wife, Flora Phelps, was buried five years ago.

Capt. Phelps resided at 2452 Thirty-ninth Street Northwest.

A veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars, he was a direct descendant of Gen. Isaac Cook of Revolutionary War fame. He had come here about 40 years ago and, after graduation from National University, practiced law in the District between the wars. At the close of the World War he was employed for a few years in the legal department of the Veterans' Bureau.

A native of Wallingford, Conn., he lived for many years in Fort Wayne, Ind. Past commander of the Washington Commandery, Knights Templar, he was a member of the Sol D. Bayless, Lodge, No. 359, in Fort Wayne, and Fort Wayne Chapter, No. 19, of the Masons.

No relatives survive.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Professional Zealousy — By Milton Caniff

MR. MUCRAM, YOUR CONSTRUCTION BATTALION PEOPLE HAVE DONE A GOOD JOB HERE! HOW IS THEIR MORALE?
YOU NEEDN'T WORRY ABOUT THE SEABEES, SIR! THE ONLY THING WE LIKE BETTER THAN BUILDING SOMETHING — IS DEFENDING IT!
IN THIS CASE YOUR MEN WILL DO SOME FIGHTING BEFORE THEY BUILD! THE JAPS MAY BE LAYING A LANDING STRIP ON ISLAND #407!
ANOTHER GUADALCANAL, EH, SIR?
...ON A SMALLER SCALE --TO BE USED AS A REFUELING BASE FOR A LANDING ATTEMPT ON THIS INSTALLATION!
ARE WE TO DESTROY OR IMPROVE THE LANDING STRIP, SIR?
WE WILL HOLD IT-- AND TELL YOUR SEABEES, NOT TO BE TOO CRITICAL OF THE JAP WORKMANSHIP... THE LITTLE MEN ARE HAVING TROUBLE KEEPING THEIR MINDS ON THEIR AMBITIONS THESE DAYS!!

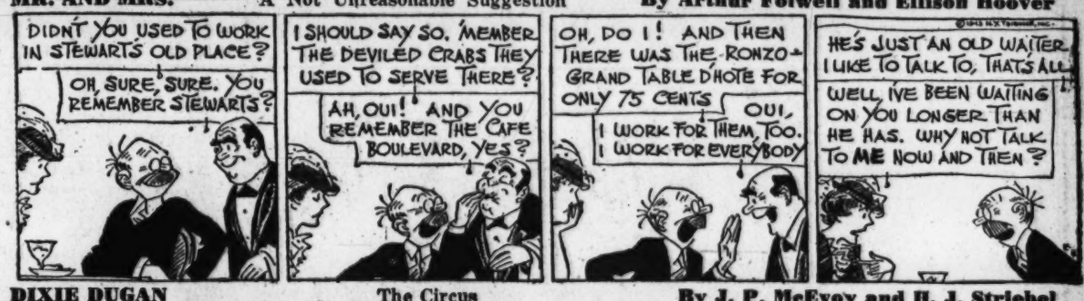
MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

I'LL GO IF YOU WANT ME TO--BUT YOU'RE IN TROUBLE, SHERRY! AND I WANT TO HELP YOU!
I--I BELIEVE YOU, MRS. WORTH!--SOMEHOW, I WANT TO TALK TO YOU!--BUT, WHAT'S THE USE! TALKING CAN'T HELP!
JUST TELLING OUR TROUBLES OFTEN MAKES THEM LIGHTER, CHILD! TRY IT!
WELL--IT'S ABOUT THIS LETTER--BUT TO MAKE YOU UNDERSTAND, I'LL HAVE TO GO BACK TO THE DAY AUNT SARAH ASKED ME TO TAKE HER TO THE CLINIC---!

MICKEY FINN — Convincing Proof — By Lank Leonard

THEN YOU THINK IT'S OKAY FOR ME TO GO TO WORK, MRS. FINN?
I CERTAINLY DO, FLOSSIE! AS LONG AS YOU HAVE ME TO TAKE CARE OF TOMMY, I THINK IT IS A FINE, PATRIOTIC THING TO DO!
I'M OPPOSED TO IT, FLOSSIE! AND I KNOW TOM WOULD BE, TOO!
OH, TOM WOULD, WOULD HE? WELL IT'S SITTIN' AROUND WORRYIN ABOUT HIM, THAT'S DRIVIN' ME NUTS! HARD WORK IS WHAT I NEED!
YOU'RE WRONG, FLOSSIE! YOU'RE NOT AS STRONG AS YOU USED TO BE!
I'M NOT, EH?

MR. AND MRS. — A Not Unreasonable Suggestion — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover



DIDN'T YOU USED TO WORK IN STEWART'S OLD PLACE?
OH, SURE, SURE. YOU REMEMBER STEWART'S?
I SHOULD SAY SO, 'MEMBER THE DEVILED CRABS THEY USED TO SERVE THERE?
AH, OUI! AND YOU REMEMBER THE CAFE BOULEVARD, YES?
OH, DO I! AND THEN THERE WAS THE RONZO-GRAND TABLE D'HOTE FOR ONLY 75 CENTS
OUI, I WORK FOR THEM, TOO. I WORK FOR EVERYBODY
HE'S JUST AN OLD WAITER I LIKE TO TALK TO, THAT'S ALL WELL, I'VE BEEN WAITING ON YOU LONGER THAN HE HAS. WHY NOT TALK TO ME NOW AND THEN?

THIS AIR-CONDITIONING UNIT COSTS YOU $250 IF YOU CAN GET IT

THIS ONE (A PALM BEACH AIR-COOLED SUIT) COSTS ONLY $19.50

NEW ARRIVALS IN "Koolerized"

Palm Beach Suits

Superman's about the only man we know of who can carry an air-conditioned unit with him wherever he goes. And even if you could it would be rather awkward when eating lunch or having a business conference. But that doesn't say you can't keep cool. You can if you know what to wear. Now take a nationally famous Palm Beach Suit, for instance. Under a strong magnifying glass you can count 1,600 tiny windows to every square inch of cloth. Add up those inches and there are millions, and we mean millions, of open pores in every Palm Beach Suit. It's your cooling system, that's what. And because of an exclusive, patented weave, the pores do not clog and always remain open. Your body heat rushes out and the slightest stir of air seeps through to keep you cool and refreshed throughout the hottest day.
